Domestic abuse defense training held

by Trinity PAJÓN

IRON COUNTY TODAY

Last Week, May 23, Cedar Creek held a training on defense against domestic abuse. The meeting was presented by Cedar Creek Awareness and Prevention Director Roxy Burkhart.

According to Burkhart, one in four women will experience domestic violence in their lifetime and that 40% of adult homicides are related to domestic violence. Burkhart also stated that Utah is the leading state for domestic violence.

Burkhart went on to explain the myths of why people abuse. Some of the myths that were listed included being abused as a child and mental illness.

"When an abuser abuses, they are trying to gain power and control over another person," she said. "There is no other reason that they do it; It's not drugs or alcohol that make them do it (and) it's not because they were abused as a child.

These are common myths that you hear about abuse."

Burkhart proceeded to list the types of abuse: physical, emotional, sexual, financial, digital, and spiritual.

According to Burkhart physical abuse includes physical actions in attempt to cause harm such as hitting, strangulation, kicking, grabbing, weight control, and pulling hair. Burkhart mentioned that strangulation is a big issue because even if the act didn't do serious harm in the moment or right after, there is still a possibility of death within the 72 hours after the event. Along with this there is little to no symptoms to warn the victim of the fatal injuries. Burkhart follows up by advising that if you or someone you know has been a victim of strangulation to seek medical assistance right away.

Burkhart explained that emotional abuse is the most

“When you respond to someone about these types of violence’s... you seriously could save someone’s life.”

OPINION

From the Editor

Everything but the kitchen sink

We receive a lot of letters to the editor on a weekly basis. Some seek to give information, confirmation or create contention. Others seek to complain, comfort or congratulate. While we cannot print each of them, it is good to see that we have a healthy level of freedom in Iron County.

Sometimes we can get lost in those freedoms, especially when we allow others to define us more than how we define ourselves. We can let the world, or our peers, tell us who we are or aren't and live our lives according to their desires and definitions of what success and happiness are for each of us.

COREY BAUMGARTNER
MANAGING EDITOR

It's not easy to change, for better or for worse. A good example is the current controversy concerning the name and mascot change at the Cedar High School. This has been and continues to be a difficult process. We have received many letters and comments of people exercising their freedom of speech. I hope when the dust settles, we can get back to cooperation and education.

Speaking of the name change, from the Cedar Redmen to the Cedar Reds, I think a recent letter to the editor says it best, "I'm gonna cheer for whatever is on our kids' jerseys. Because it's really about who's wearing them. I'll cheer my head off for the 'KITCHEN SINKS' if that's what they're called. And I'm sure you will too." Well said.

Want to submit a letter to the Editor

Submit your letter on our website ironcountytoday.com, or by emailing them to news@ironcountytoday.com or bring/mail them to 389 N 100 W, Cedar City, Utah 84721. All letters must be signed, be brief (generally under 300 words in length), list the author's city and give the writer's telephone number (phone number will not be printed). We reserve the right to edit all letters for length or content. For letters arriving electronically, we will use the author's e-mail address in lieu of a signature.

NO VACANCY?

The opinions stated in this article are solely those of the author and not of Iron County Today.

Most of us believe growth is positive. We want a growing economy and a ready availability of goods and services along with an increase in personal growth. Utahns pride themselves on being a "growing state"; it validates us that others want to live here too.

The irony is that many Utahns also have "not in my backyard" mentality. We desire growth, but are opposed to the changes in our lifestyle and in our neighborhoods.

The quandary was evident last week when a caller telephoned KSL-Radio during its "Talk to the Governor" program. Earlier that morning, the caller had seen his letter to the editor published in the Salt Lake Tribune in which he railed against population growth.

The caller said that such growth is not inevitable and should be contained. In his letter he wrote, "We live in a state that has limited natural resources needed to sustain life" and he asked, "Have you seen a government survey asking if you want the population of our state to double every ten years? And would anybody answer yes?" He also suggested that government limit building permits, water hookups and personal vehicles.

In response, Gov. Gary Herbert claimed that growth was desirable and that runaway growth in Utah was not occurring due to the decrease in the state's birthrate.

Cyclops

I'm sure Gov. Herbert's reply didn't satisfy the caller. In fact, population growth is both positive and disruptive. Ask any developer who broaches the idea of building apartments or other multi-unit housing. Before he or she can prepare a blueprint, the city planners will hear loud squawking about increased traffic and reduced home values.

The challenge is especially evident along the Wasatch Front where much of the population is squeezed between a mountain range and a lake. As a "desert state" we also rank among the bottom three states for available water.

The state's dominant religion also is impactful. Many members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints tell me how pleased they are that their adult sons and daughters stayed in Utah and purchased homes nearby. Couple that with the larger-than-average family size and you have a need/desire for single-family homes rather than compact condominiums or high-rise units.

The free market may alter growth. Housing in Utah is becoming increasingly unaffordable, but it

“Many Utahns have a “not in my backyard” mentality.”

Cedar Council moves to approve fiber optics

by Trinity PAJÓN

IRON COUNTY TODAY

Last Wednesday, May 22, the City Council voted to approve a franchise agreement with GoFiber and InfoWest on implementing a fiber-optic telecommunications system within the city.

On May 15, managing member of GoFiber, Lynn Beecher, and InfoWest representative, Randy Cosby, presented their experiences of installing fiber-optic telecommunications in other Utah cities including Provo, American Fork, and St. George, as well as their desire to bring the franchise to Cedar City.

GoFiber LLC provides fiber-optic telecommunication services to improve mobile and wireless broadband coverage. The telecommunication agreement, which was explained by City Attorney Tyler Romeril, will allow for GoFiber to provide these services to Cedar City.

GoFiber made a ten year agreement with the city in which they will provide these telecommunication services and in return they will have to pay a telecommunication license tax at the rate of 3.5%, repair any right of way to City standards, and their equipment must be located in a way that it will have minimal interference with the streets, alleys, and rights of way.

