Due to the unpredictable nature of the Coronavirus, many events throughout our Iron County communities, including the closures of schools and churches, has caused difficulty, uncertainty and have caused concern and inconvenience. ### Intermountain Healthcare announces new Visitor Restriction Policy to ensure safety of patients, caregivers and community

from Lance MADIGAN

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

Intermountain Healthcare is taking precautions to keep patients, caregivers, and the community safe with new visitor restriction policies at all of its hospitals, clinics, and InstaCares in Utah and Idaho.

The new visitation policy is modeled from guidelines from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and Utah Department of Health.

The policy, which went into effect on Monday, March 9, 2020, at all Intermountain Healthcare hospitals, clinics, InstaCares, and physician offices, includes:

- » If you are sick, please do not visit or accompany a patient.
- » Do not enter the facility except to seek care for yourself.
- » Only two visitors or companions of a patient may visit at a time and we strongly discourage any visitors or companions under the age of 18.
- » There will be no visitors allowed to patients who have confirmed or possibly have COVID-19 (novel coronavirus).
- » Please wash your hands or use alcohol sanitizer before and after leaving a patient room, exam room and a facility.
- » Speak with a nurse or receptionist about exceptions and special circumstances.

As a reminder, if you have any of the following symptoms or criteria of COVID-19: fever, cough, and/or shortness of breath; recent close contact with a COVID-19 patient; or travel to an area where it is active, you may have been exposed to COVID-19.

You're asked to call ahead before you come into an Intermountain facility for care or call Intermountain Connect Care (intermountainconnectcare.org) for a virtual visit and assessment.

Red Cross urges healthy individuals to give blood amid coronavirus concerns

from Cynthia DE LA TORRE

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

BEAVER, Utah — The American Red Cross strongly urges healthy, eligible individuals who are feeling well to give blood or platelets to help maintain a sufficient blood supply and prevent shortages as concerns about the outbreak of coronavirus disease

2019, or COVID-19, rise in the U.S.

Cold and flu season has already impacted the nation's ability to maintain its blood supply. As the number of coronavirus cases grows in the U.S., the number of people eligible to give blood for patients in need could decrease further.

"We're asking the American people to help keep the blood supply stable during this challenging time. As communities across the country prepare for this public health emergency, it's critical that plans include a readily available blood supply for hospital patients," said Chris Hrouda, president, Red Cross Blood Services. "As fears of coronavirus rise, low donor participation could harm blood availability at hospitals, and the last thing a patient should worry about is whether lifesaving blood will be on the shelf when they need it most."

Please make an appointment to donate blood now by using the Red Cross Blood Donor App, visiting RedCrossBlood.org, calling 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767) or enabling the Blood Donor Skill on any Alexa Echo device. Blood donors with type O blood and platelet donors are especially needed right now.

As the situation evolves, the Red Cross will continue to evaluate all emerging risks in collaboration with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and industry partners to determine if additional intervention strategies are needed. Together, we stand ready to keep the American public informed and prepared.

To donate blood, individuals need to bring a blood donor card or driver's license or two other forms of identification that are required at check-in. Individuals who are 17 years of age in most states (16 with parental consent where allowed by state law), weigh at least 110 pounds and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. High school students and other donors 18 years of age and younger also must meet certain height and weight requirements.

Brian Head Resort currently to remain open to the public

from Mark WILDER

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

As of March 15, 2020, Brian Head Resort will remain open to the public. We are monitoring the situation very closely, and following the most current guidance from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and other federal, state, and local health authorities. There are currently no known active cases of the Coronavirus (COVID-19) in Iron County, Utah, where Brian Head Resort is located; however, given the ever evolving and rapidly changing COVID-19 environment, there can be no assurance that the situation will not change, and we could be required to suspend or close operations for the season with little or no advance notice. If we are required to suspend or close operations, all pre-purchased lift tickets, equipment rentals, Winter Sports School lessons and other advance reservations will be 100% refunded.

Following guidance from the health authorities, we are recommending that our guests and employees take the following routine precautions:

- » Avoid riding chairlifts with others who are not part of your group.
- » Wash your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds. If soap and water are not available, use a 60% or greater alcohol-based hand sanitizer.
- » Avoid touching your eyes, nose and mouth with unwashed hands.
- » Avoid close contact with people who are sick.
- » When you sneeze or cough, cover your mouth and nose with a tissue, or do so with your elbow. Dispose of the tissue, and immediately wash your hands.
- » As much as possible, keep six feet of separation between yourself and others to reduce the potential spread of the infection.
- » Most important, if you experience flu symptoms or any serious infection or virus, stay home to avoid exposing others.

The health and safety of our guests and employees is very important to us, and we will continue to take the necessary steps and precautions including, among others:

Increased frequency of disinfecting and cleaning public restrooms and high-touch indoor areas such as bathrooms, dining locations, kitchen surfaces, door handles, tables, lift ticket, lesson and rental counters, and public computer workstations.

As available, hand sanitizer will be provided throughout our facilities in high-traffic locations.

Employees who appear symptomatic have been asked to stay home.

We remain cautiously optimistic, and believe this is a particularly great time to be outdoors in the fresh, clean mountain air of Southern Utah and enjoying the uncrowded slopes at Brian Head Resort. With good snowpack and recent snowfall, we are expecting excellent spring skiing conditions.

Message regarding the Utah Summer Games

from Pace J. CLARKE

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

Dear Coaches, Athletes and Parents,

We, as a staff, wanted to reach out to you with an update on how the Coronavirus (COVID-19) will affect the Larry H. Miller Utah Summer Games. In response to Governor Gary Herbert's prohibiting gatherings of more than 100 people, we are suspending all events effective immediately and running through April 23, 2020.

The state's response to COVID-19 is fluid but we will comply with all orders issued.

The Larry H. Miller Utah Summer Games aren't the only sporting event impacted by the spread of the Coronavirus. The NBA, MLB, MLS, NHL, NCAA, and temporary suspension with the Utah High School Activities Association have all been impacted by this national emergency.

As for events scheduled in May and June, it is too early to predict the effects and timeline of COVID-19. We will do our best to stay informed on this matter and will communicate with you as we receive additional information. It is our intention to follow the direction we receive from our state officials and local administrators. We encourage all to do their part in implementing best practices issued by the CDC.

At this time, we are planning to operate at full capacity for all events scheduled for May and June. We encourage you to register online at <https://larryhmillerrutahsummer-games.org/>. In the event that the suspension of events does affect our competition season, we will give all registrants a full refund. Again, we encourage you to visit our website and register for this year's Games.

The health, safety, and well-being of everyone on our campus and community is our priority at all times. The coronavirus (COVID-19) is already proving to be an unprecedented disruption and this extraordinary move is being made to try and prevent the spread of the coronavirus throughout SUU, Cedar City, and Utah. With the rapidly evolving nature of the disease, the landscape is continually shifting, and we will do our best to communicate with you as decisions are being made.

We are working closely with Southern Utah University and for the latest information about COVID-19 and SUU visit go.suu.edu/coronavirus.

Thank you for your patience and for supporting the Larry H. Miller Utah Summer Games.

Pace J. Clarke, Executive Director

COVID-19 update from So. Utah University

from President Scott L. WYATT

SOUTHERN UTAH UNIVERSITY

To our alumni community,

This has been a difficult decision, to say the least. But after consulting with leaders and public health experts, it has become clear to us that this is the right thing to do for our university and our community. As always, thank you for your support.

At the direction of Governor Gary Herbert, Southern Utah University will join the seven other institutions of the Utah System of Higher Education (USHE) and temporarily move from face-to-face courses to online instruction due to the worldwide impact of COVID-19.

The health, safety, and well-being of everyone on our campus and community is our relentless priority at all times. The coronavirus (COVID-19) is already proving to be an unprecedented disruption and this extraordinary move is being made to try and prevent the spread of the coronavirus throughout SUU, Cedar City, and Utah. With the rapidly evolving nature of the disease, the landscape is continually shifting, and we will do our best to communicate with you as decisions are being made.

The most important news:

- » Starting Monday, March 23 we will be moving classes online through April 23. Given the changing nature of the situation, we may re-examine the situation as warranted.

Panic is no panacea

The opinions stated in this article are solely those of the author and not of Iron County Today.

Last week we saw the world change. What started off as a joke about people hoarding toilet paper became a wildfire careening through the lives of American families.

A 33% drop in the stock market and retirement savings effectively wiped out from those who sold in the panic... Disneyland closed...Spring training and pro basketball suspended games... Universities closed campuses along with some public schools...Airline flights canceled with a corresponding precipitous drop in hotel reservations... Restaurant sales plummeted by 50% at many locations...Little league baseball tryouts were halted.

What is the definition of a pandemic? It's City Creek Mall closing for a day after reports that one person – yes, just one person with the virus – had walked through the vast area and maybe even shopped at one of its stores.

Yes, the world changed. But the world has been changing for some time, make the "cure" for Covid-19 even harsher for many parents.

Even before the virus began sweeping through the U.S., a Utah legislator got a first-hand scolding from constituents about the changing world. When a proposal for state funding of school breakfast for low-income students came before his committee, this southern Utah gentleman grumbled that parents should raise their own children the same way he and his wife had. "My mother fixed my breakfast and my wife fixed my kids' breakfast," he said.

As a columnist and active Republican Holly Richardson responded, "How deep is his privilege and entitlement when he cannot think of a single 'acceptable' reason that a mom might not be able to fix breakfast in the morning?" The irony, she pointed out, was that the man's legislative district had the highest rate of food insecurity in the entire state with nearly one in four children not knowing when the next meal would be served.

