U.S.' Second Gentleman visits SUU interns at Bryce Canyon

from David Bishop

SUU DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC RELATIONS

Douglas Emhoff, the husband of Vice President Kamala Harris, met with Southern Utah University student interns Friday during a visit to Bryce Canyon National Park. The students are part of the IIC partnership between SUU, various land management agencies and Native American tribes. Mr. Emhoff encouraged the students to continue their pursuit of a career in public service and especially protection of America’s natural resources.

“It’s great to see young leaders, I see that all over the country. I love to see people who are starting a career in public service, which is what I’ve seen all day today at Bryce Canyon National Park,” said Mr. Emhoff. “We need clean water and clear air to drink. That’s why it’s important to have a new generation committed to a career in public service.”

Mr. Emhoff met with IIC interns Sergio Vasquez and Kezli Floyd. They explained the importance of the IIC program to both their future careers and their interaction with youth during visits to federal parks.

“Mr. Emhoff’s visit is a great thing for both the IIC program and Bryce Canyon National Park,” said Floyd, a recent education major graduate at SUU. “His visit is great because more people will now become aware of the IIC program, do internships and learn more about land management.”

Floyd and Vasquez are two of the eleven IIC student interns currently working in Bryce Canyon. Typically, more than 250 SUU students serve in internships in the National Park

Over 95 percent of those hospitalized from COVID not vaccinated

from Becki Bronson

CEDAR CITY HOSPITAL

The numbers are compelling: those who are being hospitalized with COVID are overwhelmingly ones who have not been vaccinated for COVID-19. Data from the Utah Department of Health shows that from March 23 to June 15, 2021, when people hospitalized with COVID-19 in the U.S. are unvaccinated.

"These new findings confirm what we've known for a while now: the vaccines work and help protect people," said Tamara Sheffield, MD, Intermountain Healthcare Community Health medical director. "The COVID vaccines work remarkably well to not only prevent infection from COVID-19, all Utahns aged 16 and older became eligible to receive the vaccine, there were 27,017 total COVID-19 cases identified in Utah, with 96.9 percent of them unvaccinated; there were 1,532 people hospitalized, with 95.2% of them unvaccinated; and there were 110 deaths, with 98% of them being unvaccinated.

Eric Packer, CEO of Intermountain Cedar City Hospital, said that the data speaks for itself.

"We are once again seeing numbers rise of patients with COVID, and it's clear that getting the vaccine is the strongest way to prevent getting hospitalized from COVID."

Dr. David Blodgett, health officer for Southwest Utah Public Health Department, stresses the importance of getting the COVID vaccine. "The single best way to stay out of the hospital and avoid the effects of this disease is to get vaccinated," Blodgett said. "This vaccine is almost perfect at keeping people out of the hospital and keeping them from dying."

The data overwhelming supports this, as new analysis by the Associated Press based on CDC data found nationally more than 99% of but are also very effective at preventing hospitalization and death."

So far, the vaccination numbers in our area of southwest Utah show that roughly 64 percent of the eligible population is fully vaccinated. While that's not as high as Blodgett and others would like to see, it does include 85 percent of those ages 75 and older — which has been determined as the highest risk age group.

"The 85 percent number is good, but that means 15 percent of those at greatest risk are not vaccinated," Blodgett said.

The challenge now, Blodgett said, is to wade through some of the contradictory and often inaccurate messaging around COVID-19. "We're happy to talk to people about their concerns and we have answers to vaccine related questions on our website," Blodgett said. "All we can do is continue to be consistent and provide correct information for people. We want to be a trustworthy source for information on this situation."

Blodgett said it is extremely unfortunate that so much of the information available nationally has

"...it's clear that getting the vaccine is the strongest way to prevent getting hospitalized from COVID."

American Packaging Corporation picks Cedar City for first venture into Western United States

Last week, I announced with excitement that American Packaging Corporation of Columbus, Wisconsin will be expanding its operations in Cedar City with the construction of a new 275,000 square-foot manufacturing plant beginning in the next several weeks. APC will create 135 new jobs and invest nearly $127 million into this project just west of the GOEX manufacturing site in Port 15 Utah. The company plans to begin operations here by the end of 2022. Their plan goes beyond these initial job estimates, as they intend to expand and grow in Cedar City.

Established in 1902, American Packaging Corporation (APC) is a family-owned flexible packaging converter and renowned leader in the North American packaging industry. With more than a century of experience serving a wide range of markets, APC specializes in flexographic and rotogravure printing, multi-ply extrusion, and adhesive lamination of film, paper and foil, as well as pouch and bag fabrication to meet a variety of requirements. With more than 100 years of history, APC has experienced only one major ownership change, when the Schottland family purchased the company from the Kardon family in 1986. Today, APC operates five manufacturing plants in Wisconsin, New York and Iowa, and employs approximately 1,000 talented, motivated professionals, including nationwide sales reps and field technical support.

I have had the opportunity to work very closely with this project, which came to our economic development department through a site selection firm and the Economic Development Corporation of Utah. The site selection process is long and complicated, and decisions this large are taken very seriously. Cedar City competed with dozens of potential locations throughout the Western United States and, in the end, it came down to us and a community in Idaho. Our proximity to major Western markets, our railroad connectivity, and the culture and character of our community factored heavily into APC's choice to locate here.

American Packaging Corporation's president, Jeff Koch, credits APC's longevity and success to its high standards and its core values statement, "It's all about treating everyone as family, and families watch out for and support each other, period." APC stresses respect for their employees and their employees' families.

"They are the foundation of our company and their safety, health and well-being is our highest priority." The company also emphasizes "respect for clients, community and self; for the environment and sustainability; for the industry and our competitors."

In one of my many conversations with Mr. Koch, he made it clear that his company will take an active role in becoming an active part of our community, just as they do at their five other locations. APC is committed to lead by example in Cedar City, providing new opportunities and helping their new "family members" to succeed.

Understanding Cedar City's history and culture of hard work, integrity and community helped APC's leadership see what a perfect fit our city is for their success. We have a number of manufacturers in Cedar City that have headquarters and multiple locations throughout the U.S., such as Genpak, GAF, Charlotte Pipe, Mauser Packaging and many others that continue to succeed and expand here. We have an excellent manufacturing community and outstanding workforce training through Southwest Technical College and Southern Utah University.

Like the rest of the country, we are currently experiencing tight labor and housing markets, but these trends come and go, and APC understands this. They are invested in Cedar City for the long run. Mr. Koch said that now is not the easiest time to be building and hiring, but they are confident they can find the staff and the resources in Cedar City that will allow them to grow and succeed in their western expansion. We are excited to see this company exceed their goals and expectations in our community.

I-15 lane restrictions at Virgin River Bridge No. 1

The Arizona Department of Transportation advises drivers to plan for lane restrictions on Interstate 15 at Virgin River Bridge No. 1 while an inspection is performed on the bridge. The bridge, which is being replaced as part of a project that will extend into 2024, is near the community of Littlefield in northwestern Arizona.

Drivers should slow down, proceed through the work zone with caution and watch for construction personnel while the following restrictions are in place from 6 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday, July 12, through Friday, July 16:

Southbound I-15 will be narrowed to one lane of travel at milepost 9. The speed limit will be reduced to 45 mph.

Later this summer, drivers can expect additional lane restrictions and traffic shifts as part of the bridge replacement project. One lane of traffic in each direction will be maintained throughout the project.

The 29-mile segment of I-15 in Arizona directly connects Nevada and Utah and is a heavily traveled commercial and economic corridor linking southern California with the Rocky Mountain region.