With this agreement, GoFiber also has the option to renew it every ten years.

The City Council determined that approving this franchise agreement would be in the best interest of the public and unanimously voted yes to the agreement.

Traffic options for 700 S 1850 W discussed by Cedar Council

by Trinity PAJÓN

IRON COUNTY TODAY

Last Wednesday, May 22, the City Council discussed traffic options the 700 South 1850 West intersection.

On May 15, Rex Dungan addressed the traffic issues at the intersection. These issues included speeding drivers and vegetation overgrowth. He suggested some options to resolve the issue and asked the council to look into it.

The city engineering department did several studies by the manual on Uniform Traffic Control Devices in order to determine whether a four-way stop sign would resolve the speed issue. However, the studies showed that the intersection did not meet the criteria which indicated that it needed a four-way stop sign based upon the traffic and speed information.

“I don't see any reason to make a change at this point based on the data.”

» Councilman Phillips

Councilman Phillips and Hartley discussed their experiences regarding the vegetation at the intersection.

“Yes, the vegetation does block it,” said Hartley. “I think that’s about 50% of our stop signs. As I continued driving, I realized that I don’t stop at the stop signs, I stop at the intersection instead. I was purposely stopping at the stop signs and you can’t see anything from where our stop signs are, so I don’t think the visibility is any different than what we got elsewhere in town as far as warranting something.”

The Council then discussed some ways that they could resolve the issues at the intersection. Councilwoman Hartley mentioned that they could use signage, or have it patrolled to help slow down the speeding drivers. Ultimately, the council decided to not do anything yet and to instead made a motion to revisit the issue another day.

Councilman Phillips said “I think it is good to note that 700 South is a very busy street. I think we (should) just keep an eye on it and maybe we frequently do some counts. Whether that’s every year or every six months, but I don’t see any reason to make a change at this point based on the data.”

Cedar City roadway improvements begin from Kevin KITCHEN

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

CEDAR CITY — The Utah Department of Transportation advises residents, businesses, and motorists of a multi-faceted rehabilitation project through Cedar City slated for Summer 2019.

The project includes:

- » Upgrading over 200 pedestrian ramps to bring them in compliance with current Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) standards.
- » Removal and replacement of degraded curb, gutter and sidewalk in various areas along 200 N (SR 56), Main St (SR 130), and Center St (SR 14) roadways (see map).
- » Asphalt rehabilitation (various locations) and micro surfacing.
- » New striping.
- » Concrete work (pedestrian ramps, curb, gutter and sidewalk) includes shoulder and sidewalk closures, and minor lane closures. Asphalt and resurfacing operations will involve lane closures and shifting traffic. Construction crews are dedicated to maintaining one lane of traffic in each direction with a center turn lane during construction. However, caution is urged in the construction area as equipment and crews are working very close to live traffic.

Motorists, businesses and residents may decrease stress and uncertainty by staying informed, planning ahead, using alternate routes and by planning a few extra minutes of extra travel time. The project is anticipated to be completed in September. To be included on a weekly email update list, please send an email to marty@frontlinepi.com with Cedar Streets in the subject line.

common types of abuse which often leads to physical abuse. This type of abuse includes public humiliation, telling you what to do, what to wear, threatening suicide, accusations of cheating, isolation, and harming a pet.

“This is really hard to overcome when you are being put down on a daily basis,” she said. “When you are being told what to wear, or who you can speak to, or who you can look at.”

In addition to this, Burkhart talked about how the threat of suicide causes the victim to stay in their unhealthy relationship because they are afraid of the abuser going through with the act.

“It is such a huge tactic and it’s used all the time, even with teens. ‘You break up with me (then) I’m going to go kill myself.’”

Burkhart then went on to talk about sexual assault.

“Sexual assault is pressuring or forcing you to do anything sexual that you are not comfortable with and or do not consent to,” she said. “This includes sexting, restricting access to birth control, and unwanted kissing or touching.”

She further explained how important consent is in life through a demonstration of borrowing someone’s pen. She talked about how we need consent in every aspect of our lives and sexual contact is no different.

Burkhart then explained Economic Abuse, which is when the abuser demands access to the victim’s money and or when the abuser prevents the victim from working. She remarked that the program called Purple Purse, a financial empowerment course, showed a statistic that 99% of victims of domestic abuse also experience economic abuse.

Burkhart then went on to explain digital abuse which included but not limited to sending threats, blackmail and revenge porn, forcing the sharing of passwords and monitoring the victim’s phone as well as constant calling and texting.

“We have survivors that come in to do protective orders and when you file a protective order you have to provide evidence that what you are experiencing is making you fear for yourself, that there has been some type of abuse that has happened,” she said. “And you will look at the call logs and there are literally a hundred calls in five minutes and two hundred text messages, ‘what are you doing? You better answer the phone,’ threat after threat.”

Burkhart proceeded to talk about the cycle of violence, which is common in abusive relationships. According to Burkhart the cycle occurs when the abuser is normal one minute, then suddenly they are violent the next (slamming doors, yelling, hitting etc.), and then the abuser buys the victim a gift, apologizes and tells the victim that they will change, and the cycle repeats.

Burkhart explained the warning signs of domestic abuse which include but are not limited to isolation, extreme jealousy, gaslighting, as well as digital control. She then advised on how to respond to victims.

“When you respond to someone about these types of violence’s it’s so important because you seriously could save someone’s life—Let them know how you feel about the situation (because) it honestly feels more impactful.”

Burkhart advises to stay away from statements that put blame on the victim such as “You should just leave them” or “Why do you put up with that,” and instead use ‘I’ statements such as “I’m concerned for your safety,” and “I’m so sorry that happened to you.” According to Burkhart, these ‘I’ statements take the stress off of the victim and allows them to gain perspective.

For more information about Canyon Creek go to www.canyoncreekservices.org and if you or someone you know are experiencing domestic or any other type of abuse please call the Hotline number at (435)233-5732.

hasn’t stopped out-of-staters from making Utah their home and the looming water shortage in southern Utah communities has not impacted the population surge there either.