And Covid-19 hits the poor the hardest. It's fine for a government official to suggest that employees work remotely from home. That's great for the high-paid executive, but impossible for the hotel maid, the warehouse worker, or the restaurant server. And how about the single mother who works two jobs, one of them as a breakfast cook at a local café? (Oh, she's also the mom who had to punch-in at 5 a.m. and couldn't stay home to cook breakfast for her children who are also going to be home alone if/when the schools close?)

When Utahns panic and refuse to leave their homes to shop, dine, go to a movie, or travel, their actions impact those on the lower income tier. Business owners take a hit on their 401ks whereas those on the bottom – many working more than one job to keep a roof over their heads – are faced with skipping meals or falling behind on their monthly rent. The low-paid furloughed worker is also most likely to be among the 55% of Utah workers whose employers do not grant paid sick leave. These workers get stuck from both ends.

We've all been told not to yell "fire" in a crowded theater. We should take necessary precautions to stay healthy; as Gov. Gary Herbert said, "We have to rely on each other." And panicking – shutting yourself off from others – only exacerbates the problem.

OPINION

From the Editor

Please don't panic

When it comes to our health and the health of our loved ones are there any lengths we wouldn't go to ensure everyone's wellbeing? Probably not. Now, with the possible invasion of the Coronavirus in Utah and here in Iron County, businesses, schools and churches have answered the call to help prevent, or at least slow the spread of COVID-19. Considering the unpredictability of this new strain, it has definitely caused a strain on our economy, education and the evangelical components of our community. Nevertheless, we can have confidence that this too shall pass.

While the validity of this virus is a concern, we need not let its tenacity steal our vivacity. Panic is not the appropriate panacea during this pandemic—it only leads to fear and desperation, which can become pandemics in and of themselves.

COREY BAUMGARTNER
MANAGING EDITOR

As we wisely increase precautions in preparation for/against this viral arrival, when all is said and done, I think the question me must ask ourselves moving forward is, do we need pandemics to provoke us into spending more time with loved ones, or appreciating the time spent with friends and other family members?

In the end, the best way to fight any pandemic is not to panic, but band together, stick to our guns and not huddle in fear, waiting for the cure, but continue to love, appreciate and enjoy every day we are given to the fullest, no matter what.

Today America is facing unprecedented challenges from a global pandemic and a significant economic downturn. The fear and anxiety that we feel as a nation is warranted, but also enflamed by a lack of action and clarity from our elected officials. The speech that President Trump gave last night did little to assuage our fears. His address was light on facts, exact numbers, and plans, besides a travel ban that would have been much more effective several weeks ago. While the CDC and our military work tirelessly to combat this virus around the world our president worries about the optics of the stock market crash and obsesses over keeping the number of reported COVID-19 patients low.

There was no sympathy offered to the individuals and their families – either here or abroad – being treated for COVID-19. Thousands of deaths have already occurred and it is highly likely that the number will continue to rise. The lack of empathy offered by President Trump does little to calm the rising anxiety of the American people. The general public needs answers rapidly. What is being done to ensure that all Americans will have access to COVID-19 tests? Will these tests be available for all Americans, insured and uninsured alike? Is the government and the healthcare system prepared to handle the massive volume of patients that may soon need care? Factual and timely updates from the government are crucial in order for us to make responsible decisions. In a crisis like this, more than ever, the truth matters.

- » Due to the developing nature of COVID-19, students may want to consider staying in Cedar City during spring break and for those that do travel, students are encouraged to return to Cedar City after spring break.
- » In the spirit of keeping students and the community healthy, effective immediately, the University will restrict any event on campus and large gatherings will be postponed, canceled, or offered virtually. Commencement is currently scheduled for April 24 and we expect it will take place as scheduled.

We have confidence in our technical and personnel capabilities to provide for continuity of our mission. We will not cancel classes this semester or the summer semester. ## Update from Southern Utah Sports Academy

To our valued SUSA athletes and families

In an effort to take proactive steps to stop the potential spread of COVID-19, Governor Gary Herbert announced the following recommendations that we feel apply to our facility:

- » Limit mass gatherings to less than 100, including church meetings, concerts, and conferences for the next two weeks beginning Monday, March 16. This does not apply to schools or businesses.
- » Those over the age of 60 and those with compromised immune systems should avoid gatherings of more than 20 people.
- » If you are sick, stay home. If you can work from home, do so.

Local health departments are in charge of the assessments of local schools.

After careful consideration, Southern Utah Sports Academy will remain open until further notice. We are doing everything we can to ensure our athletes and staff are safe from all viruses and illnesses being spread, by disinfecting the facility on a regular basis, specifically in high traffic areas. We will use this time to focus on skill development, rather than intense close contact game play.

Please help us by doing your part. Please stay home if you are not feeling well, if you have travelled in the last few weeks, or if you know you have potentially been exposed to any type of illness. Please wash your hands or use hand sanitizer frequently while handling equipment at the gym. We encourage you to bring plenty of water with you, and to avoid drinking from the water fountain during this time period.

Our top priority is the health and safety of our customers, employees, and community. We are extremely hopeful that this current health concern will have minimal impact on our community. We will continue to seek guidance from our state and local health departments, and will send updates on any changes moving forward.

We appreciate your continued support!

Sincerely,
Southern Utah Sports Academy Management

50th Anniversary Vietnam War Commemorative event postponed

from Valerie KING

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

As news coverage on COVID-19 continues to dominate and grip our nation, it should come as no surprise that the 50th Anniversary Vietnam War commemorative event sponsored by DAR Color Country Chapter and hosted by Southern Utah Veterans Home (SUVH) this coming March 27th has been POSTPONED to a later date. An estimated four to five hundred were expected to attend the event, which in itself posed too much of a public health risk to both attendees and the SUVH residents, many of whom are in the at-risk age group. This decision was reached days before CDC published its recent guidelines to dissuade public gatherings of 100 or more, which has since been further reduced to 50 or more.

In a statement released by the SUVH administration "We feel that in light of the current situation it is prudent to postpone this event and look forward to seeing this rescheduled in the future". DAR Color Country Chapter leadership jointly concurred with the postponement measure. Valerie King, regent of Color Country Chapter, would like to point out that this is a postponement and not a cancellation; and that a new date will be announced at a later date.

To date, over 175 Vietnam veterans pre-registered for the March event. Many of these individuals have already been notified and the balance will hear soon from the chapter as they work through the process. For those who did not pre-register but are interested in the future event that will most likely occur in the fall of 2020, note that names are still being collected by Color Country Chapter. If you served in the military between Nov 1, 1955 and May 15, 1975 (in-country, in-theater or stationed elsewhere during this time period), simply send your name, branch of service and rank at the end of your service period to colorcountrychapter@gmail.com.

CEDAR CITY MAYOR MAKES COMMITMENT TO THE ICE

by Richard CROMMIE

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

The vote to move forward with plans to build the multipurpose recreation center passed 5 to 0 at the Cedar City council meeting on March 11th, 2020. Architect Mark Wilson's work commenced immediately following the vote to have the building plans and financial costs ready for the new gym that will be attached to the Aquatic Center in Cedar City. The contract between Cedar City and the architect states that the plans for the multipurpose rec. center must be completed by the end of July.

Although the vote passed to begin the processes, the theme of the council meeting was one of unity and community. Mayor Maile Wilson Edwards made a commitment to the patrons of The Glacier ice rink that the city and city council will do what they can to ensure that the ice rink has a place to build their new and permanent facility. Already looking into city owned property in the downtown Cedar City area, the mayor mentioned an ideal spot located across the street from the city library, where the annual fair is currently held.

The city would help do the dirty work, leveling the land and running electricity along with other utilities to the location, in hopes of alleviating some of the financial cost for the ice rink. Not only will this appease the ice goers of Iron County, but it could bring in needed winter revenue for the businesses of downtown Cedar City.

Once architectural plans are finalized by the end of July, it is up to Cedar City and the council to determine when construction begins for the new gym atop of Royal Hunt Drive.

Many supporters of the ice rink showed up to the Cedar City council, as they did the prior week in matching blue clothing but this week, however, many of them just wanted a solution. There were no raised voices, no tears, and no arguing, just understanding that the only way to find a resolution was to work as a community with the Cedar City council.

“We are moving forward in good faith,” continued councilman R. Scott Phillips, “that we are to work to find a solution to the relocation of The Glacier ice rink.”

The Glacier ice rink has served out its last season at its current location (The Aquatic Center). The mayor of Cedar City is sure that with the help of the Staheli family, the council members and others, that they will be able to secure a permanent location for the ice of Iron County.

Utah Legislative Update

Dear Friends and Neighbors,

We concluded our business this week and it certainly felt like the time flew by. During the 2020 General Legislative Session we passed nearly 500 bills. Many of these were clean up bills, meaning minor words or definitions were changed.

I want to thank my two stellar interns, Evan and Keith, for their great work this session!

I will send out a session recap highlighting many of the top issues we worked on this session next week, but for this week, here are the highlights from week 7:

Budget

We passed our “bill of bills”, our big budget bill, on the last night of the session as per usual. I’m happy to report that this year we are appropriating $255 million for K-12 education enrollment growth and a 6% WPU funding increase. Education is a top priority for us and so this was an easy decision to make.

We are a state that takes pride in preparedness and so we have also allocated $26 million in one-time funding and $132 million in ongoing funds to our rainy-days funds.

This budget puts $17.9 million ongoing and $5.9 million one-time monies for mental health services for crisis situations. We are also putting $7.3 million one-time in for air quality programs.