Schedules are subject to change based on weather and other unforeseen factors. For more information, please call the ADOT Bilingual Project Information Line at 855.712.8530 or go to azdot.gov/

Angels working to cool off local elderly residents during heat wave

Angels are at work right now to protect local seniors who are living in stifling – and potentially dangerous temperatures brought on by the major heatwave that has a grip on the area.

Keep in mind, heat stroke and heat exhaustion are a real problem among the elderly and there is plenty of evidence about it.

According to research compiled by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, 40% of heat-related fatalities in the U.S. were people over 65. CDC researchers also say seniors are more prone to heat stroke and heat-related stress because their bodies can't adjust to sudden changes in temperature.

The National Weather Service even suggests that there are more heat-related fatalities in the United States than there are during cold weather outbreaks. Heat when combined with certain medications, can seriously put seniors at risk. There are many seniors who don't have AC.

Considering the fact that some 80-86% of seniors suffer from a chronic condition or disease that requires medication, the summer heat can pose significant challenges! Heat can change the molecular form of active chemicals in certain medications. Drugs may decompose and possibly affect the potency of the medication.

Tips to Help Seniors Stay Cool

DRINK UP - Seniors need to drink plenty of water or juice, even if they're not thirsty. Dehydration is the cause of many heat-related health problems. Avoid alcoholic or caffeinated drinks, which can contribute to dehydration.

DRESS COOL - We're not talking about the latest fashion trends. When it's hot out, seniors should wear light-colored, lightweight, loose-fitting clothes and a wide-brimmed hat.

MIND THE MIDDAY HOURS - During extreme heat, seniors should stay indoors between 10 a.m. and six p.m. when the temperatures tend to be hotter.

TAKE IT EASY - Seniors should avoid exercise and strenuous activity, particularly outdoors when temperatures are on the rise. Aim for A/C - If a senior's home isn't air conditioned, they should seek out a public place with air conditioning during times of extreme heat, such as a mall.

With the heat wave lingering, this is a very important story to tell sooner than later.

FROM THE EDITOR

The Write Stuff

Having humbly held the editorial helm of this newspaper for nearly 2 and a half years, I am convinced of two things when it comes managing a newspaper. One, a newspaper cannot thrive without consistent content. Two, we need consistent committed reporters to gather and garnish that content. As you may know, we no longer have enough reporters to keep up with our growing community.

As such, you will notice an ad in this week's paper requesting reporters to help us cover City Council news, new businesses and even photographers.

What I will tell anyone wanting to write and/or take photographs for us is that they must do so more for the opportunity to make a difference in our community than any other monetary motivation.

To those who wonder if this request for assistance means this ship is sinking, I would answer by suggesting that Noah didn't wait for the first raindrop to fall before beginning to build the ark. And even though we survived COVID, we're not taking any chances with such an asset in our community as this newspaper. Not as long as I'm here, not on my watch.

THOUGHT OF THE WEEK

"One of the big questions in the climate change debate: Are humans any smarter than frogs in a pot? If you put a frog in a pot and slowly turn up the heat, it won't jump out. Instead, it will enjoy the nice warm bath until it is cooked to death. We humans seem to be doing pretty much the same thing."

Reevaluating the true meaning of "Freedom"

The opinions stated in this article are solely those of the author – not Iron County Today.

During the July patriotic holidays, the most common refrain is "freedom." Unfortunately, some speakers misrepresent the term for "ultimate freedom", a weed not indigenous to our country. In a recent interview with a man responsible for erecting the world's largest U.S. flag, he claimed that Old Glory represented "the freedom to do anything we want." I also consistently hear people saying that Americans have lost their freedom, but they fail to identify which particular freedoms have been squashed.

Maybe it is time to highlight some of our freedoms, along with the "procedural safeguards" which Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter said were essential for real liberty.

We have the freedom to practice a religion or spiritual belief; you many not have the freedom to encourage someone else to be bitten by a poisonous snake in order to prove God's protection.

We have the freedom to drink alcohol; you don't have the freedom to toss down six vodka tonics and drive a 20,000 lb. piece of machinery down the freeway.

We have the freedom in most circumstances to own a firearm; you don't have the freedom to shoot a person in the thigh simply because he or she sets foot on your front lawn.

We have the freedom to earn a living, and in fact, earn as much as we internationally without a passport.

You have the freedom to select your own doctors; you don't have the freedom to pick your own physician and force your insurance company to pay for it.

We have the freedom to enjoy our public waterway; you don't have the freedom to pollute the water supply.

We have the freedom to smoke cigarettes or vape; you don't have the freedom to blow potentially lethal smoke inside an airplane, public building, or most private businesses.

We have the freedom to demonstrate and protest; you don't have the freedom to obstruct traffic or damage property.

Yes, freedoms have always been limited. You can hate your neighbor, but you can't harm him. The concept of freedom is so important it cheapens it to tie it to such silly arguments as the "freedom" to light fireworks in extreme drought conditions or to not wear a mask in order to stop a deadly disease. Soldiers did not offer up their lives so that you can enjoy the freedom to water your lawn whenever you want. Your tulips will understand!

You have the freedom to read this column. You also have the freedom to disagree with it, crumble it up, burn it, or use it as carpeting for your birdcage. Important freedoms like these have not been taken away.

can through hard work, luck, and intelligence; you don't have the freedom to evade taxes on that income.

Religious organizations have the freedom to only hire men and women

"Soldiers did not offer up their lives so that you can enjoy the freedom to water your lawn whenever you want. Your tulips will understand!"

who have similar beliefs; you don't have that freedom if the organization is supported by public tax dollars.

You have the freedom to travel; you don't have the freedom to travel

Welcome Superintendent Dr. Hatch

We congratulate and Welcome Dr. Lance Hatch as the new Superintendent of the Iron County School District. Dr. Hatch is well qualified and has improved student performance in his previous endeavors. We look forward to future dialogue with him and working with him as parents and concerned citizens being relevant in the education of the future generations.

In the Utah governing code, section 53E-2-201 we find: Parents have the primary responsibility for the education of their children and elect representatives in the Legislature and on state and local school boards to administer the state public education system. The code further states that – public schools fulfill a vital purpose in the education and preparation of informed and responsible citizens who fully understand and lawfully exercise their individual rights and liberties, become self-reliant and able to provide for themselves and their families and contribute to the health, welfare and security of the state and nation. In implementing all policies and programs the School Boards shall respect, protect and further the interests of parents in their children’s public education and promote and encourage full and active participation and involvement of parents at all public schools.

Critical Race Theory is in the news. We applaud the Utah State Legislature for adopting two resolutions encouraging the Utah State School Board to ban the teaching of Critical Race Theory in schools. WE also applaud the Iron County Commissioners for taking a proactive stand against CRT. This divisive false theory is only promoted to create further hate among people of all races and ignores the basic fundamentals of human dignity and choice. Our students in Iron County are taught to respect all people, serve all people and understand and celebrate all cultures.

To this date we are encouraged by the states, which have banned by Governor decree or legislative action or have proposals in place to ban CRT in public schools. To date these states include

“We want Superintendent Hatch to be successful and that will happen as our students are successful and the parents and citizens are relevant, engaged, and helpful.”

Iowa, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Texas, Rhode Island, Missouri, Arizona and Louisiana, and Utah. We encourage the Iron County school district to formerly adopt such a proposal to emphasize this model to the staff and teachers and parents in Iron County.

We encourage all parents to become fully aware of the programs and policies at the schools, which their children attend. Request to review curriculum and behavior policies and be relevant in comments and letters to the new Superintendent and members of the School Board. Parents have the Primary responsibility. We want Superintendent Hatch to be successful and that will happen as our students are successful and the parents and citizens are relevant, engaged, and helpful.