Better minds than mine will have to find the answer. Most of us would rather see open space or productive farmland rather than a new subdivision every mile, but we must also be supportive of private property rights and resist irrational government control. I sympathize with the caller who spoke with the governor to a point, but I’m not yet ready to put a No Vacancy sign at the state borders either.

5th Annual Silver & Gold Soirée on Friday

by Tonisa CROSBY
FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

While the Orchestra of Southern Utah (OSU) has wrapped up the 2018-2019 concert season, the Orchestra certainly isn't finished for the year. The fifth annual Silver and Gold Soirée takes place on Friday, May 31, at 5-7 PM at the Barn at Cedar Meadows. The Orchestra of Southern Utah enjoys the Spring months leading into Summer for many reasons, the main one being the Silver and Gold Soirée which has become an exciting and unique event. The evening features a variety of art forms, including music and art, and is also a chance for those who support the Orchestra to get to know the members off the stage.

Suzanne Tegland, an OSU Board Member, OSU Violinist, and current Soirée Director, has been diligently preparing for this year's magical Soirée. In 2015, the OSU Board sat down for a meeting to discuss that year's new season. It was there, that the idea about creating an event where patrons and musicians could interact was brought up. With the help of Ariel Rhodes, OSU Flautist and Woodwind Section Leader, Suzanne and Ariel set up the first Soirée for the end of the concert season in the Spring. Since that first year, the Soirée has become an ongoing event and allows for patrons and those who attend the concerts a chance to get to know the Orchestra, browse and bid on artwork and items. "We wanted an event that got closer interaction with the musicians and the people who come to the concerts." Tegland said, "Often, those who attend the concert don't have the opportunity to really socialize with the Orchestra members. There's those on the stage and those in the audience and after a concert there's not a lot of time to socialize. The Soirée gets rid of that boundary and allows for those in the audience and those on stage to interact in an open setting."

The Soirée also acts as a fundraiser for the Orchestra, helping to fund music rental and purchase costs and keeping ticket prices down. "Ticket sales only cover about 10-15% of operating costs." Tegland

Cedar City Junior Ballet offers Dance Intensive

from Marlo IHLER

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

CEDAR CITY – Cedar City Junior Ballet is offering an exciting two-week Summer Dance Intensive, directed by Chris Mills, at CCJB's studio at 173 N. 100 W. It is scheduled for June 17-28, Monday through Friday both weeks, 10:30 a.m. - 4 p.m. and is open for both girls and boys, ages ten years to adult from beginning through advanced dancers.

This immersive workshop will focus on ballet technique, as well as other dance forms, such as tap, jazz, and Oriental dance. Other classes, such as drama, musical theatre, choreography, and cirque performance will round out the two-week program. There will be 50 hours of instruction for participants.

On the final day of the workshop, students will present a brief dance performance for family and friends, followed by a pizza party to celebrate.

"It is important for dance students to keep up on their training during summer months to maintain technique, flexibility, and strength," says creator and instructor Christine Mills. "It is too easy to let these things slide during summer months. We want them to feel confident and ready when the next academic year starts so we put together a varied and enjoyable curriculum for this year's Summer Intensive."

Enrollment is currently open and limited to thirty participants. Advanced pointe dancers will be required to take ballet classes en pointe. All participants will receive a free T-shirt commemorating their participation in CCJB's premier Summer Intensive Workshop. The participation fee is $325, with $125 due upon enrollment to reserve a place (non-refundable). The remaining portion must be paid by June 7. There will be a $50 late fee for registrations after May 31.

LEARN TO WALK ON A BALL and other cirque techniques during CCJB's Dance Intensive.

Cedar City Junior Ballet is proud to be Cedar City's only classical ballet company designed to involve community talent of all ages. Year-round enrollment in monthly classes for all ages and abilities are available without contract obligations. CCJB is also the only organization in Iron County to produce full-length ballets, including Peter and the Wolf, The Puppet-Show Man, The Secret Garden, The Sleeping Beauty, A Midsummer Night's Dream, Coppelia, and Cinderella. It is funded, in part, by Cedar City RAP tax and generous donations.

I wonder what Jem Finch became when he grew up?

by Mary Anne ANDERSEN

CEDAR CITY ARTS COUNCIL

“I sometimes wonder about Alexander and what happened to him,” my friend said. I knew what she meant; I think about him, too, and often wished I had some way to check in and see what trajectory his life took after we last heard of him. “Do you think he left Russia,” I asked her. She said that perhaps they both thought that, but then church began and we had to stop whispering about our mutual friend.

Alexander had the most marvelous ideas, things you’ve not heard before, but that felt right once he said them:

For the Count, his philosophical leanings had always been essentially meteorological. He believed in the inevitable influence of clement and inclement weathers; in the reshaping of destinies by the slightest change in the thermometer and then would go on to illustrate how weather had influenced a Napoleonic battle in spite of meticulous preparation.

But, alas, we have no way of checking in with Count Rostov because he lives between the pages of a book, the marvelous “A Gentleman in Moscow”.

However, in our minds, he is real and living quietly after escaping the Moscow hotel where he had been confined by a court after the Russian Revolution for the sin of once belonging to the aristocracy.

In your mind, don’t you know exactly how the house in which Boo Radley lived looks? I see the big trees, the overgrown shrubbery, the broken sidewalk with grass growing in the cracks, the sagging steps leading up to the dark front porch. I see Scout in her overalls following her friend and brother into scrapes during summer vacation. They all exist in my mind without aid of illustration. (Well, okay. Atticus is Gregory Peck, but it fits, so I don’t mind borrowing him from the movie.) To Kill a Mockingbird has been labeled the best book of the 20th century.

And I also have a clear picture in my mind of the basement room in which the family of Liesel Hubermann hid a Jew during the years of Hitler’s Germany. The fate of the stranger and her family hung on the ability of a little girl to keep a secret: “If you tell anyone about that man, I will take each and every one of your books and I will burn them. Next, they’ll take you away from me. They’ll drag that man away and maybe Mama and me too, and we will never, ever come back.”