Education Funding Proposal

We passed legislation that will protect, stabilize and expand K-12 public education funding in our state. The two bills comprising the proposal, S.J.R. 9 and H.B. 357, support services for children and individuals with disabilities. Implementation of the proposal is subject to voter approval in the November 2020 general election.

S.J.R. 9, Proposal to Amend Utah Constitution - Use of Tax Revenue, passed the Legislature, which would extend the use of income tax revenue to fund critical programs for children and for individuals with disabilities.

H.B. 357, Public Education Funding Stabilization, will protect, stabilize and grow Utah’s education funding. This bill moves the Minimum School Program funding (which includes WPU—the weighted pupil unit) to a constitutionally protected account for K-12 education. It will also automatically adjust education funding for enrollment growth and inflation. In addition, this establishes a reserve to meet educational funding commitments during economic downturns.

If approved by voters in the November 2020 election, the proposal would amend the Utah Constitution to allow the use of some income tax revenue to support services for children and for individuals with disabilities, including social services that supplement educational needs and support students physical and mental health.

Also, $75 million will be placed in the education stabilization account, and approximately $3.6 billion of K-12 education funding will be moved to the Uniform School Fund, which is constitutionally dedicated to K-12 education.

The enactment of H.B. 357 is based on a constitutional amendment, which is subject to voter approval in the 2020 general election. S.J.R. 9 will be on the ballot this November.

Start Smart Utah Breakfast Program

We want to see every student succeed. Though, we know that some Utah students face significant barriers, including not getting enough to eat daily. To help address this need, we passed H.B. 222, Start Smart Utah Breakfast Program. It creates a program to expand school breakfast access in public schools. While this bill initially failed in committee, it was reconsidered a week later with a new substitute and then passed out of the Senate committee unanimously with a favorable recommendation. This bill passed through the Legislature and will be sent to the governor for his consideration.

Drug Price Reform

One of the areas I focused on this session was increasing transparency in drug pricing. SB 138 prohibit middlemen, called Pharmacy Benefit Managers, from taking more than their fair share from rural clinics that sell drugs at discounted prices. SB 157 allows people to donate expensive, used drugs to pharmacies so that those who cannot afford the drugs can access them. The drugs must be sealed and in manufactured packaging to be accepted. Both bills passed.

Newborn Safe Haven Amendments

In the event a mother cannot care for her child, Safe Haven Laws allow a new mother to give her child to a hospital, police station, or fire station with no questions asked. HB 97 changed the definition of a newborn child from 72 hours old to 30 days old. This change provided mothers who feel they cannot adequately provide for a child a larger window to give the infant to those who can care for it. The bill also provided funding for advertising to increase awareness of this program.

Coronavirus Update

The Legislature has allocated over $20 million to bolster state and local efforts to prevent the spread of COVID-19. Funding includes targeted programs to protect Utah’s seniors, who are particularly susceptible to the virus. Additionally, Utah will have access to over $6 million from the federal government.

On March 12, state leaders, Utah Coronavirus Task Force representatives and health department officials jointly announced the implementation of precautionary measures across the state to help slow the spread of novel coronavirus:

RECOMMENDATIONS INCLUDE:

- » Avoid mass gatherings of more than 100 people
- » If you become sick, stay home to prevent infecting vulnerable citizens
- » If you believe you are infected, call your healthcare provider before going in so they can take precautions to protect other patients and visitors
- » If you are over 60 years of age, do not participate in gatherings of more than 20 people
- » If you are immunocompromised, do not participate in gatherings of over 20 people
- » Work from home, if possible
- » Offer sick employees paid leave, if possible, to prevent infecting all employees
- » Restrict visitor access to long-term care facilities, such as nursing homes – monitoring both employees and visitors for symptoms of COVID-19
- » Remember that Utah’s water supply is as abundant and dependable as ever, so water bottles are not a necessity.

The state is making these recommendations to keep Utah’s current situation from becoming critical. This is not a statewide quarantine. It is important not to give in to fear. About 80 percent of people who contract COVID-19 will only have minor symptoms similar to a typical cold or flu virus and will need little to no medical attention. People who are over age 60 or have preexisting health conditions are at greater risk, but Utah has excellent medical facilities.

I am grateful for the opportunity to serve as your State Senator, it is truly an honor and a privilege. I hope you will reach out to me at evickers@le.utah.gov this session to share your thoughts.

Thanks,

Evan Vickers

As the session approaches an end, all I can feel is gratitude and hope for the future. I'm really grateful for you and all of your support. Iron County has been very proactive on the hill this year! Both Senator Vickers and I are so impressed by the tireless efforts of education leaders, business owners, students, city council members, county commissioners, and other active citizens in getting involved up here. The decisions we make in the legislature impact everyone in our great state. I greatly appreciate your active voices! Thank you! Now, as the session is ending and we're heading into interim. This is a great opportunity for education leaders, City Council members, Piute Tribal leaders, commissioners, or any concerned citizen to share your concerns with me. I hope that you will help me know how I can best address your concerns as we prepare for next session. Again, thank you for your support!"

REP. REX SHIPP

UTAH HOUSE DISTRICT 72

Important Bill Update

HB 201 by Rep. Shipp HB 201 "Adoption Tax Credits" accommodates parents who adopt by offering tax credits that would help them make their necessary payments over a five-year period. The bill passed unanimously in Committee and Rep. Shipp is very hopeful that it will make it through the floor and then through the Senate. Rep. SB 67 Disposition of Fetal Remains Senator Bramble (R-Utah, Wasatch) sponsored SB 67, which would require healthcare facilities in possession of aborted or miscarried fetal remains to provide for the "final disposition of the fetal remains" (line 14). The purpose of the bill is to respect life by burying or cremating the remains. Mothers would decide the method of disposition as long as it's appropriate and honorable. It passed on the house floor with 49 "yes" votes and 20 "no" votes.

HB 417 Wildlife Amendments Passed in house committee was HB 417, nicknamed "Sadie's Bill." This bill "imposes notice requirements" for the Department of Natural Resources before attempting to kill an animal on private property. The exception would be in circumstances where a cougar or anything deemed a credible threat is on private property. The reason why this bill was proposed by Rep. Phil Lyman (R-San Juan County) was because of an incident in Antimony, Utah, where an officer from the DNR attempted to shoot a deer within 200 meters of an elementary school. The deer is known in the community as "Sadie", and is similar to the neighborhood dog. She is practically a pet. Sadie survived the gunshot, and if this bill makes it to the governor's office, she won't have to worry about anything like this happening again. The bill passed committee unanimously.

SJR 9 Sen. Daniel McCay (R-Utah/Salt Lake) sponsored SJR 9 which makes major amendments to the Utah Constitution. SJR 9 would allow revenue from income tax to include the support of children and individuals with disabilities. This is a major change because income tax is currently used solely for education in the state. The resolution passed in both the House and Senate.

HB 347 Representative Francis Gibson sponsored HB 347 "Inland Port Modifications." The bill "modifies the definition of 'publicly owned infrastructure and improvements' within the Utah Inland Port Authority Act to include energy-related facilities." It "enacts a provision allowing an owner within the authority jurisdictional land to establish a vested development right," and it "modifies inland port authority powers and duties, including power to adjust the boundary of the authority jurisdictional land."

HB 364 Sponsored by Rep. Christiansen (R-West Jordan). The bill requires a medical professional to show a woman seeking to get an abortion the audible heartbeat of the unborn child before they choose to go through with it. It passed in the house last week and then passed in the Senate with 16 yes votes, 7 no votes, with 6 Senators being absent from the vote.

Vietnam Veterans Reconnection Day

MEMORIES OF THE VIETNAM WAR VETERANS

from Dennis ROBISON

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

It was the 1960's. For most of us, we were in High School or working. We worked on the Farms, service stations, construction, or in fast food restaurants. In school we played on ball teams, played in the bands or orchestra and participated in school clubs. We were the product of the greatest generation. We are the baby boomers.

At the end of WWII, the country united together to honor and pay respect to all those that were coming home from that war. Young couples everywhere were getting married and starting their families. After we were born, we grew up listening to the stories of that war. Within us grew the love for our country, the honor for those that had served and the respect for the freedom that was a gift, unselfishly given. It was a part of us. We were proud to be Americans.