Maverik Madness

One may not naturally think of the Maverik gas/convenience store as an example of “corporate greed,” but on Tuesday, June 22nd, I experienced firsthand what some would probably term this kind of greed.

I went to the Maverik location on the corner of Main and 200 S in Cedar City gas up my car. When I inserted my credit card into the slot at the gas pump, immediately a Maverik commercial appeared on the TV installed into the pump and my ability to proceed pumping gas was stopped dead!

I assumed the video would only last about 10-15 seconds at most. It went on and on for two full minutes while I was held literally “captive,” against my will. I tried to escape this involuntary captivity by pressing the cancel and stop buttons, but they also would not function during the entire video.

What a dumb idea! What if I had a passenger to take to the hospital or was in some other kind of emergency? This manipulation of me, their valued customer, really ticked me off. When the pump then allowed me to proceed, I cancelled my purchase and complained to the store clerk. I told her that I would never purchase from Maverik again if they foolishly continued with this dumb idea. I also called their corporate HQ in SLC and complained to them as well.

This may have been a company experiment, but whoever thought up this stupid gimmick should be fired or demoted.

How the Bipartisan Infrastructure Plan would benefit Utah

Looking around our communities, it's not uncommon to see roads, bridges and other infrastructure in need of serious repair. And as one of the country's fastest growing states, Utah is also in need of additional infrastructure. For years — decades, even — elected officials have asserted that we needed to turn our attention toward our nation's aging infrastructure. Yet various challenges and disagreements have resulted in little progress.

When he first took office, President Joe Biden proposed an infrastructure plan that would cost nearly $2 trillion — an unprecedented request both in terms of the amount of spending and the types of projects he wanted to fund. Republicans unanimously refused to sign up for the multitrillion-dollar spending, tax hikes, huge deficits and expanded social programs.

For several months now, I have been working with a group of colleagues to see if we could reach agreement on a bipartisan path forward. It was pretty clear that if the Democrats wrote their own partisan bill, Utah would end up with the short end of the stick.

As a result of our group's work, Senate Republicans and Democrats have agreed on a proposal that is strictly limited to physical infrastructure. It does not raise taxes. It spends less than one-third of the president's original plan. And because it is largely comprised of legislation that has already gone through the traditional legislative process with bipartisan support in the committees of jurisdiction, it is truly bipartisan.

The White House has endorsed our bipartisan plan.

It is estimated that 62 bridges and more than 2,064 miles of highway in Utah are in poor condition. Under our plan, Utah would receive substantial funding to repair these deteriorating roads, bridges and highways. Right now, Utahns are forced to use only surface streets to make the commute from Salt Lake City to the west side of the valley because there isn't highway infrastructure in place. In addition to funding for necessary repairs, Utah would also receive funding to expand our infrastructure so we can keep up with our rapid growth.

The bipartisan plan would also make investment in Utah's public transportation systems, helping to clear up some of the traffic on our roads. This is particularly important along the Wasatch Front where air quality is a critical concern. It would also help modernize the nearly 17% of public transit vehicles in our state that are on their last legs. As of now, my Smart Intersections Act — legislation to reduce traffic congestion by modernizing traffic signals — will also be included in this bipartisan package.

IRON COUNTY WATER STEWARDS

by Ashley Langston

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

ROY "PUG" URIE

During his time as an Iron County Commissioner, in the 1990s, Roy "Pug" Urie saw the need for a water conservancy district, and his efforts were critical in forming the Central Iron County Water Conservancy District, which works to find water solutions and ensure the future of the Cedar Valley.

He worked with Joe Melling, who was the Cedar City Manager, to facilitate the entire effort. Together they met with community leaders, discussed the establishment of the District, and found the right people to help with each stage of the process. Property owners were identified, letters were sent out, and signatures were gathered during the 6-year process.

Dane Leavitt, who was recruited by Urie and Joe Melling to help get signatures to form the District, said Urie was a dedicated public servant.

"He worked steadily to help our area prepare for the water needs that we are now seeing," Leavitt said. "He certainly lit the flame and saw the need, and he was an active participant week in and week out as we worked with leaders across the area."

Since the District was signed into existence in 1997, staff and board members have continually sought out solutions to the valley's overdrawn aquifer. They have focused on optimizing the water that is available in the area, through recharge and conservation projects and education efforts. The District is also working to import water from Pine Valley, about 60 miles northwest of the Cedar Valley.

Urie was a member of the Utah Water Resources Board for 17 years, and he served as a city council member. He was a county commissioner for eight years, and later served on the Central Iron County Water Conservancy District Board of Directors.

Urie was also featured in a Deseret News article on Nov. 4, 1994, when he was running for re-election to the county commission. He spoke of his time so far on the Utah Water Resources Board.

"I've felt all my life that I needed to put some effort into my community, and I worked in civic groups all of my life, and that aspect has committed me to that kind of service," Urie said in the article. "I'm honest and fair and ... when I make a commitment, I do the best I can to keep it."

Leavitt remembered a time, during a terribly dry year, when he and Urie were among a group of men one Sunday and the conversation turned to complaining about the lack of water.

"Pug quietly listened," Leavitt recalled. "At an appropriate moment he quietly said, 'Well, what do you expect? We live in a desert. There will be years like this. We just live with it, do our best today, and better prepare for the future. There will be better years.' His wisdom quieted the complaints. I miss Pug. He had a rare capacity to bring people together."

The Iron County Water Stewards program recognizes community members for contributing to the effort to optimize every drop of water in Iron County. The Central Iron County Water Conservancy District (CICWCD) is actively engaged in education, conservation, reuse and import projects to meet the growing demands on local water supply. For every effort you make to conserve, we consider you a water steward, too. For more of the story and to Get to Know Your H2O, visit www.cicwcd.org.

Outdoor Pickleball Courts A Swing and a Miss

MAILE'S PLAN: Outdoor Pickleball

GARTH'S PLAN:
Indoor Sports Court

Last week, Mayor Wilson-Edwards announced the use of $500,000 of RAP tax to construct eight outdoor pickleball courts in a single location. In a city where snow and extreme heat take turns dominating the climate, outdoor courts make no sense.

The mayor's pickleball plan may work for a handful of residents, a handful of weeks out of the year. In a city where we spend months and years studying projects to death, then suddenly move forward without any study, this looks like political showmanship.

Eight months ago, I put forth my own proposal – to build multi-purpose indoor community gyms throughout Cedar City with a range of amenities:

- 4 Pickleball courts each
- Basketball courts
- Year-round use unconstrained by weather
- 24/7 access with reservation pin code
- Room for spectators
- Convenient locations near neighborhoods
- Adjacent parks with splash pads and other features

These community gyms can be built for a low cost, and private donors are already lined up to foot a significant part of the bill.

Most importantly, this investment will make a real difference in the lives of Cedar City residents, instead of sitting unused several months out of the year.

You make the choice--the mayor's outdoor court vanity project, or an elegant indoor multi-use recreation solution that adds true value to our community.

IRS changes course after Sen. Lee, Rep. Owens send letter on religious liberty

from Brecken Denler

PRESS SECRETARY

WASHINGTON – After a June letter to the Commissioner of the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) sent by Sen. Mike Lee (R-UT), Rep. Burgess Owens (R-UT), and colleagues, the IRS reversed course on a determination removing tax-exempt status of a religious values group. The letter protested the IRS claim that “the sanctity of life, biblical marriage, and biblical justice” were associated principally with political platforms.

Of the letter, Sen. Lee said, “I am glad to see that after receiving our letter, the IRS reversed course on what would have been a dangerous and discriminatory decision. Religious groups must be free to teach their beliefs without fear of government retaliation.”

