United Utah Party plans March 20 caucus

On March 20 – caucus night in Utah - voters will have a new alternative for caucus attendance this year – the caucus meetings of the United Utah Party. According to Richard Davis, United Utah Party chair, the new party is a centrist, reform-oriented party seeking to invite citizens back into politics rather than pushing them away.

“We invite all Utah voters to attend the caucus meetings of the United Utah Party,” Davis said in a release. “Come join us in changing politics and government for the better.”

The Iron County caucus will begin at 7 p.m. in the upstairs board room of the Iron County School District building. It’s located at 2077 W. Royal Hunte Drive.

Unlike Republican Party caucuses, the United Utah Party caucus meetings will be open to all voters, regardless of party affiliation. The party also welcomes those who live in areas of the state not close to their county locations to participate via video conference call. Conference call information can be obtained by emailing administrative assistant@unitedutah.org.

The United Utah Party caucus meetings also will differ from other parties by not electing delegates to a convention. The party makes any party member automatically a delegate to its county and state conventions.

SUU’S JAZZ BAND ENTERTAINED DONORS who contributed to the Canyon Creek Women’s Crisis Center’s Valentine’s Dinner.

Valentine's Dinner raises money for crisis center

CEDAR CITY — Canyon Creek Women’s Crisis Center felt the love at its 2nd Annual Valentine's Dinner fundraiser this February to raise funds to serve survivors of domestic violence and sexual assault. The event held at Southern Utah University’s Great Hall sold 170 tickets and raised $5,000, more than double the ticket sales of last year’s event. The SUU jazz band entertained throughout the evening as couples and groups arrived to enjoy a three-course meal prepared by SUU Dining Services. SUU Dining Services cooks, prep line, and some of their servers all donated their time for the evening. "Many of us have ties to the community, and we support and admire what Canyon Creek does for it. Participating in the Valentine's CEDAR CITY — The Cedar City Lions will be hosting a White Cane Day Fundraiser on Friday March 9, from 4 to 8 p.m. at Cedar City’s Walmart. Local Lions will be available at both doors to collect donations.

Our Lions’ Program enhances the lives of people who are visually impaired and who need eye exams and glasses. Your donations provide the funds needed to provide these services.

Throughout the world, the long white cane is used by people who are blind or visually impaired as a tool for safe and reliable navigation. The white cane is a symbol of the user’s skills and talents, mobility, and independence. It also allows the sighted person to recognize that the user is visually impaired.

In 1921, James Biggs, a photographer from Bristol, England, became blind following an accident. Because he was feeling uncomfortable with the amount of traffic around his home, he painted his walking stick white to be more easily visible.

In 1930, George A. Bonham, President of the Peoria (Illinois) Lions Club introduced the idea of using the white cane with a red band as a means of assisting the blind in independent mobility. The Peoria Lions approved the idea, white canes were made and distributed, and the Peoria City Council adopted an ordinance giving the bearers the right-of-way to cross the street.

News of the club’s activity spread quickly to other Lions’ clubs throughout the United States, and their visually handicapped friends experimented with the white canes. Overwhelming acceptance of the white cane idea by the blind and sighted alike quickly gave cane users a unique method of identifying their special need for travel consideration among their sighted counterparts.

Under Utah law, you must yield the right-of-way to any pedestrian using a guide dog or carrying a white cane. Only blind or nearly blind persons are permitted to carry white canes.

This is an opportunity to increase awareness about the white cane, which:

» Signifies that the pedestrian using it is either blind or visually impaired;

» Alerts motorists of the need to exercise special caution and provides the user the right of way;

» Symbolizes the independence, confidence and skills of the person who is using the white cane.

Free White Cane (in the USA) – the National Federation of the Blind (NFB) offers a long white cane to people in the USA who are blind.

SUU Community Education offering 16 classes

CEDAR CITY — Southern Utah University introduces community education for southern Utah residents with registration now open for the first 16 classes.

Classes are designed to create social engagement in the community, teach a new hobby, bolster a resume, or just for those who love to learn something new, according to Melynda Thorpe, SUU Community & Academic Enrichment Executive Director.

“We collected input from the residents of southern Utah and are excited to bring elective education back to the community,” Thorpe said in a school release. “With our research-based approach, we believe we can now offer classes the community want at a price they can afford. Classes start as low as $25 and are designed to introduce new skills and opportunities for professional development.”

Branding Boot Camp—Best Practices & Ethics

Branding Boot Camp introduces community members the best practices and ethical standards in the field of strategic communication. Learn from local practitioners and SUU experts how to create and employ brand strategy to grow your business, non-profit organization, or entrepreneurial product ideas through advertising, marketing and public relations.

“In terms of communication success, branding has become entirely critical to businesses, organizations and entrepreneurs,” said Thorpe, course creator. “Branding gives critical voice and personality to companies, and those who learn to brand will have a proven greater chance at success.”

This eight-session course will be hosted weekly with each session lasting two hours and culminating in the opportunity to earn an SUU Institutional Branding Boot Camp—Best Practices and Ethics Certificate.

Spy Escape

In this six-part series, participants will learn techniques and tricks used by professionals in self-defense, firearms handling, defensive driving and escape and evasion techniques.

Former CIA Agent Jason Hanson, a Cedar City resident, published the New York Times Best-Selling book “Spy Secrets That Can Save Your Life” in 2015. Now community members can practice those techniques with Hanson in an affordable community education class.

“I pray my customers never find themselves in a harmful situation,” Hanson said. “But if they do, I want to make sure they know how to defend themselves and their families.”

Southern Utah Geology and Hiking

For those that love to hike with an added element of education, Southern Utah Geology Hiking course participants will learn about the geologic events that shaped Southwestern Utah’s spectacular landscapes in a series that includes short hikes and field trips.

“Few places can rival the diversity of geologic structures exposed in our own backyard,” said course instructor Tyler Knudsen, of the Utah Department of Natural Resources Geological Survey. “From tropical seas to violent volcanic eruptions and active faults, this informative, non-technical course will add a new dimension and fascination to southern Utah’s scenic beauty.”

Ink Slinger’s Lounge

Ink Slinger’s Lounge creates a unique gathering space for those who love creative writing. Weekly sessions will be held at Cedar City’s Southern Utah Museum of Art and Main Street Books and are designed to provide a creative space for artists of the written word.

“Branding gives critical voice and personality to companies, and those who learn to brand will have a proven greater chance at success.”

From the professional and published writer to the dreamer and tinkerer, Ink Slinger’s Lounge offers a collaborative space for writers to gather, share, workshop, learn and inspire, as well as receive inspiration. Each meeting includes an open-mic sharing option, writers’ prompt activity, and instruction by a guest professional writer. Sessions will commence spring, summer, fall and winter culminating in the publication of a creative writer’s journal published annually in December.

Other classes offered by SUU include Social Dancing, Adobe Creative Suite, Wine Tasting, Travel Spanish, Photography, From Blog to Book, Yoga, Math Made Easy (for High School students) and Retirement Planning for Ages 18-88.

For a complete list of classes, or to register, visit suu.edu/wise, email bewise@suu.edu or call the CAE office at (435) 865-8259. For those who need help registering, stop by the CAE office at 136 W. University Blvd, Suite 003, Cedar City, Utah.
Preparing your ‘reverse bucket list’

The opinions stated in this article are solely those of the author and not of Iron County Today.

A medical journal study reports that 91 percent of Americans have a “bucket list” of things they would like to do and places they would like to see before they pass this mortal coil. The list is especially intriguing for men and women who regularly attend church, and the most common desire is to do more traveling. New York Times columnist Clyde Haberman writes that a friend approaches the idea quite differently. Rather than pursing wishes which may prove difficult and costly, his friend is more grounded with a “reverse bucket list”: things he doesn’t want to do no matter how long he lives.

Obviously, a “reverse bucket list” has better odds of coming to fruition (and certainly better odds that any one of us will actually live forever since and time will certainly run out and we succeed by default). To complete a reverse bucket list, all we have to do is remember Nancy Reagan’s admonition – just say no!