I also loved The Book Thief because it made clear that not everyone in the land of my ancestors was stupid and cruel.

Here is one you might be less familiar with: Gilead. It’s a tender story of a husband, father, preacher, friend who knows about love—no drama, no terror. Read it, if you haven’t. It won a Pulitzer Prize.

I told my husband I need a way to infuse some joy into my life just now. What was I thinking? I’ve got hundreds of people on my bookshelves, waiting to meet that need.

Community Theatre to present 'Bright Star' on May 31st

from Stephen WAGNER

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

CEDAR CITY — Cedar Valley Community Theatre is proud to present the Southern Utah Premiere of Bright Star, with book, music and lyrics by Steve Martin and Edie Brickell, May 31st–June 8th at the Heritage Center Theatre, 105 N 100 E, Cedar City. This bluegrass-inspired musical is an incredible tale of faith, love, and redemption set amid the vibrant, American South at the end of World War II. When literary editor, Alice Murphy, encounters a talented, new writer recently home from the war, she sets out on a journey to understand the past she left behind, and an event that had the power to transform her forever. Through the eyes of its characters, Bright Star explores the extraordinary events in our lives that become the stories we pass down from generation to generation. As charmingly funny as it is deeply moving, Bright Star is a musical full of rich emotions and beautiful melodies you will treasure for years to come. All performances are at 7:30pm with an additional matinee on June 8th at 2pm. Tickets may be purchased at the Heritage Center box office or at www.cvct.online/shows. General Admission: $12.50. Discount Admission (seniors, students with ID, children 12 and under): $8.50 explained, “The Soirée helps fill-in funds that help keep ticket prices down and allows for free tickets like the 4th Grade VIP Passport.” The biggest part of the Soirée comes from those who donate to the event by providing for the silent auction and the drawing. There are artworks, gift certificates and baskets, that have been donated for this event. “It’s a fun evening out and it’s light,” said Tegland. “It takes place early in the evening, so that those who attend can add it to other evening activities. People can easily still go out to dinner and catch a movie, and still attend the Soirée. People do need to be present for the drawings but not for the silent auction, which allows an open come and go feel. There will be live music, beverages (alcoholic and non-alcoholic), and hors d’oeuvres.”

The Silver and Gold Soirée will take place on Friday, May 31st, from 5–7 P.M. at The Barn at Cedar Meadows, located on 1419 W 3000 N, Cedar City (Corner of Bulldog Rd. and 3000 N). Ticket cost $10 per person. Tickets are mandatory for entry to the event and must be purchased in advance. The Orchestra is still accepting donations for the drawings and silent auction. To purchase tickets or to make a donation, please call 435-590-6829.

FREE FISHING DAY

baits new and experienced anglers

GETTY IMAGES

by Faith JOLLEY

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

If you'd like to introduce someone to fishing — or you'd like to give fishing a try, but don't have a fishing license — Free Fishing Day is the perfect opportunity.

Free Fishing Day will be held on Saturday, June 8, and allows anyone to fish at any public waterbody in Utah without a license. It makes for a great family activity and is the perfect time to introduce your kids to fishing and get them outdoors. It's a great day not only for beginning anglers to give fishing a try, but is also a fun time for experienced anglers too.

"Because you don't need a license to fish that day, it's the perfect time to take someone fishing with you and introduce them to the sport," Randy Oplinger, sport fisheries coordinator for the Utah Division of Wildlife Resources, said. "And, early June is one of the best times to fish in Utah. All of the fish in the state, both warmwater and coldwater fish, are active and willing to bite this time of the year."

If you don't have any fishing equipment or you would like some fishing tips, you can check out of one of the DWR fishing events that will be held at waterbodies around Utah that day.

"At most of the events, equipment will be available for people to use," Oplinger said. "Volunteers will also be on hand to help you and your kids fish. Also, many of these waters will be stocked with fish before the event so there should be plenty of fish to catch."

Bristlecone Pond in Brian Head, Iron County

This DWR event is geared toward beginning anglers and will be held at the Bristlecone (Brian Head) Pond at 535 Brian Head Blvd. from 9 a.m. to noon. Experts will describe the different fish species found in the community fishery and will give information about fishing rules and regulations. Fishing rods, tackle and bait will be provided for participants to practice their skills. DWR employees will also be available to help with knot tying, casting and unhooking fish that are caught.

- » Free lunch will be provided, and a drawing will be held with prizes, courtesy of Sportsmen for Fish and Wildlife. You must be present to win.
- » For more information, contact DWR wildlife recreation program specialist Heather Talley at 435-868-8756 and heathertalley@utah.gov.
- » While the event is free, please register in advance if you plan to attend.

Little Reservoir in Beaver

This event is also geared toward teaching beginners to fish and will be held at Little Reservoir from 9 a.m. to noon. This workshop will include information about fishing rules and regulations and the different fish species found in the area. Fishing equipment will also be available at this event.

- » Free lunch will also be provided at this event and participants will be entered into a drawing with prizes.

You must be present to win.

- » To get to Little Reservoir from Beaver, travel east on paved Utah State Route 153 for 10 miles. Then turn right on Kents Lake Road (Front Road 137) for 0.8 miles.
- » For more information, contact DWR volunteer services coordinator Blaine Cox at 435-559-0798 and blainecox@utah.gov.
- » Participants are also asked to register for this event.

If you can't attend one of the free DWR events, another good option is to fish at one of the community ponds across Utah. You'll likely have company on Free Fishing Day, but these waterbodies are great places for beginning anglers to fish. The ponds are close to home, most have restrooms and other facilities, and many of them will be stocked with channel catfish — averaging 14 inches long — before June 8.