Rep. Owens said, “With this politically motivated and discriminatory decision, the IRS contradicted itself and alienated Americans of faith. Religious prejudice should never be tolerated, especially from our federal institutions. I’m glad to see this biased determination reviewed and corrected.”

The June letter read in part: “We write today to express extreme concern regarding a recent Internal Revenue Service (IRS) determination on the tax-exempt status of Christians Engaged, a nonprofit organization located in Texas. We urge you to personally review this determination, and remove the individual, or individuals, responsible for the blatantly biased, discriminatory, and flawed reasoning that led to the determination.

“Mr. Martin also takes offense to Christians Engaged’s teachings regarding “freedom of speech, defense, ... borders and immigration, [and] U.S. and Israel relations.” Millions of Americans draw deeply from their religious beliefs to inform how they vote and many religious organizations conduct get out the vote efforts. In fact, President Biden himself campaigned alongside church leaders during the 2020 presidential race.

“The IRS must objectively analyze applications for tax-exempt status and cannot allow political biases to creep into its decisions. We urge you to immediately review Christians Engaged’s application for 501(c) (3) status personally, and terminate the IRS staff involved in the flawed and politically motivated reasoning behind the determination.”

Last year alone, the IIC internship program celebrated nearly 100,000 conservation hours with 182 interns and crew members earning $1.4 million in wages and benefits over the summer.

DYNAMIC DUO

Husband-and-wife acting team to bring spooky, frenetic farce to life at Utah Shakespeare Festival

from Donn Jersey

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

Husband and wife Michael Doherty and Alex Keiper will be taking over the Randall L. Jones Theatre stage in the Festival's last play of the 2021 season. The spooky and frenetic farce (featuring the two actors playing five roles) will open on July 29 and run through October 9.

The plot of this frantic play begins with hyper, over-the-top shenanigans and heats up from there: Jo Smith arrives at her local theatre for an audition with the director Vyvian Jones, but it turns out that she has actually been invited there by Beverley, Vyvian's twin brother, who wants her to impersonate her own twin sister Fiona to squelch the rumor that Beverley has slept with Fiona. And that's just the first act. Whew!

Comic actors Doherty and Keiper are just the duo to pull off this high-energy comedy.

Michael Doherty, who will be playing the three Joneses, is well known at the Festival for his comic roles. He played Speed in The Two Gentlemen of Verona, Tranio in The Taming of the Shrew, and Lord Fancourt Babberley in Charley's Aunt in 2015; Tom Sawyer in Big River and Charlie Baker in The Foreigner in 2018; and the Narrator in Every Brilliant Thing in 2019.

He has also appeared off-Broadway in Dublin by Lamplight and in other theatres such as Berkeley Repertory theatre, Milwaukee Repertory Theatre, Denver Center, Cleveland Play House, Cincinnati Playhouse in the Park, and Connecticut Repertory Theatre. He is a member of Actors' Equity Association.

Playing the two Smiths, Alex Keiper, is appearing at the Festival as an actor for the first time this summer; however, she worked as an assistant director on the Festival tour of Every Brilliant Thing. She has worked in theatres across the country, including Milwaukee Rep, Actors Theatre of Louisville, Arden Theatre Co., Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia Theatre Co., Gulfshore Playhouse, 11th Hour Theatre Co., Theatre Horizon, Theatre Exile, and InterAct.

She also has been awarded an Independence Foundation Fellowship and a Barrymore Award for Best Lead Performance in a Musical for LIZZIE: A Rock Musical. She is also a member of Actors' Equity Association.

Complete casting for all shows, as well as bios and photos of all actors, is available on the Festival website at www.bard.org/actorsartist.

The Festival's 2021 season is June 21 to October 9. Plays will be Pericles, Richard III, The Comedy of Errors, The Pirates of Penzance, Ragtime, Cymbeline, Intimate Apparel, and The Comedy of Terrors. Tickets are available by calling 800-PLAYTIX or visiting www.bard.org.

Michael Doherty and his wife, Alex Keiper, will join forces for a frightful but funny, "frenetic farce" in the final play of the Festival season.

Ardith Fish opens exhibit at Groovacious' Art Wall Gallery

by Shay Baruffi

IRON COUNTY TODAY

Ardith Fish celebrated the opening of his first exhibit on July 8th at Groovacious' Art Wall Gallery. The exhibit, "Black Market Underground Art/Abstract Expressionism, Impressionism, Expression Art," features vibrant and unique abstract art. "I believe there is a historic precedent set by the different artist and different art movements. Impressionism is a good starting point for me. Impressionism was a revolution in art that changed how art is perceived," states Fish in his artist statement.

Ardith uses a variety of materials and methods to create his distinctive art pieces, detailed in each painting's description. Along with different drying times of paints and the direction of the canvas for drip effects, Ardith employs the use of several agents to create interesting textures. These include, WD-40, tempera paint powder, glitter, asphalt emulsion, enamel, mineral spirits, house paint, construction colorants, and even nail polish. Ardith's impressive use of these resources generate fascinating textures and pigments. Check out Ardith Fish's exhibit at Groovacious in Cedar City throughout July.

A highlight of the evening was Enoch Mayor Geoffrey Chesnut retiring the violin bow of Marilyn Richardson Alger. When the Enoch Orchestra started back up a few years

I always know where my rotary-dial phone is!

by Mary Anne Andersen

CEDAR CITY ARTS COUNCIL

You know how some memoirs use scientific advances to give an idea of an individual's lifetime?

"His father drove a horse and buggy and he lived to see a man on the moon." For my life, the evolving telephone is the indicator of just how long I have been communicating with my fellow human beings. In middle school, I began talking to my friends over something called a "party line."

A party line was a phone line shared among neighbors. In our case, there were four families on the same line. When you wanted to make a call, you carefully lifted the receiver to make sure one of your neighbors wasn't already talking. If so, you replaced the receiver, waited a few minutes and tried again. Line is clear, so you can make your call, always with the awareness that you can't talk long because one of the other families might be waiting to use the line. You knew because you heard the slight click as someone picked up their phone, and you then hurried your call to its conclusion. And you were always aware that someone might be listening in. Our nemesis was the Foote family; their heavy sighs when they heard our voices blew our hair back. The upgrade to a private line was a great day!

In our home today, our land line serves one old rotary-dial phone—really! My young private students don't know how to use it—and two push-button ones. They are tethered to the wall, of course, but I love them. They work when the power is out, and never need charging. You do have to walk to them when they ring, but you always know where they are. Our daughters were so annoyed by them that they bought us our first cordless phones, another huge step along the evolution of the telephone. It was truly liberating to walk around while we talked, to do chores, or step outside to pick up the paper. I thought sitting out on the deck and talking was the epitome of phonedom. Enter the cell phone.

I do need my cell phone, and was horrified the first day I felt that pervasive sense of panic when I didn't know where it was. But I am not married to it. I love to text and am more than pleased to have all my necessary numbers at my fingertips, but I don't sleep with it or take it everywhere with me. I don't always carry a bag and all my pants don't have pockets. I use that archaic duo paper and pencil when I want to remember something. An alarm clock wakes me up and my camera hangs around my neck.

And I am not going to cancel my land line anytime soon. When that phone rings, I know where it is: plugged into the wall in predictable places. I often hear that robocall pause when I answer, but I can just hang up. But I am gratified to know that Mrs. Foote isn't listening in.

July Jamboree!

The only thing hotter than the hotrods at this year's July Jamboree was the relentless sunshine. Thankfully, it didn't stop the crowds on Cedar's Main Street from enjoying a little car-coveting while peeking under the hoods and imagining getting behind the wheel of some very beautiful, antique and futuristic vehicles.