I’m already preparing my reverse bucket list. In the time I have left, I willfully plan on avoiding the following:

- Eating Brussel sprouts and any pizza topped with pineapple and/or anchovies.
- Reading boring novels like Moby Dick and anything writing by James Patterson, Danielle Steele, or Nicholas Sparks.
- Interviewing or shaking hands with Putin, Donald Trump, Roseanne Barr, Kathy Griffin, Kanye West, or any rap music artist.
- Paying $60 for a Nordstrom tie (produced in Sri Lanka for 34 cents).
- Visiting Mississippi in the summertime, North Dakota in the winter, Russia, or Somalia.
- Donating money to the federal government to pay off our Congress-inspired federal debt or to finance the Trump military parade whim.
- Rooting for the Dallas Cowboys or the Los Angeles Lakers.
- Putting down payment on a new Tesla and waiting 18 years for it to be manufactured and delivered.
How do you feel about Mitt Romney’s entrance into the U.S. Senatorial race?

“Political questions are always tricky to answer, because no matter what you say somebody is going to lambaste you for your opinion. As politicians go, I’ve always liked Mitt Romney, and I would support him if he was elected as a Utah senator.”

— Cami Cox, Parowan

“I love the mental image of Mitt Romney running in a suit. Anywhere. That’s as political as I’m allowed to get.”

— Michael Foley, St. George

“I don’t follow politics, they give me a headache.”

— Cassie Palmisano, Cedar City

Right now I’m undecided.”

The last full week has passed us by. Next week is the end and it is going to be a busy one. Almost all committees have finished and it’s going to be a lot of floor time. It’s strange to think it’s all going to be over soon, it all happened so quickly.

There were some great things happening in the House. I am happy to report that we are very close to passing HB 57 Utah Intergenerational Poverty Work and Self-sufficiency Tax Credit. Senator Vickers presented the bill in the Senate and it is now waiting to have the funds approved and to be read in the Senate for the final time.

Warning Label
The Utah Legislature is considering a bill, H.B.399, Opioid Abuse Prevention and Treatment Amendments, that would require a warning label and instruction pamphlet to be distributed when an opiate is prescribed. H.B.399 requires pharmacies to better educate the public on opioids. It would require warning labels to be affixed by the pharmacy that contain the following, “Caution: Opioid. Risk of overdose and addiction,” as well as additional language approved by the Department of Health.

Drug addiction is an incredible problem across the problem and it is best to stop the addiction before it starts. 80 percent of people who are addicted to heroin nationwide first became hooked on a prescription drug. There would be a pamphlet giving sign and resources for the patient or family if they believe the patient has a substance abuse disorder.

HB 399 unanimously passed the House Health and Human Services Standing Committee on February 26.

Congresswoman Mia Love
On February 22, Congresswoman Mia Love visited the House to speak to legislators about what is happening in Washington D.C. She spoke of the success of the Trump administration’s tax reform and the positive impact it is having on businesses, individuals and America. She also encouraged Utah lawmakers to follow suit with the state revenue surplus this year by offering Utahns much-needed tax relief.

Mitt Romney
Former Massachusetts Governor Mitt Romney visited the House on February 27. During the majority caucus meeting, he discussed his positions on a variety of topics. The former governor called for more trade and innovation, saying it would be a win for Utah and the United States. He discussed the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) and some of its negative effects, especially in towns that lost major manufacturers as a result. He believes we need to renegotiate NAFTA and other trade agreements in ways that benefit the U.S.

Arts Day Museum Day on the Hill
Museums of all kinds came to the Capitol on February 27 to offer members learning experiences. Some booths had live lizards and snakes, a variety of artifacts of art and one commemorated WWII.

The High School Art Show Capitol Day
High school students from across Utah showcased their art in the Gold Room at the Capitol. Utah is a proud promoter of the arts, and it was a day for students and teachers to show their support and appreciation of school art programs.

Thank you all for your support.

Utah Legislative Update — Week 6

This year’s session is quickly coming to a close. The budget should be finalized this week, then the task of dealing with a few hundred bills is left before us. It has been a great session and I have very much enjoyed being an integral part of the budget process. I sincerely appreciate the input from many of you as you have reached out to me on various issues. There are still some very important items that will need to be discussed throughout the year, including school safety, and I will update you as those discussions take place.

Earned Income Tax Credit
Intergenerational poverty is growing concern for the state. Children from low income families have lower life expectancy, greater health problems, and lower educational attainment. This happens in large part because of the environment in which children are raised. If a child does not have access to proper nutrition and sufficient parental care, the effects can be devastating, and in some cases, irreversible. This bill, HB51, creates a tax credit for low income families. The eligibility for the tax credit is tied to the Federal Tax Credit. If a person is eligible for a Federal Earned Income Tax Credit, they can be eligible for state tax credit. A family with an annual income of $25,000 can receive an average tax credit of $240. Though it might not seem like much, lower income families can make a few hundred dollars go a long way. Larger families who have been disadvantaged by recent federal tax changes, will not be penalized under this new system because of the size of their family. This bill has passed the House and passed its first reading in the Senate. If a state tax reform package is put together this session, then HB51 could possibly be part of that package. Rep. John Westwood is the House sponsor and I am the Senate sponsor on this bill.

Resolution Honoring Senator Orrin Hatch
Senator Orrin Hatch has served the state of Utah for over 40 years as a U.S. Senator. Now that he is retiring from the U.S. Senate, our State Senate passed a resolution, SCR 13, to honor Senator Hatch for the good work he has done on behalf of our state. As part of the resolution, February 21, 2018 was designated as Orrin Hatch Day. This resolution gave many legislators a chance to share the many personal and political stories and memories they’ve had working with Senator Hatch.

Police Quotas
Throughout the session, Senator Howard Stephenson’s Police Bill of Law Enforcement Quotas, has received quite a bit of attention. Many citizens, having been on the wrong end of a citation, have strong feelings about the concept of police quotas. But a couple of questions prompted some changes to the bill. Will the bill change to provide that law enforcement agencies collect data, and will the agencies still be able to incentivize stops or engagement with the public? Senator Stephenson realized that law enforcement’s most important role is in engagement with the populous. After changes, the bill passed on the Senate floor on a vote of 23-2-4 and will now move to the House for consideration.

Resolution in Support of a New National Park in Escalante
The Senate considered a resolution (SCR18) declaring Utah’s support for Congressman Stewart’s effort to create the Escalante Canyons National Park and Preserve, and the Grand Staircase, Kaiparowits, and Escalante Canyons National Monuments. This bill passed the Senate and will be heard in the House next.

Education Open Enrollment
Senator Daniel Hemmert is sponsoring a bill (SB138) to allow school districts to decline to enroll students who do not live within the district’s boundaries, if the enrollment of the student would jeopardize the efficient use of resources, or disrupt the school’s comprehensive program. School districts already possessed the ability to do this for elementary schools. This bill extends this discretion to the high school level. SB138 has passed the House and will be heard in the House next.

Medical Marijuana
For the last four years, we have considered legislation that would allow for the use of marijuana for medicinal purposes. With the exception of CBD oil use for epileptic children, no marijuana bills have passed successfully through the Legislature. This year, the use of medical marijuana is divided into two main bills. HB 197 would permit the growth of marijuana in the state and charge the Department of Revenue to oversee the growing. HB 195 established “right to try” legislation that would permit patients to use marijuana for medicinal purposes if it is recommended by a doctor. These bills originated in the House and narrowly passed. They were recently debated and passed coming out of the Senate Health and Human Services Committee. These bills will be considered on the Senate floor for second and third reading for passage.

.05 DUI
Possibly the most controversial bill passed during the 2017 legislative session was Representative Norman Thurston’s HB155 Driving Under the Influence and Public Safety Revisions, which changes Utah’s blood-alcohol limit for DUIs to .05. Though the law has yet to take effect, advocacy groups have continued to push for changes or repeal. Senator Jim Dabakis presented his bill, SB210 Intoxicated Driving Limit Changes on Thursday in the Senate Transportation, Public Utilities, Energy, and Technology Committee. Senator Dabakis said that the bill is very simple and leaves the new blood-alcohol law in place but for one small change, that being it will not become effective until three other states accept the .05 blood-alcohol limit.

In presenting the bill, Senator Dabakis mentioned that he had two mimosas with breakfast and took a breathalyzer test which showed his blood alcohol content was at .05. He said that he felt perfectly fine. Dabakis said that the idea behind the bill is that there is no proof that the new law is going to save lives and Utah should not lead the way until there is evidence that shows it will save lives. Members of the public spoke for and against the bill and the committee ended up tabling the bill on a 3-2 vote which means it will not pass this session.