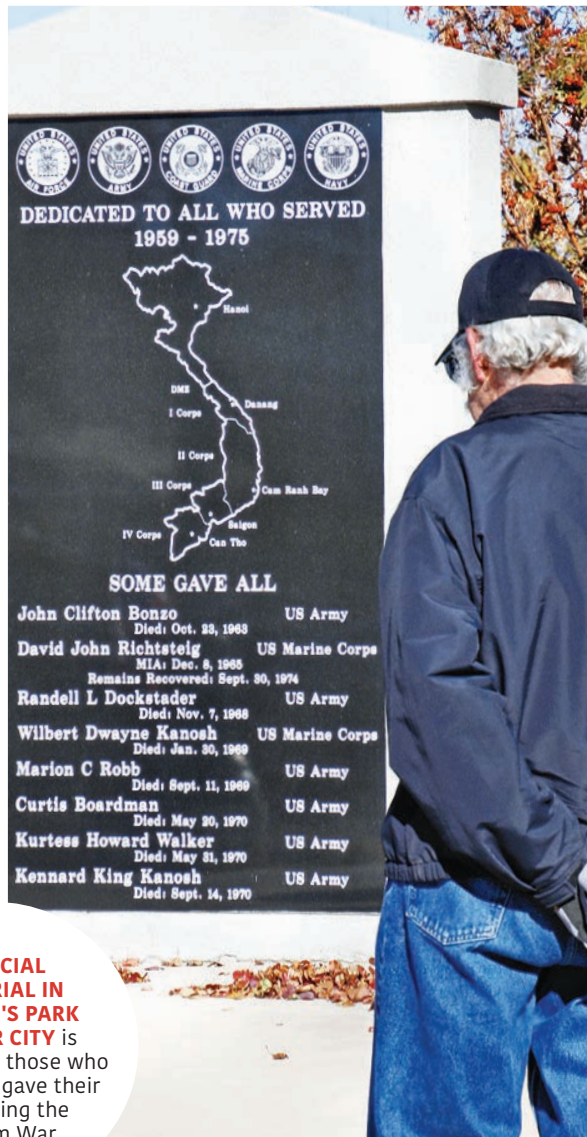

For the most part, life was good. We talked about college, careers and family. At night and on the weekends, we would gather with our friends. Those that had their own cars or those who borrowed the family car would meet on main street USA. We would ride up and down the street listening to our favorite AM radio stations, such as KOMA in Oklahoma City or Wolfman Jack in L.A. We would keep the volume up to levels our parent's thought impossible. We would hang out of the car windows, yelling pleasantries and giving hand signals to all those that were standing or parked along the side of the street.

At school and on the news, we were hearing more about a war that had started in a far-off country in Southeast Asia. We listened to the government telling us why this new war was important to us. Then we would hear from an increasing number of protesters telling us why it was bad.

At 18 we registered for the draft. We watched as they gave us numbers according to our birthday and then held a lottery to tell us in which order our number would come up. Before we knew it, Uncle Sam was saying, "Your number's up, we want you."

We put on hold our dreams and our lives to serve our country. We signed our names; we held our arm to the square and took an oath to serve our Country. We served in all branches of the military, in the air, on the sea, on the ground and some in the jungles of Vietnam. We served all around the world, as well as on our home soil. We served with courage and commitment.

We saw and endured many horrors. For some, many faces still haunt their dreams. Some left with memories to face alone, some forever scarred. We remember the 58,178 names that are engraved on our wall in Washington D.C. We remember the 33,000 that were only 18 years old when they died. We remember the 997 who died in their first day of combat.

A SPECIAL MEMORIAL IN VETERAN'S PARK IN CEDAR CITY is dedicated to those who served and gave their lives during the Vietnam War.

COREY BAUMGARTNER

"We put on hold our dreams and our lives to serve our country."

When we returned, we remember the protesters with hatred in their voices as they called us names, threw objects at us and spit on us. We were welcomed home by only our families. Thru it all, within us grew, our love for our country. With hands upon our hearts, we still feel the pride, our reverence revealed with our tears that now stream down our faces, as our flag waves above us, in her glory and grace.

In the Bible we read, "To everything there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven; A time to be born, and a time to die; A time to weep and a time to laugh; A time to mourn and a time to dance; A time to love and a time to hate; A time of war; A time of peace and a time to heal."

Veterans of the Vietnam war era, it is our time to heal. Heal in our hearts, in our prayers, in our minds, heal for all time. Veterans please come and join us, your brothers and sisters as we meet on the 2nd Monday of each month at the public library at 6:00 p.m.

Veterans, thank you for your sacrifice, your courage, your commitment, for your dedication to noble principles such as honor, patriotism and service. May God bless you and your families. May God bless the United States of America.

Katie Jensen, graduate arts administration student at SUU and Campus and Community Associate at Southern Utah Museum of Art (SUMA), has been chosen as the Utah Art Education Museum Educator of the Year by the Utah Art Education Association (UAEA). She received the award at the annual UAEA "Art in the Sun" Conference on February 28, 2020. As a recipient of this award, she will also be nominated by the UAEA for an award through the Pacific Region of the National Art Education Association.

In speaking of this great honor, Jensen shared, "I am very grateful to be receiving the UAEA Art Museum Educator of the Year award, and I am thankful to whoever nominated me. It is exciting to be recognized for what I have done over the last year at SUMA. I have an amazing job where I get to share my passion with others and learn about art from Cedar City's amazing art community. # The ART of EDUCATION

Jensen shared, "When I got to SUU, I had no idea what to go into, but I loved my art classes. While getting my undergrad degree, I started working at SUMA. Reese Summers, the Museum Director at the time, asked me if I wanted a job after I visited four times in one day. On my first day at SUMA, Reese asked me to curate the Andy Nasisse: Bad Lands exhibition. I continued to work at SUMA through my undergraduate degree. I loved working at the museum and I started to look into the master's program so I could learn more about Arts Administration."

Josh Stavros, Associate Program Director of the Arts Administration program at SUU, shares, "Katie is an incredibly positive, thoughtful, and intelligent individual. Her engagement in the classroom is indicative of her commitment to arts education. She wears her passion for her craft and her students in her smile. She is a gifted planner and collaborator. It is incredibly exciting to see her recognized by the UAEA, because she has been one of our 'Educators of the Year' for a while."

Katie Jensen is originally from Draper, Utah and has called Cedar City her home for the last seven years. She received her undergraduate degree in Arts Education from SUU with a minor in Museum Studies. Art was a major part of her childhood. As a child, Jensen created art and visited museums. Growing up, her mom had art supplies on the bottom shelf so that she and her sisters could create whenever they wanted. Anytime her extended family got together they would make art.

Of the Arts Administration program, Jensen went on to say, "Though the Arts Administration program I have gained an understanding of the field, experience through the assistantship at SUMA, and an appreciation for the importance of strong arts administrators. I love taking classes with and from amazing, passionate people who have inspired me every day."

Congratulations to Katie Jensen on receiving the Utah Art Education Museum Educator of the Year from the Utah Art Education Association.

CEDAR CITY ARTS COUNCIL

In America in 1846, members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints were getting ready to walk across the country, a journey that would entail trekking through ankle-deep mud in Iowa for days on end, encountering Indians, and then sleeping in wagons or tents at the ends of punishing days of physical effort.

In Europe in 1846, educated society was patronizing concert halls to hear the new, glorious work of Felix Mendelssohn, the oratorio "Elijah". Written in German, it was translated into English and first performed in England, the native country of many of those Latter-day Saints walking toward religious freedom.

It would have been hard for either group to envision the circumstances of the other.

An oratorio is a major musical work for orchestra, chorus, and soloists. It is usually based on a religious narrative and is performed in a concert hall without costumes, sets, or action. Mendelssohn's Elijah is of the same genre, then, as Handel's more familiar Messiah. Elijah's subject is the Old Testament prophet, Elijah, the central figure in some of the most dramatic stories in all scripture.

As told in 1 and 2 Kings, Elijah seals the heavens to punish disobedient Israel and when the resulting drought becomes life-threatening, Elijah and the prophets of the false god Baal have a contest to see whose God will save them. When Baal fails to come through, Elijah calls down fire from heaven to the convincing of all present of the power of the true God of Israel.

Elijah is a worthy subject of a creative work. He is so sure of his standing before God that he approaches Him with full confidence that God will hear and grant his desires; it is almost as if he summons God. And yet, Elijah has his human moments of feeling sad and inadequate. Finally, instead of dying, he is taken to heaven in a chariot of fire, not yet finished with his work for God.

Mendelssohn, a born Jew who converted to Christianity, wrote glorious music to dramatize these events in the life of the great prophet. The oratorio contains some of the most moving arias in the classical repertoire. Any student of classical music would recognize "He, Watching over Israel"; "Lift Thine Eyes"; "Cast Thy Burden upon the Lord" appears in the Latter-day Saint and other hymnals.

I present this music history lesson because some of us heard this beautiful work performed here in Cedar City by the orchestra and combined choirs of SUU on Friday, March 6th. What a pleasure it was to see and hear our students bring life to the music score under the very capable baton of Dr. Krystal McCoy. Schools and universities perform their best function when they expose students to the truly great music and literature of the centuries. I'm sure it was a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for most of the students, and a very moving experience for those of lucky enough to be in the audience. I hope you were there.

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

The National Federation of Music Clubs Piano Festival is on Saturday, March 21, at the SUU Music Building. Performances are free and open to the public from 8 am to 4 p.m.

The Music Festivals also provide $100 scholarships to high school students who are attending SUU in the fall and who have earned at least one Gold Cup. In the 37 years of the Music Festivals over $12,000 has been awarded in scholarships.

For strings, apply at <http://www.southernutahstringfestival.org/PDF/Scholarship.pdf> by March 30. For piano students contact Angie Maxwell at 435-559-0691 or pick up an application at the Piano Festival.

There is also a new piano scholarship: The Ted & Robyn Schaefer $500 SUU Piano Scholarship for a high school Senior, currently taking piano lessons. The applicant must have earned three Gold Cups from National Federation Piano Festivals. Applications will be available at the Piano Festival.

Local musicians, teachers, and advanced students assist in writing comments to help raise the musical standards of the participants. The emphasis is on individual excellence rather than competition.

Brittanie Larson and Angie Maxwell direct the Piano Festival and Marin Colby directed the String Festival earlier this month. Both events have a large contingent of helpers who volunteer to provide this opportunity.

In addition to the Cedar City Music Festivals, there is also an Orchestra Festival in St. George in the fall directed by Kirsten and Ed Candland that has developed from the original Music Festivals.

"We appreciate all of the judges, tabulators, and organizers who offer this service to our music students," said Sara Penny, Founding Director.