You can find all the community ponds on a map at www.wildlife.utah.gov

Zions Bank rewards Cedar City student for great grades

from Kallee FEUZ

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

CEDAR CITY — Cedar Middle School 8th grader Allison DeMille won a $100 scholarship savings account as a regional winner of the spring drawing of Zions Bank's Pays for A's program.

Pays for A's rewards students who put in the effort to make their grades count. Scott Bealer, manager of the Zions Bank Cedar City branch, and Shanea Reese, assistant branch manager, congratulated DeMille on her win during a branch presentation.

DeMille was entered into the drawing by bringing her report card to Zions Bank and was paid for every "A" she received. More than 2,200 students throughout Utah and Idaho entered the drawing.

"In an era of increasing costs for higher education, it's more important than ever for students to start saving for the future. We're proud that Allison has taken an important step towards achieving her academic goals," Bealer said.

Over the past 15 years, Pays for A's has rewarded thousands of students across Utah and Idaho for working hard in school.

"We're proud that Allison has taken an important step towards achieving her academic goals."

» Scott Bealer,
Zion's Bank manager

Students ages 12 to 18 can participate by bringing their most current term-end report card into any Zions Bank location. Students do not need a Zions Bank account to participate. They'll receive $1 per "A" deposited into their savings account, or 50 cents per "A" if they opt for cash. For each "A" on their report cards, students are entered into a drawing to win one of 150 regional scholarship prizes each worth $100 and one grand prize worth $1,000 in each state.

Don't dis me like that

The best lessons in life seem to come during the most difficult moments. It's an ironic twist to your torment. However, just because there's a lesson to be learned doesn't lessen the fact that it really did hurt, break, embarrass, scare, or scar you. And whether a million other people have experienced similar pains, perils, made the same mistakes, or tripped and fell at the same spots you did; don't let them generalize, or belittle your battles because they are yours and the pain is always personal.

Also, your lessons should go deeper than new commitments to make better choices. You should also feel a new strength of purpose within yourself. You should become better for your battles. Still, even with positive progress, I know it seems like for every one step you take in the direction of the life you want, something, or someone shows up from the past—or the present—and shoves you back two steps, or more. One day people praise your performance and the next day seem content to be contentious and put dents in your confidence. I think the worst thing anyone can do to someone else, especially when they're already fighting so much, is to give them a push over the edge, rather than pull them back to safety. But we're too busy, or don't want to interfere.

This reminds me of a word, or phrase, I used to hear people use when they felt they were being mistreated or disrespected by someone or something. You may have heard this form of 'slanguage' when people say, "Don't dis me like that." It basically means, "Don't treat me that way because it hurts me."

What can this three letter word "dis" teach each of us about living a better life with ourselves and others? Have you ever been "dissed" by friends, family, co-workers, or life? Has anyone ever put a (dis) in front of your (dis)courage, or tried to (dis)credit you and doubted your (dis)abilities, or your (dis)beliefs? Has anyone ever been distant, when you needed the comfort of a hug or a shoulder to lean on? Have you ever been distressed, disgusted, or disappointed? You get the point of this discussion. It's disconcerting how many times we've all been dissed by others and especially by ourselves.

We've all got some kind of battle raging in the background and behind the smiles are often hidden miles of heartaches. When someone says they've been there, they probably have, or are there now. Let's stop judging and grudging. Let's stop being bitter and start being better for our battles and fight them, together. I know you want to be happier, healthier, and holier. I know the battles ahead look like disasters, but if you want to win, it must begin from within. You must invest more than just an interest in your life. It's time to stop dishing out the dissing and find the peace you've been missing.

One of my favorite writers, Anne Lamott, said, “Almost everything will work again if you unplug it for a few minutes, including you.” I think of this when I’m feeling glitchy, when my processor runs slow, my memory won’t upload and I can’t download complete, coherent sentences.

When my energy drains like a cell phone battery, that’s the sign I’ve neglected my mental health for too long. I get snappy with my husband to the point he tells me to get out of the house and come back when I can act like a grown-up. After flipping him the bird, I pout to my car.

Self-care isn’t just bath bombs and margaritas. Bath bombs dissolve too quickly and margaritas only get me into trouble. Self-care is tapping into activities that recharge your energy levels. This might mean asking for help (I know, a woman’s ultimate sign of weakness) or finding more time for yourself.

Ordering pizza Monday nights is just fine. Jogging through the park is just fine. Hiding under your bed eating Hershey kisses is just fine. Telling your family you’re going to get ice-cream, then taking a month-long drive through the Andes is on the border of just fine.

The point is, find your own self-care routine. This should involve spending time alone. I’m sure in the 1600s, women who practiced self-care were burned at the stake. Why would a woman want to be alone when she gets to care for a 75-year-old husband and 10 children? She must be a witch.

I must admit, coming home from work I’ve had

POWER UP

Life & LAUGHTER

COLUMNIST

“Do you often eat an entire chocolate sheet cake while crying in the pantry?”

the thought, “I have so much to do tonight. I can’t even.” Then I drive around listening to self-help audiobooks until I can face life again. Sometimes self-care is hiding in the bathroom with a magazine for 30 minutes because if the kids ask for One. More. Thing, they’ll find themselves living in the garden shed for three months.

Every woman’s self-care routine is different.

Some women wear facemasks while they create a vision board they hope will teleport them to a mansion in Newport Beach where they’ll frolic with a Hemsworth brother. Some women need a hammock, a book and a set of earplugs. And DIY facial scrubs might get your skin glowing, but your mental health needs some polishing, too.

Women are so good at controlling everything. Well, women are so good at trying to control everything. Stress does not equal control. Worry does not equal control. You going out of your friggin’ mind is not control.

Self-care is a mental practice that involves 1) saying “No” once in a while, 2) saying “Yes” once in a while, 3) not berating yourself, 4) taking plenty of naps, 5) noticing when you’re running on fumes and 6) the occasional margarita. It’s about accepting who you are. Unless you eat Miracle Whip. Then you might need to reevaluate your life.