Summer symbols, Little League legacies and a reliable truck

Our '71 Chevy made its final drive down Cedar's Main Street last week (Next week it will make a new home with a vintage car collector). Perhaps, you saw us? That was Rigby and me in the orange restored Chevrolet with the load of Cedar National 12-year-old boys in the back. Baseball, trucks, and snow cones; the 4th of July in Cedar City at its finest.

You see, the Chevy is not just a truck to us. In 1971, the Chevy was a gift from son to father. Floyd gave it to Eldro so Eldro could hunt "Deer Mountain" in the fall. Eldro ran Cedar City's college farm beginning May 10, 1937 for $80 a month. His work continued as farm superintendent for twenty years. Eldro was an integral part of the Branch Agricultural College (now Southern Utah University) and Cedar City.

Floyd spent his first seven years of life on that farm. By 1971, Eldro had transitioned to near retirement and the Chevy was his pride and joy. Rigby and I have hauled that truck with us for our 25 plus years of marriage—the Chevy is a symbol. A symbol of family, memories, hard work, and Grandpa Eldro. It was a joy to drive it down main for its final bow and watch Rigby rev the engine one last time.

The Chevy's precious cargo was a load of boys who love to play baseball. If you have been around Cedar City long enough, you know it is a baseball town. Glancing through the parade line, I noticed familiar names on other All-Star uniforms—Garrett, Corry, Higbee, and Tom, just to name a few. I watched and played ball with their parents a generation ago.

As a mother of four sons (all little leaguers) and the sister of four brothers (all little leaguers), I have spent plenty of time at Veteran's Park. My sister, Wendy, and I suited up with the boys in those days as well. Last summer, the silence of the baseball park haunted Cedar City as little league baseball put on its own "mask" and social distanced for a season. This spring, the sound of the baseball bat smackin' a few "dingers" awakened a sense of normalcy for me while bringing back so many memories as I watched the baby of our brood step up to bat at what was once the Elk's field. Baseball, in fact, is synonymous with summertime.

When I was a kid, snow cones were forty cents at Cedar City Baseball Park's Snack Shack. The pickins' of flavors was a little slimmer then—root beer, lime, orange, and cherry. On a rare, but good day, I had four dimes in my pocket and I would treat myself to a snow cone. I always chose cherry, and I slurped that snow cone until the very last drop.

Slurping snow cones, playing baseball and listening for the rev of an engine—symbols of Joy, family, and memories. Symbols of July in Cedar City.

Patriot Jiu-Jitsu dojo brings martial-arts mojo to Parowan

from Tricia Harris

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

Parowan Celebrated the grand opening of Patriot Jiu-Jitsu. Jiu-Jitsu is one of the fastest growing Martial Arts in the world, because it is both an engaging sport and a practical form of self-defense. Kids and adults get a 1-on-1 Intro and trial class at no cost with Marine Corps veteran Coach Dwight.

Dwight Hargett is the head instructor at Patriot Jiu-Jitsu. He is very excited to have the opportunity to share his Jiu-Jitsu with our community and show you what it has given him.

He has been a competitor and instructor of Brazilian Jiu-Jitsu under the Ribeiro Jiu-Jitsu academy. Which was a great benefit for him as they are among the top 10 in the world, not only in competition but also in training and coaching as well.

Since moving out here to Parowan, UT, he has seen what a great need there is for something like Jiu-Jitsu; both for kids and adults as well. Not just for the sport, the exercise and the fun and games. But he believes Jiu-Jitsu, much like the and teammates. In this time that we live he believes there is nothing more important than creating ways of bringing the people of the community together. Building each other up and helping each other solve problems together as his own Jiu-Jitsu family stands for. Which is why they are Patriot Jiu-Jitsu, a family of people who love God, America and Jiu-Jitsu.

“The Sign Painter”

Do you wear a name badge when you go to work? Do you have specific title at work? Society puts a lot of clout in one’s ability to climb the corporate ladder, yet will clobber any that fall from it. I’ve also heard that if you’re going to take time to climb, make sure your ladder is leaning against the right building. That doesn’t mean you can’t change careers, or choose to just sit on your rear, but living without direction and drive will keep you stuck on the couch, curb or adrift, if you catch my drift.

But I digress.

Whatever title society gives you, what about the title(s) you give yourself? If you had to wear a sign (not just an emoji) that labeled your life, what would it say? Would it be more negative or positive? If other people gave you a sign to wear what would they write about you?

Would your/their sign say something like—Lost, Loser, Still Learning, Love Me, Save Me, Who Am I?, Addict, Alcoholic, Weird, Lonely, Not Giving Up, Grumpy, I Still believe, Warrior, Prisoner, Uncaring, Daring, Rude, Ready For Anything, Impatient, Penitent, Thoughtless, Fearless, etc.?

Not surprisingly, the internal signs you have painted for yourself and wear (within and without), or have and the judgments of your peers. No, you cannot change the past, but you can change the future by making better choices today and listening to better voices and getting rid of the vices that are like vise grips on your self-worth and happiness.

Perhaps today it’s time to stop allowing your life, your mind and your heart to become a casual canvas for the cruel and crass people in this world who would rather paint with pain than with peace. If you don’t think that day is today, why not?

There’s no better time than right now to begin repainting your signs and re-writing your life story.

Do you need some ideas of what to write on your new signs? Here’s a few to get you started: Brilliant, Resilient, Kind, Divine, Magnificent, Magnified, Considerate, Caring, Reliable, Forgiving, Forgiven, Unbroken, Uplifting, Generous, Trustworthy, Capable, Likeable, Overcomer, allowed others to write and tape to your back (i.e. Kick Me), or the ones that adversity and opposition seem to have sewn to your soul, are often the person you become (or remain) through these written reinforcements, for better or for worse.

Perhaps today it’s time to paint a new sign for your life. Perhaps its time to take off the old signs of your past

“One Word” (Newsboys)

Having worked with words for most of my life I know the power found in composing a symphony of sentences from letters, words and phrases. Words can make us laugh, cry (the good and bad kind), feel inspired and empowered (Proverbs 18:4). They can reprimand and remind us that we are still loved, even when we said the wrong thing, or didn't say the right thing. That's why each week I pray that God will strengthen the weakness of my words to encourage each of you reading them (Ephesians 4:29).

Also, in working for this newspaper, I have seen/heard both wise and evil words spoken (Proverbs 11:9) and felt their influence on myself, our staff and our readers. As the Managing Editor, while I don't have complete control over our content, I can do my part to make sure there are more good words (stories) than bad.

Besides Love, words are the most powerful force in the universe. Whether written in books, recorded in songs, accompanying paintings, or printed in newspapers, words can inform, inspire, entertain, sustain or even stain the one receiving and reading them (Proverbs 18:21).

Why not add Hate to that equation as a powerful force? Oh, it's powerful, but if perfect love can cast out fear it is certainly also more powerful than hate (1 John 4:18). Giving hate more attention than we give love only empowers it. In other words, we tell people not to hate, or hurt, but are we also teaching them how to love? When we spend more time teaching and preaching about how to love (with words and works) than we do about the evils of hate, the balance will not only begin to shift, but our lives and world will change immediately.

For example, have you ever been enjoying your day, drive, or destination and then you hear a verbally vandalizing song come on the radio? Or maybe you pass someone talking on the phone whose every other word seems to be of the four-letter profanity type? It changes the atmosphere immediately. Even if only for a temporary moment, it made a definite difference. Imagine all the young (and older) people who that's all they listen to; that's how they speak to everyone all the time; that's what they've surrounded themselves with so often that it's normal, even comforting to them and they'll get confrontational if anyone tries to silence or judge them.