SUU Student Artist James Culbertson opens Zion exhibit

by Ashley H. POLLOCK

SUU COLLEGE OF PERFORMING & VISUAL ARTS

Southern Utah University (SUU) student James Culbertson will exhibit his works from his Zion Student Artist in Residence at the Natural History Museum Art Gallery inside Zion National Park through April 19, 2020.

James Culbertson, a senior BFA candidate in Studio Arts with an emphasis in photography and three minors: art history, illustration, and painting/drawing/printmaking, says, "Generally with my work I am trying cal photography figures who worked in the park long before I did. For a deeper look, I would hope that any and all interested individuals will take a trip to the park to see the show for themselves!"

Each year a student artist is selected to work in Zion during SUU's Spring Break. The artist is given a residence in a park house. The furnished house is large enough to comfortably provide studio space. The work completed under this program should contribute to the public understanding and appreciation of Zion National Park and should reflect the National Park Service's mission to preserve and protect the park's cultural and natural resources.

Sam Davis, Assistant Professor of Photography at SUU, shares, "James' project combines the use of tri-color negative photography (the creation of a full color composite image using separate Cyan, Yellow, and Magenta layers created from individual black and white negatives shot through Red, Green, and Blue filters sequentially) to explore the popularity of Zion National Parks most visited areas. By using this vintage process combined with digital printing James was able to create these unusual images to convey a feeling. With the work in Zion I really wanted to find a way to show the viewer how I feel in the park and how I felt during my residency. To do this I chose to work in three different styles for the show, Tri-color film photography, Digital photography, and traditional salt printing. Each medium allowed me to speak to different aspects of the park and my experiences. Tri-color is an exploration into how I view the park. The digital photographs are a showcase of some of the parks smaller and lesser seen organisms. Lastly, the traditional salt printings are a way to call back to the histori-whereby the landscape remains normal but the people walking within the frame take on primary colors due to their placement during the exposure of each sheet of film. This strategy underscores the number of people that explore these different parts of the park on a daily basis calling attention to both the popularity as well as the fragility of the park."

Support this great student and his time studying in Zion National Park by visiting his exhibition at the Natural History Museum Art Gallery inside Zion National Park until April 19, 2020.

'SHEEP TO SHAWL' A Shear Delight

by Tom WATSON

IRON COUNTY TODAY

What better way to spend a day than learning and experiencing about sheep ranching? The Frontier Homestead State Park Museum hosted the event last March 14th. The response was very positive, everyone attending was ready to learn more about the processes of sheep ranching and the methodologies of sheep shearing, dyeing and what happens to the wool after the shearing was finished.

Although the sheep that came on Saturday to demonstrate how they gave up their wool, it was not to be. It rained the day before and early the morning of the event, thereby completely soaking the wool that was to be sheared. Wool does not shear at all when wet. It is also a good way to gum up the works in sheers and or hand trimmers.

Shearing and wool handling methods in the early days were crude and time-consuming compared with modern processes. Shearers were paid five cents a head and the fleece averaged only four to five pounds. The early shearer would run out to a large corral, catch a sheep, and drag it into the shearing house. Using manual shears, he would swiftly and easily trim the wool from the sheep and when completed. Twist the locks of wool into a string of sorts, tie the fleece up and throw it out a high window for collection by the bagger. The shearer would then walk over to a piece of cardboard hanging on nearby wall, and check a tally mark under his name, then went to get another sheep. Speed and delicacy were skills each shearer had to have. A day's wages were easily lost if they were to cut a vein and lose a sheep during the trimming.

The day was filled with the different methods being shown into the cabins and shops of the Frontier Museum. Each of the cabin

The Rut LESS TRAVELED

by Corey BAUMGARTNER
IRON COUNTY TODAY

Have you noticed that there seems to be a smile-deficit in the world today, maybe even in your own life? It's easy to think that some people have permanently traded in their smiles for smirks. They seem to be so stuck in their own rutty world as they rarely glance at anyone else when they pass by. Even with millions of emoji smiley-faces sent everyday via text and e-mail, how many of them are meaningful? Are they enough to give relief and encouragement to the receiver? That depends on whether you believe that a smile is just a temporary expression—a quickly fading echo of emotion—or that such a small and simple gesture really can make a difference in someone's life, including your own.

What makes you smile? When was the last time something or someone really made you smile? If you can't remember then it's been too long and it's time to find your smile again. I'm not just talking about bubbly babies, fluffy felines and puppies pandering for a petting. Those interactions are not as meaningful as stopping by to light up someone's day with a visit, a phone call, or an encouraging card in the mail. Doesn't it make you smile to have a shoulder to lean on to lighten your load when your heart gets tired? These are the smiles I'm talking about. I call them smilestones.

What is a smilestone? A smilestone is a smile you see on your face or someone else's but feel in your heart. You know it's a smilestone when it changes your life, or someone else's for the better. Any smile that truly reaches someone's heart will make a difference in their day and their life. Just as a beautiful picture, soul moving song, or an inspiring book can create smiles in those who make time to enjoy them; a simple smile can paint peace, begin a new chapter of love and not only turn someone's frown upside down but create a new symphony of hope in their lives. Your smile could be the only ray of sunshine someone's cloudy life has seen in a long time.

Smiles are also contagious, so make sure you're hanging around happy people and places. If you are having a sad day—as we all do—that's when you need an infusion of another person's happiness more than ever. Don't be afraid of bringing them down. Learning to have and share empathy and compassion are also worthy causes.

Today, I challenge you to create ways to become a smile architect, a smile artisan. Spend more time with people, places and things in your life that create smilestones. Get your smile on and go create a frown-deficit by putting the smiles back in your miles and enjoying the journey. Remember, whether it's within your own heart and home or passing a stranger on the street; you are the only one with your smile. Use it to make a worthwhile difference today.

BUSINESS

The sheer power of tourism dollars

BUILDING MAIN STREET, NOT WALL STREET

Whether it is the invasion of big boxes, chains and dollar stores or the onslaught of Internet shopping; one fact remains certain; most communities throughout the country are struggling financially. Revenue is slowly, or rapidly in some cases being eroded through these ruthless competitors.

For most communities, there are very few options to reverse this debilitating trend of local dollars leaving their community. So, that begs the question, what can communities do to slow or better yet, reverse these trends that will only continue to intensify in the future?

One way to slow or possibly reverse the outflow of dollars from your community is to find ways to attract visitors through tourism. The value of tourism is immense and ought not be understated. The power of tourism dollars can literally alter economic trends, outcomes and landscape in your community. It can indeed restore the vitalization needed for communities to grow and ultimately compete for survival.

While each community will be slightly different based on cost of living and variable economic conditions, studies indicate tourism brings approximately $500 per visit into a community over the average two-day stay. That figure includes hotel, gas, shopping and food. Utilizing those figures, if your community finds ways to attract 10,000 additional tourists throughout the year, that is an additional five million dollars circulating through your community each year. It gets better. Studies also show that those dollars will then get spent again at least three to seven times by those living within the local community. That equates to over fifteen million additional dollars circulating through your community each year. What will fifteen million additional dollars do for your local business base and the city coffers charged with infrastructure and maintaining the city?

Needless to say, tourism is a high stakes game that every community would be negligent to not pursue.

JOHN A. NEWBY
COLUMNIST

Community leaders would be shirking their fiduciary duties of office by not actively pursuing those dollars. That being the case, how does a community build the machine that promotes and attracts tourism? While there are many ways to grow this avenue of revenue, here is a simple three-step process that works.

First, realize, understand and promote the value and vision of tourism.

Understand that regardless of where you are in the scheme of things you must get to a point that you are doing things to grow tourism. This is the most important frame of mind community leaders can have when it comes to your community's financial survival.

Secondly, find those unique things about your city and build upon them.

Tourists are seeking new and unique experiences, not sameness. Tourists are seeking to find the heart and soul of a community, not the same old and easy to find anywhere experiences so many provide. Does your community have access to water, such as rivers or lakes? Does your community have a niche such as music, history and/or art etc.? Find at least one niche and magnify that niche to the best of your ability.

Thirdly, support organizations that are willing to create events that magnify your community's niches and talents.

People will travel for good events. Your events can be car or bike shows, food festivals, unique music festivals, Veterans events, ethnic festivals and the list goes on. The real skill in this arena however is beyond just creating these events. Every event you concentrate community resources towards should be one that can ultimately grow to a multiday event. Those are the events that attract the high stakes tourism dollars that really make the impact your community needs.

There is one additional element that can't be overlooked as you begin to capitalize on these great events. That is your downtown appearance and ambiance. Tourists look for uniqueness while visiting your town; they look for experiences that are unduplicated in other locations. As you build your event agenda in the coming years, don't do so at the expense of neglecting the heart and soul of your downtown community. You need both to assure success. These two work hand in hand in growing and ultimately revitalizing your entire community.

IRON COUNTY SCHOOL DISTRICT

Fiddler's Canyon Elementary

During our final assembly during Dr. Seuss week, our school received an amazing gift honoring the late Merilee Jones, former Fiddler's teacher and advocate for reading. The Dr. Seuss-themed bench, given by members of Mrs. Jones's family, will reside in the school library where librarian Mrs. Winters will create a special space for it. We are so grateful for this reminder of Mrs. Jones and her example of reading, love, and service. As she always said, "people are more important than things."

Enoch Elementary

Enoch Elementary learned the magic words...Jason Fun. Utah's Funnest Magician waved his wand at our school on March 6th. Students couldn't believe their eyes as he cut a boy in half, predicted the future, and more with the help from some brave students.