How often do you play? How often do you sleep? Are you so attached to the whiteboard schedule in your kitchen that any deviation throws you out of whack? Do you often eat an entire chocolate sheet cake while crying in the pantry?

Another favorite Lamott quote: “Lighthouses don’t go running all over the island looking for boats to save. They just stand there, shining.”

Be sure to keep your lighthouse operating. Change the bulb, wash the windows, maybe even add a fresh coat of paint so when you need to tap into your energy, it’s fully charged. Otherwise, your system will shut down, all on its own, and getting back online is a bch.

How's the air quality in your home?

CAN IT BE IMPROVED?

If it seems as though we have had an above-normal amount of moisture this spring, you are correct. Last year about this time our average precipitation for Iron County was around 60% of normal. This spring we are around 200% of normal precipitation and we're only halfway through the water year.

Because of so much rainfall and cooler weather, most of us are spending more time indoors. This time with windows closed means we have several days at a time without circulating the air we breathe. This can result in a build-up of 2 to 5 times more pollutants inside our homes, workplace, school, etc. compared with whatever may be outside. (<https://extensionhealthyhomes.org/>)

If you have family members wheezing, coughing, sneezing, feeling congested or having a headache, you may have increased indoor air pollutants. What are the pollutants we should worry about indoors and how can we better control the effect they have on our health?

Mold and Mildew

A top priority for healthy indoor air is to control for mold and mildew. While many in other parts of the U.S. deal with high humidity, it is not as common here in the West. However, with the high amount of precipitation we have received this year, more people may find evidence of mold/mildew for the first time inside their home. Besides bathrooms, basements, and under leaking sinks, older roofs may create damp pockets that can leak into attics or down walls under the sheetrock and paint. If rainwater doesn't run away from your home foundation, there may also be additional opportunities for mold in the basement.

It's important to do an inspection around the inside and outside of your home, fix any moisture problem right away to stop this quickly growing organism. Prevention is the best attack.

Pet hair and dander

Furry pets like dogs, cats, or gerbils, can cause asthma and allergy attacks because of their saliva and skin flakes (dander). If you do have pets, it is recommended to keep them out of sleeping areas of the house and keep them off fabric-covered furniture. Another helpful tip is to groom, brush and shampoo them outside- use a tub other than one used for family members.

Kathy's CORNER

by Kathleen RIGGS

UTAH STATE UNIVERSITY EXTENSION

Dust

Cleaning that involves vacuuming and dusting tend to stir up dust into the air. Those with asthma or allergies may need to wear a dust mask while these tasks are taking place. Keep in mind that clutter collects dust and makes it harder to keep a tidy home. To reduce the amount of surfaces that collect dust, use totes or cardboard boxes to store items.

Household cleaners

You can use most products safely if you simply follow the directions on the label. People run into trouble by using too much of a product or by mixing two products together. Read the label and then even if it is only while using the products, open a window, turn on a fan, and keep young children and elderly away from the area until it is aired out.

Furnace filters

Whether your furnace is still running occasionally on cold nights or you have your central air/swamp cooler hooked up, dirty air filters can also unleash unwanted particles into your home or leave air stagnant, unable to circulate. With technology at our fingertips, this can be resolved simply by having your phone notify you on a regular basis when a filter should be changed out.

Other steps

Additional steps for making certain the air in your home is safe is the installation of smoke and carbon monoxide detectors. Not only installing these items but also regularly checking to make certain batteries/electrical hook-ups are still working.

How does all of this tie back into high precipitation rates and healthy air? Let's just say it's a ripple effect and taking care of one potential air quality problem can free up time to take care of the next one on the list. Stay safe!

Inaugural goIT program a success

by Marguerite PINHEIRO

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

During a two-day goIT program on May 15 – 16, 2019, roughly 115 middle school students from three schools in Iron County School District (ICSD) gathered at Southern Utah University (SUU) to learn about design thinking and app design.

Through our partners at Southwest Education Development Center (SEDC), TCS was introduced to three local middle schools in ICSD (Cedar MS, Canyon View MS, and Parowan MS) to pilot the inaugural goIT in the entire state of Utah. Because of lack of space in the schools themselves since classes are still in session, SUU graciously hosted goIT on their campus, which added an additional element of excitement for students. The program's success in largely due in part to SEDC, SUU, ICSD's partnership, support, and enthusiasm for the program.

Over the course of the two days, students learned about what it means to be a computer scientist and a design thinker. After foundational learning, students ideated mobile app ideas that would solve self-identified problems in their community. In groups, students would perform market research, prototype their app on paper and the computer using MIT App Inventor, and finally wrapped up their experience with an entrepreneurial pitch to a panel of judges.

Although all students had excellent ideas, one group from each of the five classrooms were chosen to participate in a final pitch competition where they presented to a panel of elite judges for the chance to win full scholarships to a local bootcamp called Code Changers, provided by founder Jason Shallenburger. Judges included Stephanie Cooley (Business Technology Platform Services Manager for Zions Bancorp), Jim Washburn (TCS Senior Relationship Executive), Shannon Dulaney (ICSD Superintendent), and Troy Hunt (ICSD IT Director). The winning team created an app called Driver Logic, which would help drivers understand when it was unsafe to drive and provide safe rest stops along their route. In addition to student presentations, Cooley delivered a moving keynote address about the importance of pursuing your dreams in technology.

In addition to providing scholarships to their bootcamp, Code Changers has offered to also continue mentoring students and work with local tech professionals so they can develop their app. The apps, which have yet to be chosen, will be apps that are deemed viable, but are not necessarily the winning group.