Now, imagine a person surrounding themselves with positive words, songs, television shows, movies, music, websites, and people every day, not just on Sundays. That person's lifestyle and life would immediately begin to change for the better. This isn't about Pollyanna and her rose-colored glasses, this is about truth. I challenge anyone to put it to the test this week. See if the things you say, watch, listen to really make you feel/do good and be happier. If they don't, I challenge you to change, even for a moment. That moment could change your life.

Is your life built on a firm foundation?

DIFFICULT QUESTIONS & TRUTH 101.27

by Edy Meredith

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

These days many people are thinking about their lives and what they depend on, especially given the events in Florida. Our beliefs, whether about our homes or other structures we rely on, are the foundation for our decision making. How firm and strong are our foundational beliefs? Understanding what happened in Surfside, Florida, should make us look carefully at our belief structures as well as the structures we reside in.

If you look on Wikipedia under “list of new religious movements”, you will find a list that is fourteen and a half pages long that provides an organization's name, its founder, year founded, and type or classification. The list contains approximately 26 organizations per page for a total of approximately 436 religious organizations formed since 1830. We know that “new” or “recent” does not mean better or more truthful. Truth should be the same through the ages and should not vacillate going back and forth between cultures or across time.

Regarding the Florida condo collapse, there were many warnings about the foundation weakness, cracks in the building, water in the garage, sinkage of land and building, and inspection/engineering reports. While few bodies have been discovered in the wreckage, at least 200 will finally be acknowledged not just as missing but also as dead, crushed under the debris. It is the same with Truth. Do not be fooled by truth claims from the new and more recent.

We feel the pain of those who are waiting for their families, friends, and loved ones to be discovered. We have all waited patiently for this year of COVID to pass. We pray, call upon God, prepare for the lifting of restrictions, and mourn with those who have lost friends and family. I turn for solace to the great Builder and Engineer who told us the following that has been in print for about 2,000 years.

“Therefore, whoever hears these sayings of Mine, and does them, I will liken them to a wise person who built his house on the rock: and the rain descended, the floods came, and the winds blew and beat on that house, and it did not fall, for it was founded on the rock. But everyone who hears these sayings of Mine, and does not do them, will be like a foolish person who built his house on the sand, and the rain descended, the floods came, and the winds blew and beat on that house, and it fell. And great was its fall.” (Matthew 7:24-27; Luke 6:47-49).

Claudia Penny Webster-Scholten

On October 10, 1940, in Los Angeles, California, a little girl was born to parents, Coleby and Yvonne Webster. Her name was Penny. Since Coleby was the grandson of well-known Mormon Handcart Pioneer Francis Webster, Penny became one of his great grand-daughters. Like her famous ancestor, Penny would weave a rich tapestry in her life and leave a legacy that few will forget.

In Penny's own words, she was a bit of a ham as a young child and loved to perform whenever she was asked. During World War II, and when Penny was 4 years old, the family often traveled by train. Penny could always be found somewhere in the long string of cars singing to the soldiers heading off to war. She was a beautiful child and her mother curled her hair into ringlets and dressed her in a smart dress with matching coat and hat, so that Penny was the spitting image of the young film star, Shirley Temple.

In 1944, she became a big sister when her brother Dan Webster (deceased in 2017) was born. She and her little brother and formed a strong bond with him that lasted throughout their lives. Two years later, in 1946, the family moved to Cedar City, Utah where Coleby built a house for the family on 200 East. The location was perfect for Penny because she loved going to the Carnegie library located just a few blocks away on Main Street. Her love of books planted the seed for what was to become her greatest talent; Penny was an exquisite writer and editor. She wrote scientific journal articles, lengthy governmental reports, a biographical book (about how she and her two 18-year-old friends walked 24 miles from the north rim of the Grand Canyon to the south rim, in the middle of July, wearing buckskin school shoes and carrying sandwiches in their handbags and NO water), and hundreds of other works of prose during her lifetime. Her publications are too numerous to mention. However, what is important, is that her writings were different.

Scientific reports became interesting stories about obscure topics in science. A 6,000-page Department of Energy report became a work of art with an innovative organizing structure that is now becoming the standard across the scientific community. She could draw the reader into a topic and make it into something that was easy to understand.

One of her most well-known works, Flirting with Danger, Hiking the Grand Canyon the Wrong Way, (2008), is a true story of a Grand Canyon hike that went awry. Although we had all heard snippets of the tale throughout our lives, until Penny put the words onto paper, no one really knew the extent of danger faced by the naive young hikers. It is a cautionary tale for all who seek to enjoy the wild outdoors.

In 1950, the family returned to California where Penny excelled in her studies, and in 1958, graduated as valedictorian of her class from Fullerton Union High School. During her summers, she worked at the north rim of the Grand Canyon as a housekeeper. Her time at the north rim was some of the happiest days of her life. Although the work was hard, she was able to spend her time off hiking, in and around the north rim of the canyon. She saw the different colors and textures of the earth in the canyon and wondered why they were arranged in layers, and just how such a huge canyon was created. These inquisitive moments created a yearning to know more and ultimately changed her life.

In August of 1959, she married "the boy who lived across the street," Don Scholten. They both launched brief careers in the banking industry and Penny became the comptroller for a local savings and loan company. Within 5 years, the little family of two became four with the addition of two girls, Jill and Monica. Jill now lives in Salt Lake City, Utah and Monica lives in Cedar City, Utah.

In 1962 she was hired on at the new theme park, Disneyland, and was soon promoted to an executive level position. The family spent many days and nights enjoying the park and its attractions and especially loved the "E ticket" rides and private, pre-release screenings of Disney movies.

In 1969, Penny and her family left the big city for the quaint little town of Prescott, Arizona. At the time, there were only 25,000 residents and Penny worked with Don in their real estate appraisal business. Penny became an avid backpacker and throughout her life, hiked over 600 miles of trails in the Grand Canyon, and hundreds of miles throughout the southwest. It was in Prescott, that Penny remembered her summer hiking trips in the canyon and developed a keen interest in Geology while taking some classes at Yavapai Community College. Her interest blossomed into a love for Geology, and in 1975 she graduated with Honors, with an Associate's degree in Geology. Penny wasn't the usual college student. Her studies went above and beyond those of others and her professors clearly saw her talent. After graduating with her AA, and with recommendations from her professors, the Arizona College Board granted her a special teaching certificate and she began teaching introductory Geology courses at the college.

In 1978 she decided to cash in on a promise made by her husband Don years earlier, to let her go to college after he had graduated from college. Since Don had graduated from college years earlier, her "cash-in" date was long past due. As such, she packed her bags and announced to Don that she was leaving to get her Bachelor's degree at Northern Arizona University (NAU). It was not a request, nor was it open for discussion, she had made her decision. She told him he could either come with her, or stay in Prescott. The decision was his to make.

Don honored his promise to her and sold their businesses in Prescott and the family home, packed up Monica, and moved to Flagstaff, Arizona. Jill joined them a year later. The couple became "dorm parents" at Peterson Hall at NAU. They went from living in a 2800 square foot home in Prescott to an 800 square foot 2-bedroom apartment in a men's dormitory. They had more fun than they ever dreamed they would have and made lifelong friends that later became more family than friends. Penny was "Mom" to 166 young men.

In 1982, Penny graduated with her Bachelor's in Geology and Master's in Education from NAU. With the oil industry booming, she was scooped up by Cities Service oil company. She and Don moved to Tulsa, Oklahoma where she started her dream job as a Petroleum Geologist. At the time, she was one of only a few women who dared to invade the male-dominated world of drilling rigs and "rough necks." They didn't intimidate Penny and she donned her hard hat, boots, and Brunton compass, and headed out to search for new petroleum deposits. Penny remarked that Cities treated her like gold, however, there were clouds on the horizon. Less than a year after moving to Tulsa, the proverbial "bottom dropped out of the oil industry" and Penny was one of thousands of geologists laid off throughout the world. She was devastated by the turn of events.