Archibald’s passion: Gathering the History

by Dawn M. AERTS
Iron County Today

Ronald Archibald describes himself as a professional ‘dabler’. He served as a ‘fish peddler’ -- a torpedo man with the U.S. Navy, and is merited as a Fellow of the A.O.M., Ancient Order of Magellan; the D.O.M., Dominion of Golden Dragon, and the A.O.S., Ancient Order of Shellbacks.

In short, he served in sea navigation, crossed over the International Date Line and through the equator at the 180th Meridian. In later years, he worked in sales, in education, handled period merchandise and traveled to trade shows as a book dealer. But, according to Archibald, none of these ventures intrigued him more than the quest to gather history.

“I was part of a large merchant group that went to trade shows as a book dealer. But, according to Archibald, shows. Walt made very precise replicas of historic pieces of jewelry, while I focused on book buyers.”

But it was their shared interest in local history that kept them busy. “I would spend hours finding the old documents and exploring the old photographs in the Special Collections Department at Southern Utah University,” said Archibald, “Which is a treasure-trove of material. That time, families here had preserved their own personal letters or photos, and were holding on to them, but we, as friends, felt that gathering what we could of this history was important to work on.”

In the 1990s, the Archibalds and Haywards set out to compile what they could for the future historical society. “So, I had started to develop a newsletter to share some of the history!” And Hayward began the three-year process to get the Kanarraville Historical Society recognized as a non-profit society by the State of Utah. That designation eventually happened in September 2005.

According to Archibald, the first President, Kit Lamb, led members to establish a library, museum and newsletter. “We gathered some of that history, everything from snapshots of an outdoor gathering on a community lawn, to the story of the Cobblecrest -- articles on the All-Women's Fire Department and pictures from 4th of July parades.”

Archibald said the museum features a special collection in four-exhibits displayed upstairs at the town hall: a replica of early settler log homes; period items; the Cobblecrest; the All-Women Fire Department; the School House and period Latter-day Saint church items.

“The Historical Society put together their own cookbook (Cooking Up History) with recipes and local stories,” said Archibald of fundraisers that included t-shirts, the reminting of coins from the old coop, historical-society notecards and a project focused on oral histories. He believes Kanarra is a town still looking for memories of early settlers, farmers, ranchers and spirited pioneers.

“We first drove through (Old 91), you saw all those little places (the way station, the restaurant and early store) and I thought this history needs to be preserved, and people should know how this town came to be.”

While the Cobblecrest was one of the most popular venues in town, Archibald says other reasons brought visitors too.

“This was the main route through southern Utah, so people from Las Vegas and Salt Lake City would stop at the Ranche Café at the diner known for their home cooked meals and Dutch Oven rolls.”

Though some documents have been lost over time, Archibald is optimistic about the renewed interest and the turn-out of visitors to a recent Historical Society social.

“There’s young people who aren’t hearing about the history here. They haven’t seen the archives or photos from the past,” said Archibald, “I hope we can change that.”

You can comprise your own "reverse bucket list." For some, it might even be not reading this column.

As for me, I figure that immortality is a long shot and, if life is an adventure, maybe kicking the bucket should be one too. I'm reminded by Ellen DeGeneres commenting on your elderly grandmother.

"She started walking five miles a day when she was 60," said DeGeneres. "She's 97 now and we don't know where the heck she is!"

an effort to help food truck owners navigate the confusing and sometimes discriminatory patchwork of local city food truck ordinances. This bill, (SB167), is a continuation of this effort. It prevents a city from limiting a food truck to a certain amount of days in their city. It also prohibits a city from requiring food trucks to furnish a site plan to the city. For food trucks that are operated with permission on private property, SB167 prohibits a city from limiting the amount of days a food truck can sell food on that property and prohibits a city from requiring a food truck owner to submit to the city written permission from the property owner. This bill has passed the Senate and will be heard in the House.

Early Literacy Program

Did you know that a child that is not at grade reading level by third grade is four times more likely to not graduate from high school? The data is clear, attaining grade level reading is essential for the future of our students. Currently, there is a solid number of our students that are not meeting this benchmark. SB 194, Early Literacy Program, would raise our current standards for reading, ask school boards to develop literacy goals, acquire reports from schools on their literacy progress, and provide for technical assistance for schools that are struggling to meet the standards. This bill passed unanimously in the Senate and will now go to the House for consideration.

'The Secret Garden' team prepares for ballet debut

CEDAR CITY — Soon the public will have the chance to see what members of Cedar City Junior Ballet have been working on since September. CCJB’s brand new production of The Secret Garden comes to the stage March 16 and 17 at 7:30 p.m. at the Heritage Center Theatre, 105 N. 100 East, Cedar City. Tickets are available for purchase at the Heritage Center ticket office (435-865-2882) as well as through company members.

"Years ago, I told myself The Secret Garden needs to be a ballet," said Christine Mills, director and CCJB founder. "This is first original ballet I've ever done and every day I wonder if everything will come together on time. But then I see the beautiful moments at rehearsal that make me realize what an amazing experience is in store for the cast and audience."

The choreography is completely new, based on the novel, as well as film and stage adaptations. It is set to lovely orchestral and solo piano music with an old English feel, chosen by Mills to tell the story of a young orphan girl who is sent to live with her uncle and her discovery of a garden long since forgotten.

Cast member Laura Nelson dances the lead role of the orphan girl Mary Lennox. At age 10 she is no stranger to the dance world. "I've been doing ballet since I was three," says Laura. "My favorite part of being in this ballet is learning all the new dances and spending time with the other dancers. Dancing ballet just makes me so happy!"

Other roles in The Secret Garden are performed by dancers and actors, ages three to adult. While some characters are from the household in which Mary lives, many others are animals and insects, flowers of the garden, and variations of the seasons.

Michael Harding plays the role of the old gardener, Ben Weatherstaff. Michael is a CCJB board member, stage actor with the Utah Shakespeare Festival, and chair of the theater department at Dixie State University.

He laughs when asked about being in a ballet. "I am not a dancer, but I have loved the opportunity to learn about dance." He expressed his enjoyment of the rehearsal process and how well The Secret Garden is coming together. "This has been a totally worthwhile experience, helping to bring to life the world that the director envisioned. Everyone should come see this charming show."

It is not only the individuals on stage that are preparing. Lise Mills, CCJB artistic director, and many parents of dancers and community members are helping to create the hundreds of costumes that are integral to the performance. The technical aspects are being handled by professional theatre technicians. Donna Ruzika, lighting designer for the Utah Shakespeare Festival, will design the lighting. Ben Hohman and Marielle Boneau, both of the properties department of the Utah Shakespeare Festival, have designed the set and props; and Jodi Brewer, Utah Shakespeare Festival’s company manager, is stage manager.

Cedar City Junior Ballet is Cedar City's only classical ballet company designed to involve community talent of all ages. Past full-length productions include The Sleeping Beauty, A Midsummer Night’s Dream, Coppelia, and Cinderella. It is funded, in part, by Cedar City RAP tax and generous donations. ‘Drive the Future of the Arts’ wins naming contest

by Ashley H. POLLOCK
SUU College of Performing and Visual Arts

CEDAR CITY — The SUU College of Performing and Visual Arts (CPVA) Advisory Board proudly announces Nikki Lewis as winner of the naming contest for their upcoming CPVA Advisory Board Golf Tournament fundraiser. The tournament will be held on September 13, 2018, at the Sleepy Ridge Golf Course in Orem, Utah.

Jeff Kahn, Chair of the CPVA Advisory Board, said, “The requirement for the title had to be something relating to the arts. There were over 60 titles submitted for the contest. Once the titles were collected, the board reviewed the submissions and voted for the winner. The winner received a $500 award.”

Lewis, Master of Fine Arts in Arts Administration candidate and winner of the contest, said, “When SUU Art and Design students were asked to use their creativity in brainstorming titles for the CPVA Advisory Board Golf Tournament fundraiser, I knew I had to give it a try. The funds raised from the tournament will support travel expenses to help students attend experiential learning opportunities in their field of study. As an Arts Administration student, we are taught in our fundraising and marketing classes that creating a catchy, call-to-action for a fundraiser is vital. With very little experience playing or watching golf, I researched common golf terms and eventually came up with, Drive the Future of the Arts. I am excited to see the event title that I crafted used to raise money for future students like me!”