Furthermore, TCS partnered with Utah client, Zions Bancorp, to provide professional mentors to the students. Fifteen employees from Zions dedicated at least one, if not two full workdays to assist both teachers and students during their goIT experience. Students and teachers were both able to bond with and learn from their mentors which exponentially

EPHESIANS 2:10

What thoughts and feelings does the word "masterpiece" bring to your mind? Priceless paintings? Stoic statues chiseled by world famous artisans? The 55,000+ museums in the world contain most of the greatest treasures on the earth. However, there is one work of art; one priceless treasure that is more magnificent and valuable than all their collectibles combined. Any guesses? Here's a hint. Look in the mirror. It's the treasure of you. That's not my biased opinion. That's God's truth. Look at everything beautiful in the world. What do you see? More importantly, how do you feel? When you look at the stars, do you feel majesty and humility? Would you dare compare yourself to such things? God wants you to know, without a doubt, that you are not a commonplace creation. You are His masterpiece. Each of the vast, beautiful, and breathtaking components of creation—from the furthest stars to the deepest oceans—were created for you. Not to compete with, but to compliment you. They are proof of how much He loves and treasures you above every creation in the entire universe. What would our lives, homes, and this world be like if we treated each other as masterpieces? Peace and prosperity in the world would increase immediately and exponentially. Despite all the ugly things man has deformed and defamed, never forget who and Whose you are. You are a priceless work of art from the Master's heart.

Dorothy Maxine Baird Shirts

Maxine was born July 25, 1923 in Salt Lake City, Utah, to Samuel and Dorothy Sleater Baird. She passed away May 26, 2019 at home in Cedar City, Utah, from complications incident to age. Her mother passed away in an automobile accident when she was 13 years old, and her father raised her and her sister, Lucille, with the help of many aunts and uncles. Her dad, a teacher at Granite High School, also conducted a train to Saltair during the summer, where Maxine and her sister enjoyed many fun experiences. She graduated from Granite High School in 1941 and went on to graduate from BYU in business and teach classes in shorthand and accounting.

She met Morris Alpine Shirts on a blind date before he left to serve in the Army Air Corp during World War II. This began a 2 ½ year courtship by mail. They were married in the Salt Lake Temple on October 27, 1945, immediately after he returned home from the Pacific theater. Maxine supported Morris in his varied activities, following him to Mt. Pleasant, Utah, Bloomington, Indiana, Provo, Utah, Tehran, Iran, and finally Cedar City, Utah. She typed all his books and accompanied him in his historical research. She supported all her children, spending thousands of hours at their athletic contests, concerts, programs, and anything else where her children were involved. Just weeks before her death she attended her youngest son's final band concert as a high school band director even though she could hear very little of it.

Maxine enjoyed working part time as a bookkeeper and secretary, but mostly she volunteered her capable services. She helped prepare mailings and was a hostess for many years for the Utah Shakespeare Festival. She was an election judge, PTA officer, and participated with the lady faculty at SUSC. She served in many positions in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints including ward Relief Society president and temple worker. Her life was one of service, and her thoughts were of others before herself. She helped found and was a lifetime member of the Cedar Chest Quilt Guild. She enjoyed at least 20 years of trips to Ruby's Inn for the annual quilt retreat. She was a voracious reader and enjoyed traveling with friends.

Maxine was preceded in death by her husband Morris, her parents, and her sister Lucille Baird Laub. A visitation will be held Friday May 31, at Southern Utah Mortuary, 190 N 300 W, Cedar City, 7-9 PM Another visitation prior to the funeral will be held June 1, 9:30 -10:30 AM followed by the funeral services at 11:00 PM at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints chapel located at 256 S 900 W in Cedar City, Utah.

We give our heartfelt thanks to her caregivers and medical doctors and many friends who have served her so well.

In lieu of flowers friends are encouraged to donate to the Utah Shakespeare Festival. Burial will be in the Cedar City Cemetery.

In high school, Maxine played Grazia in the play Death Takes a Holiday. In the final scene as a metaphor for death, Grazia enters the garden. Maxine has waited 80 years for her command performance--for which she is applauded on both sides of the veil. Mom we'll see you in the garden.

increased students' productivity and the quality of ideas they produced. TCS's hope is to continue building the partnership with Zions and with their help, expand goIT into the northern part Utah.

Utah's first goIT was such a success because it is the embodiment of multiple stakeholders in the community rallying together for the betterment of their youth. However, our entire program would not have been possible without the initial interest from SEDC. In the future, we hope to continue to partner with SEDC and expand in their region, which is the vast majority of Utah. The goal is, through their partnership, Utah will be one of the first states to make goIT a statewide initiative!

GIRLS RULED AT CEDAR IN 2019

When historians look back at the athletic fortunes of Cedar High in the 2018-19 school year, the big theme was a pretty simple one.

The Lady Reds were mistresses of their domains, as two 4A state championship trophies can attest.

The memorable moments began in earnest when Cedar's girls basketball team started its season with a three-point win at Beaver, followed by 24 more victories that culminated with the school's first state title in the sport and a 25-0 record.

Cedar was so good, they trailed after a quarter twice, survived four single-digit nail biters - including an overtime victory - and finished off a dream season by getting past Ridgeline and holding the 4A championship trophy unbridled joy before a big crowd at the America First Event Center on March 2.

It was clear that having Japrix Weaver back at full strength made a difference after a torn ACL ended her sophomore year before last year's quarterfinal playoff game, but two newcomers added even more to a lineup that proved to be a challenge the opposition couldn't conquer.

Junior Mayci Torgerson and sophomore Samantha Johnston — daughter of SUU women's basketball head coach Tracy Sanders — added an inside-outside presence that provided an extra jolt of offensive punch when necessary. Torgerson was recognized by USA Today's High School Sports section with an all-Utah second-team selection for her work.

And with only three seniors lost from this year's team, the potential is high for the championship moments to continue.

When the calendar hit spring, the Lady Reds track team delivered enough points to get by Desert Hills and claim a second straight 4A crown at the BYU campus May 19. It made up for the disappointment of two losses at the 4A softball tournament that ended the season way too early after 20 straight victories.

On the boys basketball side, the Redmen missed the state playoffs for the fourth straight season. Russ Beck resigned as head coach after three seasons and was replaced by Mark Esplin — top assistant with the girls basketball team — in April.