Three Peaks Elementary

Three Peaks Elementary held their annual PTA Reflection's assembly on March 12, 2020. Students submitted entries based on the theme, "Look Within". Several categories were offered for entries including 2D and 3D art, literature, music, dance, photography, and film production. Congratulations to all students who participated in this year's contest. A special thanks goes to Mande and Tyler Adams for coordinating this year's contest and for organizing the awards assembly.

South Elementary

On Monday, March 2nd, the students at South Elementary celebrated Read Across America Day also known as Dr. Seuss Day. We were privileged to be entertained by the great Michael Bahr and a few of his SUU students. They performed a play based on the story Sneeches by Dr. Seuss and included several students in the performance. It was a delightful story about the importance of not discriminating against others because of their differences. We left the assembly with the great reminder that we are all the same and the importance of being friends with one another.

FAITH

Personal Pandemics

PSALM 23:1-6

It's been quite an interesting couple of weeks watching how something so small and invisible (the Coronavirus) can create such visible havoc and fear in our communities and across the world. Schools, churches, sporting events and other large gatherings of people have been wisely closed in efforts to help prevent spreading the illness. While some procedures may seem unnecessary, or unwise, we will each do our parts to comply and do all we can to keep ourselves, our friends and our families safe.

As I was sitting on God's Porch today having my daily discussion with Him, I could sense His concern and care for everyone affected by this pandemic. I could also sense His gratitude for those scientists, doctors and leaders who have not let panic prevent them from praying to Him for guidance and direction on how to proceed in protecting us from and preventing such pandemics in the future. I could also tell He was saddened that the increasing fear and panic have become a pandemic in themselves (Isaiah 41:10).

We also spoke about another invisible illness affecting our spiritual health and happiness, the virus of sin. Sin separates us from God's blessings of peace, joy and happiness, but not His love (Romans 8:38-39). However, it is difficult for us to receive or perceive His unconditional love when the sickness of sin keeps our hearts and lives turned away and hidden from Him.

Some may wonder if God truly loves us, why does He allow us to suffer guilt and sorrow? Would we seek out God and His healing if we never felt guilt or sorrow? Some also foolishly believe that wickedness can bring happiness, but it's only temporary and counterfeit happiness. When we succumb to sin, it numbs our feelings and deceives us into thinking we don't need God's peace and happiness. This allows the vile virus of sin to spread and infect every area of our lives and the lives of those around us. Sin shames us into quarantining ourselves from seeking help and Christ's cure through His Atonement.

GOD'S Porch

by Corey BAUMGARTNER

IRON COUNTY TODAY

It poisons us with lies telling us that we're no longer good enough to come back to God, or that He doesn't love us anymore and can't help and heal us because we've screwed up too many times, or even that we're not wanted anymore because we've been gone too long (Matthew 18:21-22).

God does want to help and heal us! Through the Atonement of Jesus Christ we can overcome the disease of sin and have true peace and happiness in this life. (John 3:16-17) I hope we'll each take time to talk with God and ask for His guidance through these challenging time both globally and personally; to not only rescue and heal us from our sins, but to inoculate our minds and hearts so that we no longer have the desire for sin. And no matter what happens going forward, remember that God is still in control (2 Kings 6:15-17).

The weather couldn't be better!

Wow, where do I even start!? This place is hilly and these alleys/ paths wind and go up and down. It's hard to keep track of where I am! There are trees everywhere. The only reason it's not a jungle is because people have cleared out foliage for houses. There are a couple of drainage ditches that people made with rocks and cement that makes for good pathways.

Going down the sides of these ditches there are banana trees on each side. Many of the people here live in mud block buildings with straw roofs. Others live in cinder block houses with tin roofs, and some live in houses made of bamboo ribs, mud molded over the bamboo and plaster splattered over the mud to give a cinder block appearance. These neighborhoods seem to be endless, probably because they are. The city where our apartment is is nice. Paved roads, gutters and sidewalks. Of course, the roads have potholes everywhere, but really nice for here. Not far from our house there are really nice hotels that look like they came right out of the US. You honestly only have to walk a couple blocks to either feel like your somewhat in the US, or in the middle of Africa!

This week we've had an incredible amount of rain. It seriously felt like it was never going to end, I loved it! We've still got promising clouds! The rain honestly just did not stop. We had a baptism on Saturday and have 4 people on date to be baptized. The work is going really good here. People on the streets in general aren't as interested as they were in Beira, but the members here are very helpful to us.

My companion, Elder Ngema, is the man! He's from South Africa and is so strong in the Church. He and his family had the Book of Mormon in his house for 10 years in the language of Zulu, but they didn't know who published it, they just knew it had good things of God inside. They took it wherever they moved. They only knew what it was when the missionaries came and introduced the Book of Mormon to them in English. After 2 years of meeting with Jehova's Witnesses they were quickly baptized into the church because in his words the doctrine actually makes sense and agrees with the bible. He's read the Book of Mormon, wait for it, 14 times! since he's been converted and taught seminary and institute classes for the church. I'm sure you can all imagine how lucky I am to have him as my comp! He's super humble and just a cool guy.

I made my mom's homemade cinnamon rolls this week after finally finding cinnamon! That was the taste of home I needed! Also made Horchata, because trust me there is no shortage of rice here to make that with.

Something unique about Nampula is the food. There is a dish called apa which is basically an egg, mayo, ketchup, lettuce thing in a tortilla shell, it's pretty good. Takeout food here is amazingly cheap. A "Machamba Mama" will make a plate of salad, rice, beans, and chicken for the grand total of 50 met, or about 75 cents to us in the US. This is a saving grace to me!

One of our investigators is 15 or 16 years old and already has a baby. Her baby was sick but she still made it to church! The people here are amazing, and I get reminded every day.

Real quick. People get creative in making things here. For example, Kids make little toy trucks with a water jug and caps, they attach a string and stick to it and pull it around on the paths. We were at a house with a weight-set that was made out of plumbing pipes, and food storage type cans filled with cement on each side. I was walking into a clearing the other day when all of a sudden, I heard a roar of children and 10 or so rushed through with black plastic probably from track bags or something tied around their heads like headbands. I think they were playing a ninja game or something.

Realizing that this is a long letter I will wrap up. Portuguese is progressing really well for me right now and I feel really blessed. I'm going to make an effort to write more of the experiences that have become normal to me here but are for sure different for you all at home.

SHEEP TO SHAWL

buildings were used for the demonstrations from drum carding to washing the wool, dyeing the wool, to finally turning the dyed and dried wool into the yarn that we all know and finally knitting the yarn into clothing. The process of spinning was not being shown, but the main room of the museum did have one Saxony and a walking spinning wheel, along with looms of different sizes.

Great wheels, also known as walking wheels have a large wheel, and if you look closely, they do not have a treadle or a flyer. These are some of the earliest wheels used in the history of spinning.

With these wheels, the drafting and spinning is done by walking a distance away from the wheel as it turns or by turning the wheel by hand. Yarn is then wrapped around the spindle as you go, similar to a drop spindle.

Saxony wheels are a traditional classic spinning wheel design. The wheel is on one side of the frame and the flyer is on the other. Most of these wheels are built on a sloping frame. They typically have 3 legs and one or two pedals to treadle with. The treadle is connected to the wheel and as it moves up and down it turns the wheel.

The history of sheep ranching in Iron County does not go back all that far. It started in 1852 with the Willden family bring in only 10 sheep. Soon many other families brought in sheep to produce wool for spinning, and weaving clothes. Each of the sheep stock at that time was prized at 30 dollars a head, quite a lot at that time. Most were kept in pens at home and fed by hand, much like swine. Much of the time it was difficult to keep the sheep clean enough to assure a prospective wool buyer that the wool from any sheep at that time was quality. As flocks began to grow in Cedar City, sheep became a burden to care for on the small lots most resident owned. Ranchers soon began to drive the sheep out to the open fields and then bring them back in the evening.

Eventually herds grew into a large financial concern. The wool would be sold and the individuals who owned sheep started a co-op and the Cedar City Sheep Company was formed. In 1917 the co-op was dissolved.

Sheep ranching is still an important agricultural industry of not only Iron County, but the entire state of Utah.

OBITUARIES

Kenneth Oscar Rowley

Kenneth Oscar Rowley passed away unexpectedly Tuesday, March 10, 2020, in his home in Summit, Utah, in spite of standard CPR, threats, cussing, and slaps administered affectionately and passionately by his wife and daughter, Elisse, until the ambulance arrived.

He was born September 21, 1940, in Cedar City, Utah to Richard Edward (Ted) Rowley and Jetta Decker Rowley, his mother sharing the room with Minnie H. Dalley who had two days earlier presented a baby girl, Mary Beth. They have been friends ever since. Ken was greeted by his brother, Elwyn and his sister Jetta Jean. When Ken was seven a sister Sharon was born.

He attended Parowan Elementary and Parowan High School, where he was voted Most Preferred Man, graduating in 1958, all the while blissfully ignorant of the younger, smiling, lovestruck neighbor girl, whose father's cows he milked, and whose basement he dug. He worked and attended college for a while, and then went on a mission to the West Central states in Montana, Wyoming and parts of North and South Dakota. He had progressed to taking Darlene on a date exactly every two months before he left. Woo Hoo!

Returning home, he completed an associate degree at CSU (now SUU) married his wife, Darlene Lucie Hyatt, worked for Mountain West Telephone, US WEST, Quest, which eventually morphed through several fazes to become Century link, and made many lifelong friends there.

They made their home in Summit, a wonderful rural place to live and raise a family.