The CPVA Advisory Board is comprised of members from various backgrounds throughout the state and region. Their main priorities as a board are to raise funds for scholarships to enrich students’ educations. The Southern Utah University College of Performing and Visual Arts will use the money to increase the learning of their students. We are happy to support these students by hosting this golf tournament. All the money raised goes directly to the students for scholarships to enrich their education. By sponsoring the ‘Drive the Future of the Arts’ Golf Tournament we are enriching the lives of the students in Southern Utah University’s College of Performing and Visual Arts.”

Vocal Point: A Win-Win on March 30

by Mary Anne ANDERSEN
Cedar City Arts Council

We all love win-win situations, but how much better it is when it is win-win-win-win-win. So on for hundreds of people. We have an opportunity coming up in Cedar City where many, many of us can win with no down side to it at all.

On March 30, at 7 p.m., in the Heritage Theater, BYU’s premier male a cappella performance group, Vocal Point, will perform for us lovers of great vocal music. Here’s where the win-win for hundreds of people comes in, meaning the audience members.

This group has a reputation that reaches far beyond the valleys of Utah, and they will be here in live performance for us!

The group has produced 18 music videos, which have been featured on Good Morning America and the Grammy Awards Ceremony. They received awards from Contemporary A Cappella Recording Awards (an industry organization), performed at the Disneyland 60th Anniversary Diamond Celebration, sang at the televised Boy Scouts of America Centennial Celebration in 2010, and were first runner-up in the International Championship of Collegiate A Cappella in 2011. They have performed in nearly all the states in the US, and now they are coming to our lucky town. Hopefully, I don’t know when they have time to go to class. Don’t check their GPAs; just listen to their music.

The guys will perform workshops with local high school choirs in the afternoon and the choirs will then sing a bit to open the concert in the evening. To this educator’s heart, that might be the biggest win of all. The kids will be so excited to sing and the families will love watching them.

So that is our part of the win-win-win thing. The good news for them is that they obviously love to sing, so score a win for the singers. Here is more good stuff to know: the group is being sponsored by the Iron County BYU Alumni Chapter that is using this concert as a fundraiser. Proceeds from this concert will go towards providing scholarships for BYU students from Iron County. The last time this group worked toward that end, they were able to provide 5 half-tuition scholarships to Iron County students. This year, BYU will match what is earned up to $5,500. So, clearly a win for some lucky BYU students.

For those of you in the big, red-block U camp, just think that higher education is always a good thing, and pat yourselves on the back for being so charitable.

To increase the funds earned, the alumni group will hold a bake sale and silent auction during intermission. That will give the auction donors some good publicity for being generous and community-minded (win) and the lucky auction winners (there is the word) will go home with some great gifts.

My daughter and grand-daughter will come up from Vegas for this event. A musical 16-year-old knows a win when she sees one!
Bluegrass concert set for March 9

CEDAR CITY — Iron County Acoustic Music Association (ICAMA) presents a live acoustic concert with Cedar City’s favorite bluegrass musician, Marty Warburton, with help from some amazing bluegrass pickers, Ryan Tilby, Drew Williams, and John Landon. It will be held on Friday, March 9, at Community Presbyterian Church Fellowship Hall, 2279 N Wedgewood Lane, Cedar City. Doors open at 6:30 p.m. and the music starts at 7 p.m.

The lineup features Marty Warburton on guitar and banjo, Ryan Tilby on mandolin, dobro, and banjo, Drew Williams on fiddle, guitar, and mandolin, and John Landon on bass.

Marty Warburton is a two-time Utah State banjo champion, a Pine Creek records recording artist, a sought-after emcee for music festivals nationwide and the front man for Marty Warburton and Home Girls.

Ryan Tilby is a first-call sideman and session musician playing with bands all over the U.S. as well as the recording engineer for St. George’s Spiral Studios.

Drew Williams played in Nashville for a number of years, has toured nationally and internationally, and is currently the principal at Tuachan High School for the Performing Arts.

John Landon has long experience playing bass and is currently the bass player in Home Girls.

Together, these bluegrass players have decades of performing experience. This show is an encore performance with (most of) the musicians from their May 2017 ICAMA appearance. Expect to hear bluegrass standards and some original arrangements of bluegrass and Americana music. This event promises to be a toe-tapping, hand clapping, family-friendly good time.

A suggested donation of $5 per person goes to the musicians and helps promote live acoustic music in Iron County.

For information on this and other upcoming live music events, check out the ICAMA Facebook page, ICAMAmusic #icamamusic email icama.music@gmail.com

Little Hollywood Shootout in Kanab on April 4

KANAB — The unmistakable scenery of the Kanab area has made this part of southern Utah a favorite destination for filmmakers since for decades. Building on this filmmaking history, the annual “Little Hollywood Shootout” is taking place at the historic Parry Lodge in Kanab starting on April 4. The “shootout” is a quick-turnaround film competition offering filmmakers the challenge of producing a short film with Kanab locations as the backdrop.

The competition starts at high noon with film production requirements such as locations and a theme will be revealed to participants. Teams will then have 49.5 hours to write, direct, edit, and complete a short five-minute film. Film submissions are due at 1:30 p.m. on Friday, April 6, either in person or online. The shootout films will then be premiered at a community screening and awards ceremony in the evening on Saturday, April 7, at the Crescent Moon Theater in Kanab.

“The thunder dome of quick turnaround film challenges is happening once again in Kanab, providing filmmakers an opportunity to produce a film where film legends have also worked,” said Kane County Film Commissioner Kelly Stowell, one of the organizers and founder of the event. “Registration is open and participants are encouraged to join us in Kanab.”

Prospective filmmakers of all ages from beginners to veterans are invited to take part in the challenge. Primary filming locations are required to take place in Kane County but editing and post-production can take place at the participants desired location. Two divisions are available for participants with one category intended for novice filmmakers of all ages looking to gain experience and the other division is designed for competitors who have experience in film production.

Films can be submitted through a revealed online method or films can be submitted in person back at the Parry Lodge at the time of the deadline.

Sponsors of the event include AT&T, Kane County Office of Tourism and Film Commission, Center for Education, Business, and the Arts, Kanab City, and the Utah Film Commission. “We look forward to this year’s shootout films showcasing all submitted films on the evening of April 6, either in person or online. The shootout films will then be revealed to participants. Teams will then have 49.5 hours to write, direct, edit, and complete a short five-minute film. Film submissions are due at 1:30 p.m. on Friday, April 6, either in person or online. The shootout films will then be premiered at a community screening and awards ceremony in the evening on Saturday, April 7, at the Crescent Moon Theater in Kanab.”

Old Capitol Storytelling Festival set for March 24

FILLMORE — The renowned One Voice Children’s Choir of “America’s Got Talent” fame will perform in two storytelling concerts slated for Saturday, March 24 in Fillmore, Utah. The events are part of the first-ever Old Capitol Storytelling Festival and will be held at 1 p.m. and 2:15 p.m. in the state-of-the-art Millard High School Auditorium at 200 Eagle Avenue.

“We have a world-class children’s choir in our own backyard who will share their story of claiming their territory on the world stage through their music at our festival,” said Utah musician and producer Clive Romney, a key organizer of the festival. “We’re hoping that people throughout the state will view these concerts as a catalyst to come celebrate history and the arts in Central Utah the last weekend in March.”

The concerts cost $5 each, with tickets available at the door or in advance at https://www.oldcapitoldstoryfest.com/tickets-concert. The One Voice Children’s Choir is widely known for its music video covers of hit songs like “Let It Go” from Disney’s Frozen (that video was created with musician Alex Boye and went viral with more than 78 million views). Some of the choir’s other widely recognized videos include “True Colors” by Cyndi Lauper, “Diamonds” by Rihanna and “Glorious” by David Archuleta. The choir’s most recent music video – released just a month ago -- features multiple child vocalists dressed in circus attire passionately belting out “This is Me” by Keala Settle from the movie “The Greatest Showman.”