Penny was not one to allow the wind to fall from her sails and she soon landed a job in Tulsa working for the American Association of Petroleum Geologists ("AAPG"). AAPG publishes periodicals specifically for the oil industry and Penny worked as an editor for their premiere publication "Bulletin of the AAPG."

In 1985, Penny and Don returned to California when Penny was hired by the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory ("LLNL") as a technical writer/editor. Soon, she became a Geologist for the Environmental Protection Department where she studied the environmental damage done by years of explosives testing. Her early work in the long-term damage caused by the nation's nuclear weapons program, resulted in important changes to how we now conduct research on explosive devices. One of her final tasks at LLNL, was to manage and direct over 30 scientists to document the contamination and remediation at LLNL's "Site 300," an EPA Superfund site. The end result was a 6,000-page, 15 volume treatise, costing $6 million dollars and 3 years to complete. The report is now the "Bible" of geologic and environmental information for the site, and is used by LLNL and all relevant governmental agencies. She is included in 3 different volumes of "Who's Who" publications about pioneering women in the field of geology.

In 1996, Penny retired from LLNL and joined Don in Crescent City California where they bought a beautiful home right on the ocean. Penny had always wanted a house on the water and Don had spent the last year completely rebuilding the home. She loved seeing the whales in the spring as they migrated north for the summer and was thrilled when winter storms whipped the sea into a frenzy and the rain and sea foam pelted her living room windows. It was in this place, with towering redwood trees, that Penny used another of her life-long talents and began helping stray and unwanted animals in Del Norte County. She could organize anything like "nobody's business." The local Humane Society had a thrift shop in town that helped fund their shelter and rehab efforts. It had largely been ignored for years, was in complete disarray, and made very little money. In a short period of time, she and Don turned the shop into a "going business concern." They solicited the community for clothing racks, shelving, hangers, and a storage facility, and then Penny completely reorganized the store. The thrift shop started making money and the Humane Society helped more stray and unwanted animals find new homes and obtain needed veterinary treatment.

In 2002, Penny and Don left Crescent City for Cedar City, Utah. They bought a 20-year-old house and, once again, turned it into a showplace. Once completed, they began their exploration of the world. Over the following years they visited 50 countries on 4 different continents.

Penny died on the morning of July 6, 2021, in Cedar City, Utah. It was sudden and completely unexpected. Penny's family is devastated and confused by her absence. Nothing will ever be the same again without Penny. Why? Because . . . Penny made a difference, with her life, and in the lives of those who loved her, husband Don, daughters Jill and Monica (Monica and Joe Wurm), and close cousin Lora Spencer (Colorado). We will, however, honor her life and memory by loving those around us, striving for the pinnacle of excellence in all we do, and above all else, by Making a Difference. Final arrangements are under the care of Southern Utah Mortuary. Online condolences can be sent at www.sumortuary.com.

Washington softball All-Stars win 3, state title

by Tom Zulewski

IRON COUNTY TODAY

In any double-elimination tournament, the team that reaches the final has the harder task, needing to win three games to claim the championship banner. The Washington Majors softball All-Stars pulled off the feat with relative ease and earned a special road trip.

Washington scored at least two runs in seven of eight innings played and beat Cedar American twice by scores of 18-1 and 9-3 on July 8. Adding on a 16-2 win over Enterprise earlier in the day that secured a chance to play for the title, and Washington won a trip to San Bernardino, Calif., for the Little League World Series West Regional that begins July 24.

“The way these girls play, the heart they have, and how they stay up so well, it’s easy for them to keep working,” Washington head coach Matt Robbins said. “They know what their end goal is, and they know what they need to do.”

Improbable finish gives Washington All-Stars baseball title

by Tom Zulewski

IRON COUNTY TODAY

As he stood at the plate with two out in the top of the sixth inning, Ryder Sherratt delivered a half-swing at a pitch that was ruled a third strike. The Washington Majors baseball All-Star team watched in disbelief as a Snow Canyon celebration started on the field.

After a quick restoration of order and a few moments of discussion by the umpires, Washington got a break for the ages on catcher's interference and took full advantage of it to grab another berth in the Little League Baseball West Regional.

Oliver Sterner hit a two-run double that broke a tie, and Washington scored all of its runs in the sixth on the way to a stunning 5-2 victory over Snow Canyon on July 10 to secure its second straight Utah state Little League title. Head coach J.B. DeWitt said the catcher's interference call changed everything and somehow lit a fire in his team's offense.

"It's one of those baseball rule things where if it happens and they win the game, no one remembers. The way it unfolded where we suddenly started to hit the ball and come back to win, it will be known as the check-swing game," DeWitt said. "I just kept telling the boys that someone's gonna get a hit at some point and we're gonna break through."

The game remained scoreless until Snow Canyon scored both of its runs in the bottom of the fourth with help from shaky Washington defense. With two runners on, a throwing error on a steal attempt broke the deadlock and after two walks loaded the bases, a hit batter forced home the second run and put Snow Canyon up, 2-0.

Both sides stranded base runners in the fifth, but Washington got a pair of hits in the sixth to set the stage for the crazy sequence of events that produced the winning runs. Porter Campbell struck out the final Snow Canyon batter in the bottom of the inning to strand two runners and start the celebration of another trip to San Bernardino, Calif., for the West Regional.

The comeback gave DeWitt one valuable lesson for his team.

"Never quit. The game's not over until it's officially over," DeWitt said.

Washington will open play at the regional Aug. 8 against the representative from Hawaii in an 8:30 p.m. start. All early-round games will be streamed on ESPN Plus, the semifinal games will air on ESPN, and the championship game will be seen on ABC (Channel 4 locally) on Aug. 14.

Needing a win to keep its title hopes alive, Snow Canyon forced the deciding game with a 6-1 victory in the opener. They scored a run in the second on a groundout, added four in the third with the help of two Washington fielding errors, and added a run in the fourth on an RBI single.

Washington was able to break the shutout bid in the fifth on an RBI single by Campbell.

SUU sends four current golfers, seven alumni to Utah State Am

ASSISTANT AD, SPORTS INFO. & COMM.

CEDAR CITY — When the 123rd Utah State Amateur Championship began on Monday, July 12, it did so with heavy representation from the Southern Utah University men's golf team. The Thunderbirds sent four current team members and seven of the school's alumni to Alpine Country Club.

"Sending this many Thunderbirds to the Utah State Am is great representation for our program," said SUU golf head coach Richard Church. "It will be great experience for our current golfers and fun to watch so many alumni compete against Utah's best."

Among the current T-Birds competing are Tyler Jones, Jaden Milne and Ryker Smith. Incoming freshman Leo Torres will also represent SUU.

Jones finished 13th at last season's Big Sky Championship (85,70, 68) while Smith finished one place shy of a top-20 finish (79, 80, 74). Their combination, along with the scores of their teammates, helped SUU claim second in the team standings.

Highlights from All-Star return

RANDOM thoughts

Tom Zulewski
IRON COUNTY TODAY

The happiness was evident as the Utah All-Star baseball and softball tournaments returned last week. The Washington Major division teams came away with two impressive efforts and earned trips to their respective West regionals in San Bernardino, Calif., that begin later this month.

Here are some of my favorite highlights from the week that was...

» On the opening day of the 12U Majors baseball tournament, Cedar National was in a load of trouble after giving up two runs in the top of the sixth inning to fall behind to Parowan, 7-5. One of the runs scored on a critical mistake with a runner at third base.