Ken was active in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints all his life, serving as Young Men's President, Elders Quorum President, ward clerk, librarian, ward mission leader, in Bishoprics, High council, etc.

He was preceded in death by his parents, sister Jean, daughter Angela (Richard Roundy).

Howard LeFevre Stubbs

Howard LeFevre Stubbs, 92, completed his life's journey on March 11, 2020. He was born in Parowan, Utah, October 14, 1927 to Chester and Mary LeFevre Stubbs. Dr. Green drove down to the three-room log house on Center Street in a horse and buggy to deliver him. He graduated from Parowan High School, where he was active in sports, and played a mean drum in the high school band, as well as in a community dance band.

After graduation he enlisted in the U.S. Army. He was among the first troops to serve in the military occupation of Japan after World War II. After returning he married Elna Halterman Stubbs, from Parowan, in 1948. They were blessed with four children. Their marriage was later solemnized in the LDS St. George Temple.

Howard learned about hard work at an early age. Getting up at first light to milk the cows, then running five blocks to get to school on time, was a part of everyday life. As a young man he always had a job herding or shearing sheep, and farming. Farmers were eager to hire him because he was a hard, no nonsense worker.

Howard loved Parowan and took pride in his community. He was chairman of the horse racing association for the Iron County Fair for many years. He was president of the Chamber of Commerce when he initiated the building of the city swimming pool, which is still being enjoyed today. He won many awards for the "Christmas in the Country" home lighting display.

He retired from US Steel after 34 years, after which he kept busy farming and caring for a large yard, and a beautiful vegetable and flower garden. He generously shared his bounty with others. The mountains were always calling him. He and Elna loved to drive to Dry Lakes—their "Little Island in the Sky," especially in the fall when he would cut and load his truck with wood to last the winter. This has been a gathering place for fun times with family.

Howard was a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. He served in scouting, as well as ward and stake callings. He had a generous, loving heart, and was always faithful in ministering to the widows and those in need. His joyful laugh and ability to tell a story was a natural talent which all enjoyed. His memory will forever live in our hearts.

Howard is survived by his wife, Elna, of 91 years, their children, Cheryl Lynn (Blaine) Johnson of St. George, Utah, Craig Halterman Stubbs of Fountain Valley, California, Jolene (Eugene) Dalley of Taylorsville, Utah, Janeal (Marvin) Magalei of Bountiful, Utah, 13 grandchildren and 29 great grandchildren, his brothers Clarence (DeAnn), Larry (Becky), his sisters, Mary Etta (David) Orton, and Linda (Ron) Mecham. He is preceded in death by his parents, brother Homer (Donna), sister Betty (Bud) Perkins, baby brother Bobby, and brother-in-law Ron Mecham.

Family funeral services will be held on Saturday, March 21, under the direction of Southern Utah Mortuary. Online condolences can be sent to www.sumortuary.com.

Sandra Fife Olds, age 79, passed away March 15, 2020 in Enoch, Utah. Sandy was born in Cedar City, Utah to Furl and Viola Fife on February 26, 1941. Her family later moved to Las Vegas NV where she spent her childhood. She graduated from Las Vegas High in 1959.

Sandy met the love of her life Delynn Olds and they married August 4, 1961 in Las Vegas, NV. They moved back to Cedar City and raised their 4 children, Dar, DeeAnn, Glade and Debbie. Sandy made it her mission in life to make sure all her kids, grandkids, nieces and nephews had handmade quilts. She also loved to crochet and had a

Clark Evan Henderson

Clark Evan Henderson, 88, passed away peacefully Saturday, March 7, 2020. Evan was born February 9, 1932 to Wallace Dickson Henderson and Sarah Ismay Clark in Cannonville, Utah and was the seventh of eight children. His siblings are Clark Dickson, Helen Clark, Jean, Wallace Max, Owen Gayle, Enid, and Mark Vee.

Evan graduated from Bryce Valley High school where he was student body president. He attended Brigham Young University where he met Karen Hannig on a blind date. Seven months later they were sealed in the St. George Temple. Their ten children are all still with us—Jill (Mike) Andersen, Joan Henderson-Reil, Jeff Dickson (Monique), Diane (Steve) Ellis, Julie (Greg) Morris, John Evan (Denise), Nathan Joseph (Colleen), David Clark (Martha), Spencer Whitney (Angie), Elizabeth (Jason) Apking.

Evan was a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and he loved the gospel. He served as Bishop of the 35th ward in Las Vegas. Later, he served two missions with Karen in Salt Lake City and Jackson, MS. Evan's life was centered around his family and faith. Evan lived a life of integrity, hard work, and sacrifice. He started out as a cowboy, herding cattle with his father and brothers east of Cannonville, Utah. Later, he earned an associate's degree from Dixie College and was drafted into the Army where he served in Korea during the Korean War. After military service he returned to college, earning a bachelor's degree in math and a master's degree in secondary education from Brigham Young University. He spent many years as an educator, first as a teacher and then as an administrator.

Evan enjoyed spending time outdoors, hunting, fishing, and camping. He passed many Saturdays in a small fishing boat in the lakes and reservoirs of southern Utah with his father-in-law, Joseph Hannig, his sons, daughters, friends, and anyone else he could drag out of bed early enough to go. Every summer for many years he brought his family camping on Cedar Mountain, a tradition that his children continue to share with their children. Evan and Karen made home life with their children in Las Vegas and Kanab. In later life they made homes in Cedar Hills and Pleasant Grove. Everywhere they lived they made many lasting friendships. Evan and Karen have 39 grandchildren and 30 great-grandchildren and were married for 62 years. Karen passed just last year and Evan found a difficult transition to life without her.

He was preceded in death by his parents; his siblings Clark Dickson, Helen Clark, Jean, Wallace Max, Owen Gayle, and Mark Vee; his wife Karen; and two granddaughters, Sarah and Claire Karen Henderson. A viewing was held Saturday, March 14 from 6-7:30 at Utah Valley Mortuary, 1966 W. 700 N., Lindon, Utah. Services were Monday, March 16 in Parowan, UT at the chapel at 59 S 100 W with a viewing from 11 - 11:45 am and the funeral service at noon. ## CEDAR BASEBALL ZOOMS PAST ENTERPRISE

by Tom ZULEWSKI

IRON COUNTY TODAY

The Cedar Reds knew there would only be one more opportunity to shine on the diamond before baseball and all other spring sports were sent into hiatus because of the COVID-19 pandemic.

On March 12, the Reds got a big inning and went into the extended spring break on a high note.

Tanner Esplin and Teague Speakman came through with run-scoring singles that were part of a seven-run fifth inning that helped Cedar beat Enterprise, 9-4 on a comfortable afternoon that improved their overall record to 3-2.

Both teams exchanged single runs early – the Wolves scoring in the top of the first and Cedar answering in the second to tie the game at 1-1 – but Esplin came through with the first of his two singles that broke the tie in the fourth before the floodgates opened one inning later.

“We had some good swings in that fifth inning with guys on base,” Cedar head coach

LADY REDS POUNDED 12-1 BY GRANTSVILLE

Eric Fieldsted said. “They had good at bats to get guys on base and in scoring position.”

Senior Dalton Gronning got the win on the mound for Cedar, allowing only the first-inning run on two hits in four innings of work. Gavin Imlay worked the next two innings, holding Enterprise to a single run in the sixth, and Josh Meisner finished up in the seventh, allowing two unearned runs to complete the scoring.

Kolby White led the Reds’ 13-hit attack, going 3-for-4 with a run scored and one RBI. Five more players – Esplin, Speakman, Kason Crandall, Braxton Torres and Brayden Torres – added two hits apiece.

Across campus, the Cedar Lady Reds softball team had a rough beginning to its season, dropping a 12-1 decision at home to 3A powerhouse Grantsville. The Cowgirls broke a scoreless tie with three runs in the third inning and matched the output in the sixth as well as the seventh.

All of the Grantsville starters had at least one hit and they pounded out 17 in total off Lady Reds pitching. Cedar scored its lone run in the bottom of the fourth in the loss.

Lady T-Birds fall in Big Sky quarterfinals

SUU ATHLETICS STRATEGIC COMMUNICATION

BOISE, Idaho — The Southern Utah women's basketball team closed out the 2019-20 season Tuesday night with a hard-fought 70-63 loss to Idaho State in the quarterfinals of the Big Sky Conference Championship Tournament.

The Thunderbirds finish their season with a record of 18-13, tied for the second-most wins in a season in program history.

"Defensively we did a pretty good job in the first half and in the second half we gave up some threes and put ourselves in a tough spot, but overall, I'm proud of our performance and proud of our season," head coach Tracy Sanders said. "They were physical with us and they keyed in on Becca and did a good job of denying her. We had some other people step up and make some plays and she worked her tail off to try and do some things for us."

Harley Hansen and Rebecca Cardenas led the Thunderbirds in scoring in their final games as T-Birds with Hansen scoring 13 and Cardenas scoring 12. Jessica Chatman was the leading rebounder for SUU with six.

"We had some incredible seniors this year and they have really come in and changed the culture. Last year we were scared to lose and this year we came in with an expectation of winning every game and so much of it has had to do with these two right here [Hansen and Cardenas] and the competitiveness they have and the energy that they bring."

Cardenas finished out a season that saw her break the single-season steals record with 95 steals and scored 550 points, the fourth most in a season all-time.

As a team, the Thunderbirds had their second-best all-time scoring season with 2,186 points scored. They also set a new record for three-pointers made in a season with 197.

The Bengals jumped out to a quick 7-0 lead in the first minute and a half of play, forcing the Thunderbirds into two turnovers during that stretch.