The Old Capitol Storytelling Festival is named in honor of Fillmore’s Utah Territorial Statehouse -- the original seat of government for the Utah Territory. The festival’s theme is “Claim Your Territory.” Organized and sponsored by Friends of the Territorial Statehouse and Museum, Utah Pioneer Heritage Arts and Great Basin National Heritage Area, the event also has support from Millard County Tourism, Delta and Fillmore cities, Division of Utah State Parks and Recreation, and Division of State History. Road Creek Inn, located near Capitol Reef National Park, Fishlake National Forest, Canyonlands National Park and the Grand Staircase-Escalante National Monument, is a historic hotel in Loa, Utah that now serves as Southern Utah University’s Capitol Reef field station.

The current building replaced the Loa Co-op originally built in 1904 that was destroyed by fire on Dec. 11, 1911. A fresh water pipeline supplying Loa with water from nearby Road Creek was finished in 1911. Unfortunately, a fire hose had not been constructed yet or the old building might have been saved. The new Loa Co-op building would go on to house many merchants, including being a part of the Zion’s Cooperative Mercantile Institution (ZCMI) from 1912 to 1920 managed by W. Scott McClellan. Others operating in the mercantile business after McClellan were Loren Webster, Nelden Ellet and Reed Brian from 1920-1928.

In 1928, a Jewish immigrant from Russia by the name of Isaac Wachs, later changed to Wax, purchased the Loa Co-op store, at the time known as “Ikie’s Store,” and managed it from 1928-1940. Wax and his wife, Sadie, had four children; Harry (1906), Yetta (1908), Ida (1913), and Morris (1920). In 1945, after completing his military service, Harry bought the small company San Diego Janitor Supply and Chemical Company and was later joined in business by Morris. The company was renamed Waxie Sanitary Supply in 1954 and now has outlets in California, Oregon, Colorado, Washington, Alaska and Utah, employing more than 800 people. Wax’s grandson, Charles Wax, is the current CEO of Waxie Enterprises.

Cedar resident still loves his ‘hometown newspaper’

by Dawn M. AERTS
Iron County Today

CEDAR CITY — When Clayton Petty, MD, now a retired U.S. Navy Captain, was sent to Vietnam on October 9, 1969, he left behind family and friends in Cedar City, but not before stopping at the old Iron County Recorder to make sure his loved ones would read a personal note in the newspaper.

Now, he loves the paper that replaced it, Iron County Today.

In the book Vietnam Doc, An American Physician’s Memoir, Petty writes, ‘I wanted to leave a message for my family in an issue to run just before Christmas,’ with an advertisement he paid $10 to publish. In those days, Petty said a delivered-to-the-door edition was a mainstay in his Utah hometown.

“As a student, I remember reading it faithfully every week,” said Petty of the 1950s. “That’s where you could see who was marrying who, who was doing what, the latest sports and school news, and how the town was growing and changing.”

In those years, Petty graduated from Cedar High School, and enlisted with the 222nd Utah National Guard as a company clerk with summer training at Camp Williams. After completing two years at what is now Southern Utah University, Petty transferred to the University of Utah in Salt Lake City to finish pre-medical requirements for medical school. But all through those college years, Petty kept up with news in the Iron County community newspaper.

“There was news on Enoch, on Parowan and Kanarraville, who was building what, and what’s going on around town,” said Petty. Though he didn’t get much news during his two-year LDS mission to Australia, he returned in 1961 to complete his undergraduate work in Salt Lake City, and study at the University of Utah Medical School.

Petty admits that aside from missing family and friends, he longed for the hometown news.

“That was one thing I counted on to stay connected through the years -- there was no Internet, but if you had a copy of the Iron County Record you kept up with things. A good newspaper is the soul of the community.”

During his third year of medical school, then 2nd Lieutenant Petty was accepted into the Army Senior Medical Student program, which paid for a nine-month tuition in exchange for an active duty assignment after internship. “When medical school was completed, (my wife Zoe and I) were off to Hawaii with our children, Mason and Yvonne, to Tripler Army Medical Center, (TAMC) Hawaii.” Though he continued to subscribe to the paper, there were long delays in getting weekly editions. “I missed getting a newspaper delivered at the doorstep.”

According to Petty, his rotating internships at the TAMC provided excellent exposure to various clinical specialties, and that experience brought him to focus on physiology, and the pharmaceutical aspects of anesthesia. In later years, he was assigned to the Brook Army Medical Center, (BAMC) San Antonio, Tex., for a two-year residency in anesthesiology and a one-year fellowship in research.

But a community like Cedar City changed a great deal in the 1970s and local news was hard hit by his subsequent medical field orders with the 24th Evacuation Hospital in Long Binh Vietnam. Before leaving for Vietnam, Petty writes, ‘I arranged for flowers to be sent to Zoe, my mother and mother-in-law, and I decided to stop at the Iron County Record, for a personal message in the photo section of the newspaper.’

“It’s not my generation now. I don’t use an iPhone, but I still like the feel of reading a newspaper, you can cut out the ads or things I want to keep… I guess it’s a personal thing, like wearing a favorite shirt and feeling comfortable in it.” While he enjoys perusing the Wall Street Journal, Petty says you cannot replace those personal stories you find in the local paper—which is now Iron County Today.

“I remember the article about the day a pilot from Nellis Air Force Base flew his jet along Main Street, (breaking the sound barrier) and knocking out storefront windows – or reading about the first murder that took place at a local restaurant,” said Petty of his penchant for interesting news stories. “And everybody in my neighborhood counted on those advertised specials.”

Last month, Petty thought it time to tip his local news carrier, who, as it turns out, was a veteran like himself. And he stopped at the Iron County Today office to express his support for the staff and news operation. Petty teaches a course on the history of medicine at SUU and has fond memories of Cedar City and of the local newspaper. He and Friends of the Cedar City Library have made an effort to include local news for Internet access.

“I was concerned this (a local newspaper) may go away, so I want more people to understand the importance of a community newspaper, to stay informed,” said Petty with a smile, “People need to get engaged in what’s going on. Read the Iron County Today and write those letters to the editor.”
East Elementary

Our first and second grade students at East Elementary have been learning about oral health and dental hygiene. One of the biggest hazards to our smiles is eating or drinking lots of sugary things and not brushing well. Our first graders were able to see how much sugar of sugary things and not brushing well. Our half of our students read 500 or more minutes a day. The students reading one million minutes of reading is coming to Enoch for the month of March. Third, fourth and fifth grades will learn about computer programming from SUU Flock.

Fiddlers Elementary

Mandy Engar chaired Dr. Seuss Week at Fiddler’s Elementary last week. Dr. Seuss Week is an annual celebration of literacy sponsored by the PTA. All things wacky and wonderful were celebrated as the students were challenged to “fall in love” with reading. The week’s finale was a special read-a-thon on Friday.

Congratulations to Kamryn Beck and Hudson Springer on winning the school Spelling Bee!

Parowan Elementary

The history of Parowan and Iron County are important subjects at Parowan Elementary. The students celebrate Parowan’s Birthday on January 13th of each year with special activities, but it doesn’t end there. Once again the third grade at Parowan Elementary completed their unit on Iron County history and Parowan history with their annual “Westward Ho The Wagons Program”. Students learn western songs, square dances and a line dance that could have been a tradition for the pioneers in the 1800’s. Students act out fun plays and learn many written parts. Parowan organized a drama company and band when the town was settled in 1851. Students depict these events in the program. Each year special citizens of the community are selected to be honored for their contributions to the area. This year the class selected Ken and Darlene Rowley of Summit. Mr. and Mrs Rowley have been life long residents of Parowan and Summit and have given much to these and other communities. Thank you Mr. and Mrs. Rowley. The third grade teachers are very proud of their students in doing such a wonderful job!!

South Elementary

5th grade students at South Elementary are learning about current electricity by creating a circuit city. Students construct series and parallel circuits by stripping their own wires, connecting lights, switches, and batteries. Thanks to Morgan Ellsworth for volunteering his expertise in this exciting project.

Cedar Middle

We are very proud of our five CMS bands who just finished their Pops Concerts. They all played very well and their audiences enjoyed the performances. Keep on rockin’! Our sixth-grade students spent six weeks learning about the Ancient Greek culture. Students participated in a city-state community, and they earned drachma (Greek money) for good behavior. After the unit, our students dressed up like their favorite Greek God, and we celebrated with an Agora “farmers market” where students bought and sold food to enjoy at their city-state feasts.