In the four years since Cedar last reached the postseason, they've produced an 8-36 record in Region 9 play, including just two victories at home (2-20). It gave greater clarity to why Beck shaved his beard following the team's victory over Snow Canyon in February.

The frustration returned in the regular-season finale as Hurricane couldn't miss early and secured the No. 3 seed from Region 9 for the 4A playoffs after a 61-36 rout over the Redmen.

» Cedar and Canyon View didn't reach the football playoffs in 2018, but the Falcons had a realistic chance when they faced Snow Canyon needing to win to get in as the No. 4 seed.

Despite trailing by two scores in the first half, Canyon View fell one fourth-down incomple-

Thunderbirds advance record number of student-athletes to Nationals

by Bryson LESTER

SUU ATHLETICS STRATEGIC COMMUNICATION

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — The Thunderbird track and field program has advanced a record number of student-athletes to the NCAA National Championships in Austin Texas, as four men and one woman are set to compete for a national title.

“At every level of competition there is a certain level of excitement,” SUU head coach Eric Houle said. “Winning the conference championship was crazy cool, but now to have the best athletes on this stage in the program rising to the level they needed to and qualifying more athletes to the National Championship than we ever have is a big accomplishment. I’m so proud of those athletes and the coaches that have helped get them there through the years.”

Frank Harris III was the first Thunderbird to punch his ticket on Saturday, clearing 7’ 1” in the men’s high jump to advance to the National Championship for the first time as a sophomore. The multi-sport athlete ended competition tied for sixth in the West Region.

After qualifying for back-to-back Indoor National Championships and claiming All-American status twice, Kasey Knevelbaard is headed to his first Outdoor National Championship in the men’s 1,500-meter. He ran a school record time of 3:41.69 to get there in a ‘come from behind’ performance. He ended up eighth in the field.

Capping off the night, Angie Nickerson became the first woman from SUU to make the National Championship meet since 2015, running the 5,000-meter in 15:48.08 and earning an automatic berth by finishing fifth in her heat.

George Espino and Skyler Porcaro qualified for the National Championships on Friday in the men’s 800-meter and men’s javelin respectively.

“We run a balanced program, this isn’t just a distance program, this is a jumps, throws and sprints program as well,” Houle said when asked about the diversity of events the T-Birds will be competing in on the next level. “That’s one of the biggest contributing factors of why we won the conference championship and why the women are so competitive. To be able to have that kind of balance boasts well for you during championship season.”

The four men that will represent the Thunderbirds makes up the biggest single-gender squad Southern Utah University has sent to the National Championships in history. The five combined between the men’s and women’s team also sets a new high mark for SUU.

In the women’s 1,500-meter, Sharlie Dimick broke her own school record with a time of 4:16.95, which put her in 14th in the West Region. Unfortunately, the time wasn’t quite fast enough to advance her to the National Championships.

Senior Cannon Brunsvik wrapped up his T-Bird career in Sacramento, throwing a 59’ ¾” in men’s shot put. For Brunsvik this was his NCAA Prelims debut.

The NCAA National Championships will take place June 5–8 at Mike A. Myers Stadium in Austin, Texas. The University of Texas at Austin will serve as the hosts for the event.

Dwayne Morgan granted sixth season of eligibility

by Bryson LESTER

SUU ATHLETICS STRATEGIC COMMUNICATION

CEDAR CITY — Southern Utah’s Dwayne Morgan has been granted a sixth season of eligibility from the NCAA, meaning he will be able to participate during the upcoming 2019-20 men’s basketball season for the Thunderbirds.

“Dwayne is a multi-positional player that provides versatility to our offense and defense,” SUU head coach Todd Simon said. “His toughness, experience and maturity will be important to the success of our team this coming season. We are excited that he was granted the opportunity to finish his master’s degree and compete for SUU in 2019-2020.”

The Baltimore, Maryland native appeared in just four games for SUU last season before his campaign was cut short due to an injury. He averaged 13 points per game in those four contests.

Morgan joined the T-Birds during the 2017-18 season, participating in Big Sky Conference play. He averaged 12.2 ppg during that span, and finished second on the team in rebounding in just 21 games with 140 total boards.

He transferred to Southern Utah from UNLV.

Morgan will be back on the floor alongside newcomers Jakolby Long (Iowa State), Daouda “David” N’Diaye (Illinois State) and John Knight III (Utah State). Josh Cornish will also return from a freshman season ending injury and incoming freshman Jarryd Hoppo rounds out the newcomers.

Addict II Athlete 'Catches a Cop'

by Trinity PAJÓN

IRON COUNTY TODAY

Last Weekend, Saturday May 25, Addict II Athlete held a race to catch cops at the Cedar City Main Street Park. This event, hosted by Coach of Iron County Addict II Athlete, Valerie Glass, was initiated to raise funds for the Addict II Athlete group.

Cedar City Sergeant Clint Pollock was the sole cop to volunteer to be caught by the runners. Pollock ran from Main Street Park to Bicentennial Park with the group chasing him not too far behind. By the end of the race, Pollock was caught by one of the members of the group. Glass talked about why this event is important for the community.

"What we are trying to do is change the relationship between (us) and police officers (as well as) change the stigma of addiction," Glass shared, then continued by talking about the Addict II Athlete organization.

"We have a group in Iron County called Addict II Athlete and our mission is to erase addiction and replace it with something of greater value. And that greater value typically is running, playing softball or something athletic--and offer Cedar City another recovery tool."

Addict II Athlete is an addiction focused support group that is free to the community. Their method of fighting addiction is to replace it with physical fitness. According to Glass the support group was created about eight years ago to change the stigma of addiction. She also remarked that the Cedar City chapter is relatively new, having started about a year and a half ago.

"We want the community to know that where there is a stigma of being ashamed, we are here. We also meet every Friday at 7pm at the SUU PE building in classroom 128. And so, if you or anybody that you know is struggling with addiction or if you just need something to do--there is always help and there is always hope and you don't have to have that stigma or carry that shame. We also established ourselves on campus so that we can reach out further into the college community."