Harley Hansen broke the streak and got the Thunderbirds on the board with a three-pointer to make it 7-3 with 6:45 to go in the quarter. That sparked a 7-0 scoring run of their own, as Ashley Larsen and Cardenas both made buckets to tie the game at 7-7.

The Thunderbirds took their first lead of the game on a Madelyn Eaton driving layup to make it 9-7 at the 2:31 mark.

The game tied three more times throughout the quarter before it came to an end with the Bengals leading 17-15.

Hansen opened the second quarter with a quick jumper to tie things back up at 17-17, but then the Bengals were able to open up a 6-0 run that made it 23-17. Cardenas stemmed the bleeding with a second-chance three that cut the ISU lead to three.

Idaho State was able to build their lead back out to six and keep the Thunderbirds at arm's length, but the T-Birds closed the half on a 6-2 scoring run and went into the halftime break down by just two.

Hansen had seven points and Larsen had four rebounds at the half.

The Thunderbirds came out hot in the third quarter, taking the lead back on a Claudia Armato three-pointer at 8:37. The teams continued to trade buckets, with the lead changing hands three more times through the first five

The day the sports world stopped

To say this past week that ended Sunday was full of strange moments that gave me pause is putting it mildly. One by one, our sports, our diversions, the games that give us an escape from the challenges of everyday life, started disappearing before our eyes because of coronavirus, COVID-19, and whatever else this disease is being called on social media and elsewhere.

Two days after Utah Jazz forward Rudy Gobert playfully put his hands over a set of microphones and reporter's devices, he was diagnosed with the virus. The NBA wasted no time in suspending the rest of the season for at least 30 days.

At first, the NHL was going to play some games without fans in the arenas, but that league's season was soon halted.

MLB played its last spring training games Friday before pulling the plug, and having Opening Day that was set for March 26 — a national holiday to baseball fans everywhere — pushed back at least two weeks, probably longer.

The MLS is on hold, along with the PGA Tour, Formula 1 and NASCAR. The NHRA postponed its pro classes in Gainesville, Florida this weekend as well as Las Vegas, which was set for April 2 through 5. The drag-racing series stated in a Twitter message it plans to return in Houston on April 17, but now even that will likely change with the CDC recommending all gatherings of 50 or more be postponed for the next eight weeks.

As I write this, we were supposed to have Selection Sunday for the NCAA Tournament. When all of the conferences pulled the plug on respective tournaments, you knew it was only a matter of time before the NCAA followed suit.

Bracketology has been silenced. Sports books in Mesquite and Las Vegas just took a serious hit, and I wonder if the casinos in those cities are still open.

But to top everything off, there will be no sports at our high schools for at least the next two weeks, maybe longer. While Region 9 boys soccer is three games into its schedule, region play in baseball and softball was supposed to start Tuesday.

I make no claim to be Nostradamus. I can't see into a crystal ball to predict the future, so I have no idea if we'll be able to resume at our high schools come the end of this month. That's the saddest cut for the senior class of student-athletes at both Cedar and Canyon View.

Softball was set to take on the challenge of region foes facing each other home-and-home on consecutive game days, like baseball has done for a few years now. Cedar softball head coach Chris Weaver admitted he wasn't a fan of the change, but it doesn't matter now.

"new" normal — will be a welcome return whenever it comes.

Even though there are no sports in our lives now and in the foreseeable future, I'm going to continue writing columns from the peace and quiet of home, possibly working toward a podcast in the not-too-distant future. In the meantime, I have one request of you, my loyal audience.

Please be kind to each other. Stop your panic buying. Check in on a neighbor that may need help with anything at all. Reach out if a friend is hurting, even if it's by social media, telephone, text, or whatever method you use.

Social distancing may be a requirement to stop the spread of COVID-19 along with washing your hands, but all of it will only help us get through these difficult times a little faster.

minutes. The Bengals finally started to pull away, going on a 9-0 run to make it 49-40 with 2:34 remaining.

Hansen put ISU's run to an end with a rare four-point play, as she knocked down a deep three and the ensuing free throw after she was fouled on the shot. This launched an 8-0 run for the T-Birds and they were able to climb back within one, but the Bengals would hit a three at the buzzer to make it 52-48 with one quarter left.

The teams continued to battle with the gap between them never getting larger than six. It stayed that way until ISU's Callie Bourne hit back-to-back buckets to make it 64-56 with 5:12 to go. That seemed to cool off the T-Birds as they were just one for their next 10 from the field. They were able to keep it close with free throws, but couldn't cut it any closer than five as the Bengals closed out the 70-63 win.

T-Birds survive Vandal surge before cancellation of Big Sky Tourney

by Bryson LESTER

SUU ATHLETICS STRATEGIC COMMUNICATION

BOISE, Idaho — The Southern Utah men's basketball team won their fourth-straight First Round game in the Big Sky Conference Championship Tournament Wednesday afternoon, 75-69 over the No.10-seeded Idaho Vandals.

The Thunderbirds are now 17-15 on the season and will move on to face No. 2 Northern Colorado in tomorrow's quarterfinal matchups.

"It was a hard-fought game," SUU head coach Todd Simon said. "You've got to tip your hat to Idaho. They were very prepared and did a great job with their game plan. They play extremely hard and Trevon Allen is such a good basketball player, and it was quite a performance by him. But I'm proud of our guys. We just kept answering the bell, didn't get frustrated and down the stretch we made some big plays, got some big stops and got the rebounds that we needed."

Dre Marin was the leading scorer for the T-Birds with 19 points on four threes and 5-for-10 shooting from the field. John Knight III had 16 points while Cameron Oluyitan had 12 and Andrea Adams had 11. Adams was the leading rebounder with seven while Knight III had six.

The Thunderbirds shot 49.1 percent from the field and were 7-for-17 from three-point range.

Knight III opened the scoring for the Thunderbirds with a quick steal and a dunk less than a minute into the game. This opened an 8-2 scoring run for the T-Birds as they quickly jumped out to a six-point lead.

With the Thunderbirds leading by seven, the Vandals scored four-straight points to cut the lead to just three with 13:52 to go. The teams traded buckets for the next couple of minutes, with neither leading by more than five points.

The Vandals were the first to get a leg up and made it 17-16 with another four-point run, but Maizen Fausett stemmed the bleeding with a huge slam. That started a 10-4 run for Southern Utah in which Fausett scored seven of the 10 points. The Thunderbirds would go into the fourth media timeout of the half with a 27-20 lead.

The Vandals answered back with a huge run of their own and were able to tie the game at 27-27 with 2:25 to play in the first half. Two made free throws from Butler would give the Thunderbirds a 29-27 as they headed into the halftime break.

Both Fausett and Marin had seven points and Adams had four rebounds at the half.

Idaho took their first lead of the game early in the second half, outscoring the Thunderbirds 6-3 in the first two and a half minutes to take a 33-32 lead. The lead changed hands three more times in the next minute of play before the T-Birds used a 6-0 run to jump out to a 40-35 lead.

Much like the first half, the teams proceeded to trade buckets with every T-Bird that was on the floor getting in on the action. Southern Utah was able to keep Idaho at arm's length until Oluyitan hit back-to-back buckets to put them up by nine points with 10:12 to play.

The Vandals refused to give in however, as they chipped away at the lead until they were back within two at the 8:26 mark. They were able to tie the game at 61-61 with 6:08 to play.

The score tied four more times after that, with each team having an answer for the other. With 2:17 to play, the T-Birds were able to rattle off four-straight points and go up 73-69. Marin hit the final two free throws to seal the 75-69 victory.

WHEREAS, Chapter 14 of the Cedar City ordinance regulates the City Cemetery and those who are employed in the Cemetery; and

WHEREAS, Cedar City has adopted Chapter 14 of the ordinance of Cedar City, Utah, and said provisions contain specific language regulating the operation of the Cemetery; and

WHEREAS, Chapter 14 outlines the procedures of how rights and title to a lot at the cemetery can be terminated, how these lots are to be resold, and how the funds from these sales are to be expended; and

WHEREAS, the City Council makes the preliminary finding that prima facie evidence exists that the grantee or holder of the cemetery lots, as identified in Exhibit A, have abandoned said lot; and

WHEREAS, the City Council makes the preliminary finding that more than 60 years have passed since a grantee or holder has used any portion of the said lots, as identified in Exhibit A, nor does there exist in the Sexton's records a written designation identifying a person yet living to be designated a said lot; and

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED by the Cedar City Council that prima facie evidence exists that the grantee or holder of the cemetery lots, as identified in Exhibit A, have abandoned said lot; and City Staff are directed to:

1. Have a copy of this resolution personally served on the owner. The resolution shall notify the owner that the owner shall, within 60 days after service, express interest in maintaining the cemetery lot, site, or portion of the cemetery and submit satisfactory evidence of an intention to use the lot, site, or portion of the cemetery for a burial.
2. If the owner cannot be personally served with this resolution of the City as required by Section 14-20(4), the City will publish its resolution:
  - a. for three consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation within the county, and
  - b. mail a copy of the resolution within 14 days after the publication to the owner's last known address, if available.
3. If, for 30 days after the date of service or last date of publication of the City's resolution, the owner or person with a legal interest in the cemetery lots fails to state a valid interest in the use of the cemetery lot, site, or portion of the cemetery for burial purposes, the owner's rights are terminated and that portion of the cemetery shall be vested in the City.

This Resolution, assigned Resolution No. 20-0115, shall take effect immediately upon passage and acceptance as required herein.