Parowan Middle

This year for the Canyon View Middle School quarterly activity students had the opportunity to choose between two field trips. On one of the field trips students were able to choose to ski, snowboard, or go tubing at Brian Head ski resort. Many students were able to try one of these activities for the first time and enjoy one of the great destinations in our area. The other field trip was based in St. George. Students attended Snow Canyon State Park where they were able to hike and visit some of the park’s attractions. They were also able to visit a local park where they played together and enjoyed some St. George sun. CVMS students had a great couple of days getting outside and enjoying being physically active! A big thanks goes out to all who planned these eventful outings for our students.

Enoch Elementary

Enoch Elementary fourth and fifth grades were able to attend a performance preview of A Midsummer Night’s Dream at Canyon View High School. The play used a sixty-five piece orchestra. Students at Enoch Elementary are studying Midsummer Night’s Dream in our CKLA program, so this play was a great way for the literature to come alive.

STEAM Week will be held at Encho Elementary March 19-23. This is a great way for students to learn hands-on about science, technology, engineering, arts, and math. Watch for information to come home.

Cool2Code after school program is off to a great start. Students are learning to code computer programs and build their own website. Those who have signed up for the program meet every Tuesday from 4:30 p.m. in the library. Finch Robots computer science and programming is coming to Enoch for the month of March. Third, fourth and fifth grades will learn about computer programming from SUU Flock.

Canyon View Middle

6TH GRADE STUDENTS PARTICIPATED in an Agora “Farmer’s Market” while learning about the Ancient Greek culture.
Schools

February at Kimber Academy

February was a busy month at Kimber Academy in getting ready for our musical theater production of “The Secret Garden.” Well cast and well done, the play was performed Friday, February 23, and Saturday the 24th. The students worked really hard and uplifted that day. We tried really hard to be a dancer. I enrolled in classes when I was 5, and wore pink leotards and white tights, creating some serious panty lines. My mom pulled my long hair into a bun so tight I looked constantly surprised. Every week we’d butcher a series of ballet steps while my dance instructor tried not to handcuff us to the barre. She often sipped from her “dance thermos.”

I’d cut up the Arts section of the newspaper, snipping out photos of Ballet West dancers to glue into my scrapbook. I had ballerina paper dolls, ballerina coloring books and ballerina dreams—but were indeed taught great principles and uplifted that day.

Gateway has had such an exciting week celebrating their love of reading inspired by Dr. Seuss. Each day of the week had a Dr. Seuss theme and both students and teachers had the opportunity to dress up! From mustache day, read my shirt day, crazy hair day it has been a week full of entertainment. Every classroom door was also decorated as a book or book theme. Friday was the climax of the week long celebrations where everyone dressed as their favorite story book character. After a school wide parade admiring costumes and decorations we were visited by The Cat in the Hat himself along with Thing 1 and Thing 2 to read their favorite Dr. Seuss books to the assembled students. The school has had a blast celebrating the love they have for reading! Pictures of all the events can be viewed on the schools Facebook page.

Ballet West’s “Nutcracker” a couple of times, to no avail, and after years of practice, I hung up my pointe shoes and succumbed to gravity. I never transformed from gangly giraffe to graceful swan, I never glided across the stage, hoping to lure a young prince to his death. (At least, not as a ballerina.) I never received standing ovations for my role in “Coppelia,” the ballet of a young woman pretending to be a mechanical doll. (Because that makes total sense.)

But. In that alternate universe, I’m soaring, twirling, spinning, leaping as swans or nymphs or any type of ethereal and doomed young women. The purpose of pointe shoes is to give the illusion that ballerinas are weightless wisps, floating gracefully as swans or nymphs or any type of ethereal and doomed young women. In reality, learning to dance en pointe is similar to putting your toes in a vise, then running a marathon. But I didn’t give up. I continued to practice daily in the hope I’d channel Anna Pavlova, the acclaimed Russian ballerina who died at the age of 49, probably from gangrene from her pointe shoes. Because I’m writing this column instead of performing in “Swan Lake,” you can correctly surmise that my ballet career fell flat. I tried out for

Daylight savings and checking

The Rut LESS TRAVELED

by Corey BAUMGARTNER

Daylight Savings Time is upon us, once again, this Sunday. Whether “springing forward” makes you want to kill time, or you think it’s just a waste of time, you’re not alone. You may even wonder if the person who invented such a moment in time had too much time on their hands? Regardless, there are only 24 hours in a day. Don’t worry. It’s true. I personally researched and field-tested this fact.

Since the sun began rising and setting, humans have adjusted their lives accordingly. Then, someone had to go and invent the clock. While not all historians agree on who the inventor was, we can all agree that clocks, not just our monumental ones. Are we surrounded by time, all the time! Nearly everyone owns several time-telling devices, including: clocks in their car, pocket watches, on their wrists, tablets, and laptops, etc.

This makes sense. After all, learning how to tell time was one of our first educational lessons. However, learning to tell time is only one thing. Learning to use it wisely is quite another. Time also takes on new meanings and consequences as we get older. Remember waiting for recess, the bell indicating school was out, and summer vacations? In some ways, aren’t we all still following the same pattern of waiting for lunchbreaks, time-clocks, and maybe a vacation? It appears that time still has both

Make the minutes count, don’t just count the minutes of its hands invested in our lives. Nevertheless, what you do with your current 24 hours is usually up to you.

Workdays often involve eight hours. Religious and sporting events—synonymous for some people—are often three or four hours. In between, we barely get

Precept Study of 2 Thessalonians

A Precept Upon Precept Bible Study will begin at 1 p.m. March 29 in the Cedar City Library in the Park, 303 N 100 East. This will be a six-week study of 2 Thessalonians, So You Won’t Be Deceived About His Coming. The study will end on May 3.

Confusion reigned in the Thessalonian church concerning end times until the Apostle Paul’s letter brought them comfort and clarity. Fully understand for yourself what God says about “the Day of the Lord.”

Precept Upon Precept studies take a straightforward investigative approach to Bible study. The inductive method will lead attendees to discover truth for themselves by using three skills: observation, interpretation and application. These studies consist of homework, discussion, and DVD lecture by Bible teacher Wayne Barber.

Precept Bible studies are non-denominational. Students may call 435-267-2234 for information or to sign up. The cost for the 2 Thessalonians workbook is $14. Students can pick up their materials from 1 p.m. till 3 p.m. Thursday, Mar. 22 at the library.

Information about Precept Ministries International can be found at www.precept.org.

March Memories

“H”ow cruelly sweet are the echoes that start when Memory plays an old tune on your heart”

After reading my last column Trudy Terry came over from Parowan and we spent an hour or so laughing about some of the other fun, strange and weird things we did while we were working at State Bank back in the 70s and 80s, when “Banker’s Hours” really were from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m., and as soon as the door was locked everyone helped everyone get everything done so we all could get out of there and do some of the important (?!) personal things we needed or wanted to do. State Bank has always been the “Hometown Bank” and we were proud to work there, even though at that time the ladies were required to wear dresses and nice shoes and the men wore suits and ties!

Not only did we dabble in the Stock Market, that I wrote about in my last column, we also entered the Big “Canadian” Lottery! I drew up a legal, well kinda legal, contract so that we would all share equally when we won the Million Dollar Lottery.
Trudy took care of the money end of it and we waited a month or so expecting every day to be notified that we had won and our money was on its way...BUT guess what? We waited!!! It never came and we finally admitted we were not going to get rich in the lottery business either! Oh well, time moved on and so did we.

One last little memory I’ll share with you is about a gentleman from Beaver who used his pig farm and buildings as collateral for a loan. Everything was going well for him and we knew he would honor his loan commitment, and then one Spring night things changed.
There was a big fire at his farm...all the pigs died and all the buildings burned down! And for some unknown reason we decided we would have a “pig party” in sympathy for our good customer.
Trudy raised the money to buy two small piglets from the local auction business to use as prizes for the best “pig caller” at our summer party. The day of the party, finally came and Trudy, her husband, Delance, and I went out to the auction to get the pigs. Oh that was fun! I sat on the gate and cheered while Trudy and Delance ran around the ring trying to catch those slippery little critters. It took more time than we had planned on but they finally caught them.
The party was held up at Wood’s Ranch and and after eating a really good dinner the pig calling contest was opened to all who wanted to try, and the winners were Wouldn’t life be dull and colorless without memories and friends!

John Westwood (now our State Rep) and Eric Schmutz, now head honcho at State Bank. Both men are well respected not only in Cedar but around the state as well, and I have no idea what happened to those little pigs they won but I can guess and we were never invited to join them for dinner. However we continued to have a summer “Pig Party” for a lot of years after that first one. Wouldn’t life be dull and colorless without memories and friends!!

My favorite holiday is coming up really soon and if I don’t get another column written by the 17th, St Patrick’s Day, I’ll probably be kicked out of the Tierney/Rember Clan for good!

“The Wax family was known for going above and beyond to care for their customers, and many people in the Utah communities still tell stories of their extraordinary customer service,” according to the Waxie Sanitary Supply website. “This is where our story begins.”

During The Great Depression, dancing helped raise the spirits of Wayne County residents as one of the more affordable amusements.
Wayne County High School teacher Sam Chidester organized the Chidester Orchestra in 1920 that would go on to perform 9,050 concerts and dances. The youth of Wayne County always knew where a dance was, and in Loa, they traveled to the Loa Co-op or old Billings Store to dance the polka, schottische, quadrille and Danish waltz. Locally accomplished performers such as Enoch Sorenson and Nettie Brian were crowd favorites, and dancers could move between the two floors on the same night for the price of one ticket.

Wayne County government officials also leased part of the building from 1912-1940 until the Wayne County Courthouse was constructed.
The Wax’s moved to Aurora in 1940 and sold the Loa Co-op to the Utah Poultry Association. Myrtus Adams and Virgil White maintained offices in the back of the building while candling eggs in the basement. In 1952, the building was sold to the Wayne County Poultry Association.

Dixie and Anne Leavitt purchased the historic building in 1979 and established the current Road Creek Inn. The hotel was completely renovated in 2012, and today, with 15 guest rooms, large gathering areas, and a full kitchen, Road Creek Inn is perfect for educational programs, family reunions, weddings, youth camps and conferences. Now more than 100 years old, Road Creek Inn offers state-of-the-art amenities such as Internet access, a sauna for relaxing after a day of hiking, in-room microwaves and refrigerators, standard king and queen rooms and two deluxe suites with three king-sized beds.

SUU’s Capitol Reef field station is now open to the community for rental, and to SUU student groups.
This beautiful, quaint facility is the perfect getaway surrounded by several historic Mormon pioneer towns and buildings, national parks, lakes, Native American ruins and protected forest lands, and a great environment for student clubs and large groups to get away to another of Utah’s phenomenal outdoor activities.
The acquisition of the historic Road
Creek Inn hotel, located at 98 South
Main Street, in Loa, further solidifies Southern Utah University’s title as the official “University of the Parks.”

Diane Cooley Ashdown

Diane Cooley Ashdown, beloved wife, mother, grandmother, great grandmother and sister returned to her heavenly home on February 1, 2018. Diane was born August 20, 1938 in Cedar City and is the eldest child of Hazen Jelle Cooley and Phyllis Emma Johanson Cooley. She attended elementary school in Cedar City and eventually earned her Associates Degree from College of Southern Utah (then USU-C) in 1958. In her early years, she became a gifted pianist and played for numerous church and social functions; she shared her musical talents with many over the course of her life.

Diane was married to Laurence Ashdown, also of Cedar City, in the St. George LDS Temple on April 19, 1958, and they eventually became the parents of five children: Greg (Robyn), Boyd (Kristin), Nola Erickson (Reed), Neil (Andrea) and Clay (Laurel). Laurence served for many years as ordinance workers in the St. George Temple, and in some capacities over his life as ward organist, choir accompanist, Young Women’s leader or in the Relief Society. He loved the youth — and especially teenagers — and always found ways to serve and teach them. For many years, she taught piano lessons every afternoon in her home. Once her children were old enough to be in school all day, she spent as much time with them as possible, supporting their talents and many leadership and church callings. Remarkable ability to bring out the best in those she worked with, and held in her heart best. She was proud of her grandchildren and great-grandchildren; her brother Cameron Johnson in Salt Lake City on December 28, 1956. Gary grew up on the family’s farm in southern Utah and was a veteran of the Vietnam conflict. Shortly after returning from military service, he moved to Mesa, Arizona. He lived in the Mesa area the remainder of his life, most recently residing in Queen Creek, Arizona.

Kendall was proceeded in death by his parents, Wayne and Mabel, and his loving companion of over 30 years, Maxine Salter. Kendall lived in Arizona and was a veteran of the Vietnam conflict.

Kendall is survived by his sisters, Marilee Bradley and Vickie McGuffie. No memorial donations are requested. Condolences may be sent to www.sumortuary.com

Margaret Knight

Our beloved mother, grandmother, great-grandmother, and sister, Sarah Margaret Knight, born December 5, 1928, died peacefully at her home in Phoenix, Arizona on March 1, 2018.

Margaret was born in Salt Lake City, to Albert and Ada Knight, and was the second of nine children. She grew up in Parowan, Utah and attended Dixie College in St. George, Utah. She married Howard David Knight in Cedar City on September 26, 1940, during WW II. Their daughter Linda was born while Howard was overseas in New Georgia and the Philippines. Four more children were added after her return, William Howard, Ruth Anne, Christine and Rosalie.

Margaret was an active member of the St. George Stake, serving in many capacities, including missions served with her husband in Ohio. She is survived by two of her children, Ruth Lowell (Bob) and Rose Zerleg, and 12 grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren. She is preceded in death by her parents, four siblings, her husband and three children, Linda, Christine and William.

Margaret arrived in Phoenix, Arizona on March 10, 2018 at 11 a.m., at the Phoenix 5 Ward Chapel (595 W 100, Phoenix, UT). Friends and family are invited to attend a viewing prior to the service from 9:30 – 10:30 a.m., again at the Phoenix 5 Ward at 11 a.m., at the Parowan Stake Center, or at 11 a.m. at the Parowan 5 Ward Chapel (395 W 100, Parowan, UT). Friends and family are invited to attend a viewing prior to the service from 9:30 – 10:30 a.m., again at the Phoenix 5 Ward at 11 a.m., at the Parowan Stake Center, or at 11 a.m. at the Parowan 5 Ward Chapel (395 W 100, Parowan, UT).

Edward Cramer

Edward “Ed” Cramer, 93, passed away Jan. 5, 2018, at home. Born March 5, 1924, son of Christopher John and Sarah Ann (Lambing). Ed was a member of the Elks Lodge in Cedar City and a WWII Veteran who served as a Submarine Torpedomen’s Mate 2nd Class.

Ed received his training at the Naval Submarine Base, New London, Conn., then went on to serve on several different submarines and was involved in five successful war patrols. He was injured in the battle of the Solomon’s. He also served as security for the launching of the first nuclear submarine “SSN Nautilus.” Ed also worked many years in Las Vegas as a few casinos but enjoyed the Troop’s life very much.

While Ed had a gunlock, he was considered a good neighbor and friend. He joined in the youth interest programs in the community and was always ready to give a helping hand. He would find projects for the young men and women at his community to help fund their trip to California. He provided books that many of these children still have today. He loved the annual Gunlock rodeo and in his younger days loved to grow a garden and spend as much time with them as possible, supporting their talents and activities. Throughout her life she advocated for those who could not advocate for themselves and created opportunities to serve and put up those around her. She had a remarkable sense of humor, and reminded those she loved to find joy in simple things. She was beloved by many, and created a legacy of service and love that will carry on for generations to come.

She was preceded in death by her father, Mark V. Bruhn, and her mother, Rama Laretta Yardley Bruhn. She is survived by her husband, Robert K. Bruhn, her children, Thomas Sean (Kathy) Bruhn, Holly Jan (Gary) Van Dusen, and Catherine Anne Bruhn (Christopher) Uchimoto, and grandchildren, Marisa, Jadas, Tessa, and Keira Bruhn, Hunter, Kylie, Jake, Lexi, and Brynlee Hafen, and Sophia Uchimoto. Flippin’ Birds fall at home to No. 11 Washington

CEDAR CITY — The Southern Utah gymnastics team hosted the No. 11 Washington Huskies Saturday afternoon for their final home meet of the 2018 regular season, finishing with a combined team score of 196.075.

"It was amazing the way the team was able to put it together out there. I was so proud of them," head coach Scotty Bauman said. "We counted a fall and we still scored a 196. I saw a strength in our team that I’ve needed to see all year long. I can’t say enough about our two all-arounders Karen and Autumn who went out there and killed it for us today."

The Thunderbirds opened on vault where Molly Jozwiakowski hit a new career-high with a 9.900. Autumn Jorgensen and Karen Gonzalez each scored a 9.850 and Madison McBride scored a 9.750. As a team, Southern Utah earned a combined event score of 48.925. Kirsten Yee and Becky Rozsa were the top scorers for the Thunderbirds on bars. Yee scored a season-high 9.925, just shy of her career-high and program record. Rozsa set a new career-high with a 9.900. Madison Howlett matched her career-high with a 9.875 and Madison McBride scored a 9.800. Gonzalez and Jorgensen rounded out the scoring with a 9.775 each. Harvick dominates track, wins second straight race

by Tom ZULEWSKI
Iron County Today

LAS VEGAS — In the world of NASCAR, drivers have had stretches of dominance from week to week. For the second week in a row, Kevin Harvick took domination on the race track to the next level.

The 42-year-old driver for Stewart-Haas Racing led 214 of 267 laps and won the Pennzoil 400 on March 4 at Las Vegas Motor Speedway by nearly three seconds over runner-up Kyle Busch.

Harvick was so good in his No. 4 Jimmy John’s Ford, only nine cars finished on the lead lap.

“It’s been a lot of great years with a lot of great race teams, people and situations,” said Harvick, who won his 39th career Cup race and his 100th across the three national series. “You’ve won some you should, and you’ve won some you shouldn’t. When you tag the triple-digit number to it, it lets you realize you’ve been fortunate to accomplish a lot of the tasks required for success that much easier to accomplish.

“You never know going into a season if it’s going to be good or bad, whether you’re behind, ahead, or whatever the case may be,” Childers said. “I figured we would come here and really see what we had. I was impressed from the first lap he made on Friday.”

Harvick had a full share of good times on the 1.5-mile oval as he led 147 of the first 163 laps. Busch had issues with his car early, but knew the mission of catching the 4 car was next to impossible.

Lady Reds fall in 4A quarterfinals

by Tom ZULEWSKI
Iron County Today

The Cedar Lady Reds were able to keep pace with the Salem Hills Skyhawks throughout the first half of their matchup in the 4A girls basketball state quarterfinals. When the second half began, the Lady Reds were able to stay close and trailed only 25-23 at the half.

When Salem Hills opened the third quarter with a 7-2 run, they were able to extend the lead to 28-25. The Skyhawks improved to 22-1 on the season.

Cedar had to play without the services of leading scorer Japrix Weaver and reserve Emma Brower, who both suffered injuries in practice Feb. 27. Despite the setback, the Lady Reds were able to stay close and trailed only 25-23 at the half.

While the fickle fans may cry foul, history has shown dominant cars don’t always win. In 2010, Jeff Gordon led 219 laps, but got snookered by Jimmie Johnson’s four-tire pit stop. Johnson won the race and Gordon finished third.

As LVMS heads toward Round 2 of tripleheader action in September, the stakes will be even bigger with the start of the playoffs. Bigger and better will coexist just fine.

While the fickle fans may cry foul, history has shown dominant cars don’t always win.

For Vegas, the more racing, the merrier

After all the talk and the promises that seemed to border on bluster, Las Vegas Motor Speedway finally had the spotlight turned on for the first of two tripleheader weekends of racing, from Camping World trucks to XFINITY to the Monster Energy Cup Series.

When all was put to bed Sunday night, the crew and the track did good. The truck series stepped on the 1.5-mile oval stage first Friday night for the Stratosphere 200. Following years where the racing stood by itself in the fall, the debut gave hometown hero Kyle Busch his first chance to race in a truck since 2001, when he was just 16 years old.

If you know Busch’s history, he wins and does it often to the lament of those who aren’t part of his fan base. This time, Busch didn’t run off and hide from the field, but still won the inaugural spring NCWTS race at the track.

Kyle led 55 of the 134 laps, but didn’t win either of the first two stages. He fought off series regulars Brett Moffitt and Johnny Sauter in addition to lap traffic that looked like it was going for a Sunday drive at a snail’s pace.

The trophy Busch earned was a scale replica of the hotel that served as the title sponsor, and it was the appropriate symbol of the work he put into earning his 50th trucks victory, one short of tying Hall of Fame Ron Hornaday atop the career win list.

The dream of the tripleheader sweep for Busch died in the Boyd Gaming 300 on Saturday. He qualified fifth, but was never able to challenge the leaders and ended up 14th.

Kyle Larson, another Cup series regular, held off Christopher Bell in another terrific duel to the finish and won the race. Bell got close to Larson’s back bumper a few times in the closing laps, but couldn’t complete a pass.

Larson, who raced on dirt with Bell at the popular Chili Bowl race held in the off-season, led 142 of the 200 laps. And it wasn’t dull in the least. Which brings us to the big show that was held Sunday, the Pennzoil 400. It was a simple case of total domination for Kevin Harvick.

Harvick won for the second time in the last four races at LVMS, and this one wasn’t close. The 2014 Cup champion set a new track standard with 214 laps led and only nine cars finished on the lead lap.

by SUU ATHLETICS STRATEGIC COMMUNICATION For Iron County Today

CEDAR CITY — With the indoor season on its last leg, two men will represent Southern Utah’s track and field team at the NCAA Indoor National Championships. Kasey Knevelbaard and Mike Tate have qualified and will be competing in College Station, Texas this Friday and Saturday.

This is the first time since 2012 that a male athlete from Southern Utah has qualified for the NCAA Indoor National Championships, and the first time that more than one student-athlete from the institution has qualified in the same year.

Both Knevelbaard and Tate qualified for NCAA West Regionals last outdoor season, and both were a major contributor for the Thunderbirds during the cross country season as the T-Birds sat atop the NCAA standings all season long.

Knevelbaard qualified for the mile while Tate qualified in the 3,000-meter and the 5,000-meter.

Kasey Knevelbaard

Knevelbaard is a junior from Caruthers, California. This season, he has brought the thunder in all of the events he has competed in. Knevelbaard is currently ranked No. 5 in the NCAA in the Mile, and has the third fastest time amongst those competing in College Station.

At the Mountain T’s Invitational at NAU, Knevelbaard had a performance like no other in the mile. He ran a time of 3:55.96 earning the top spot in school history indoors. At the time that mark put Knevelbaard second in Big Sky history and third in SUU history with a mark of 1:50.33, and the third-fastest 3,000-meter time with a 7:54.85.

Knevelbaard also competed in the Big Sky Championship where he took two gold medals and a bronze medal. He landed the gold when he competed in the 5,000-meter, entering the event as one of the favorites in the event.

At the Big Sky Indoor Championships, Tate claimed a silver medal in the 5,000-meter, with a time of 14:36.38. That process starts with Spring ball.

Mike Tate

Tate runs distance as a senior at SUU from Antigonish, Nova Scotia. As his career at SUU is coming to a close, he has proven to be one of the best athletes the track and field team has seen.

Tate is currently ranked No. 1 in the entire NCAA in the 5,000-meter, entering the event as one of the favorites in the event. At the Big Sky Indoor Championships, Tate claimed a silver medal in the 5,000-meter with a time of 14:36.38. The following day of competition, he claimed the title of Big Sky Champion when he ran in the 3,000-meter with a time of 8:30.84.

Tate also set the SUU indoor record for the 5,000-meter with a time of 13:37.33. Cam Levins was the previous record holder in the 5K with a time of 13:38.12.

Tate currently holds second place in the school records in the 3,000-meter with a time of 7:51.71. The Canadian product will have one more season of eligibility for the Thunderbirds after indoor nationals, as he will be able to run outdoors for the Thunderbirds to close out his collegiate career in 2018.