After a third strike on a Parowan hitter, the CN catcher rolled the ball toward the pitcher's mound as the players started to walk back to the dugout thinking the third out had been recorded. With the baseball sitting on the infield, the alert Parowan runner hustled home and beat the throw to the plate to secure the two-run lead.

It didn't matter, though, because National hit a three-run walk-off homer in the bottom of the inning to earn an 8-7 victory.

“The Washington Major division teams came away with two impressive efforts and earned trips to their respective West regionals in San Bernardino, Calif., that begin later this month.”

» There was one major annoyance across town at the softball diamonds. All of the girls games – with the exception of the championship game – were played under a 90-minute time limit. Sources told Iron County Today that the move was needed to accommodate another softball tournament that was played over the weekend. The boys were not under the same time restriction.

Time limits have never happened in all of the prior years the state All-Star tournaments have been played. It seems like it could be a serious detriment when it's time to play at the West Regional, where all games are a full six innings in length.

» Annoyance, Part 2: None of the scoreboards at the baseball and softball fields were used at the tournaments throughout the week. That made absolutely no sense and left a lot of puzzled looks from parents and spectators alike.

Conversations included queries of “What's the score?” and “How many outs are there?” along with “What inning are we in?” All of it could have been easily avoided with volunteers stepping up to run the scoreboards so fans can be fans and those keeping scorebooks could do the necessary work in peace.

» Kudos to the Washington 12U softball team, who had to win three times – all on the final day – to advance to the West Regional. Washington finished the job by a combined score of 43-6 with two run-rule wins along the way.

» In the stunner of the weekend, Team USA men's basketball – with the spectator-less Tokyo Olympics rapidly approaching – lost an exhibition game Saturday night in Las Vegas to...wait for it... Nigeria.

Say what? You're kidding...right?

Yes, it's true. Sadly, I'm not kidding. Nigeria hit 20 3-pointers and shot 48 percent (20-of-42) from behind the line and never trailed in the fourth quarter on the way to a 90-87 victory. Golden State assistant coach Mike Brown led the Nigerian team, and this was Team USA's first loss ever to an African nation.

Of course, Team USA is putting on the brave face – it's an exhibition, we'll be fine, yada, yada, yada – but unless they get their shooting act together, it's gonna be a long Olympics.

For good measure, Gabe Vincent of the Miami Heat made six of Nigeria's 3-pointers and they won the rebounding battle by 12, 46-34.

Maybe all this will be worry for naught, but with a rematch looming in Tokyo to start the Olympics on July 26, the tone needs to be set quickly to avoid any further embarrassment.

team scored early and often.

In Game 1 of the final vs. Cedar American, Washington took advantage of an error that would have been the third out and turned it into a three-run first inning. Cedar American was able to answer with a run in the bottom of the frame as the first three batters reached safely, but Morgan Staheli retired the next three in order.

Washington would roll from there, adding on four runs in the second and third innings and sealing the win early with a seven-run fourth due to the run rule. The momentum continued for Washington in Game 2, but Cedar American had its lone offensive burst of the night with a three-run third inning that cut the deficit to 5-3. Two of the runs scored on close plays at the plate that avoided the tag of catcher Kylie Carpenter.

“She's a workhorse,” Robbins said. “She keeps us in the game, and she's softball-savvy.”

It wouldn't take long for Washington to answer and restore its edge.

“These girls are so disciplined,” Robbins said. “They didn't play outside their own game.”

Washington sealed the victory with four runs in the top of the fourth and Gemma Giacometto allowed only one single in the bottom half to set off the celebration. All of the tournament games were held to a 90-minute time limit.

Washington will open play in San Bernardino on July 24 against the representative from Northern California starting at 1 p.m. Utah time. All games at the double-elimination regional will be streamed live through the ESPN Plus app.

A FOLKTALE FROM AUSTRALIA

How Kangaroo Got a Pouch

Some of the words in the story got washed into the stream. Use them to fill in the blanks.

One day, Mama Kangaroo was _____ with her joey near a stream.

An old, blind wombat wandered close to them. He was _____ and muttering, "Old and useless, old and useless ..."

Mama Kangaroo asked him, "What's the trouble, friend Wombat?"

"I'm old and I'm blind and none of the other _____ want me around. I'm very lonely."

Mama Kangaroo had a kind heart. "I'll be your friend," she said. "My joey and I will _____ you find tasty grass and clean water."

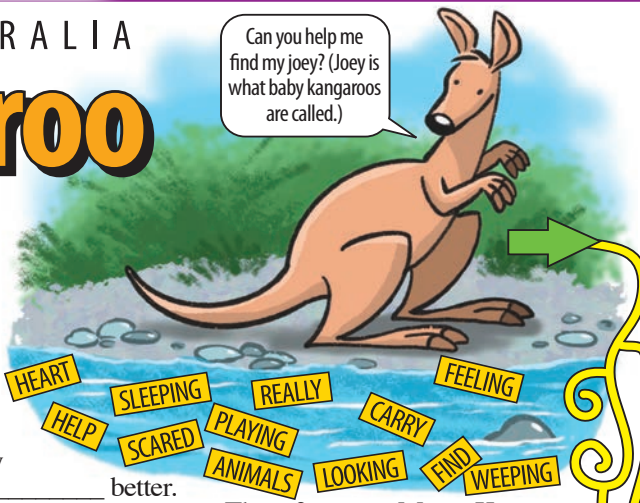

Wombat smiled. It made Mama Kangaroo happy to see him _____ better.

Just then, Mama Kangaroo looked for her joey. He had wandered off! She couldn't _____ him.

Mama Kangaroo was _____ She said to Wombat, "My joey has wandered off! He's always hopping away when I'm not _____!"

Can you help me find my joey? (Joey is what baby kangaroos are called.)

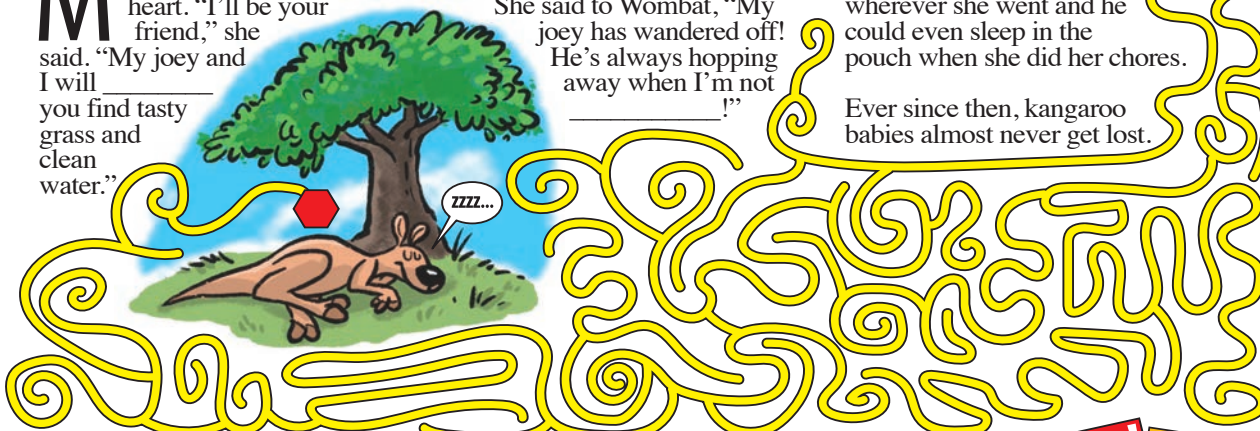

That afternoon, Mama Kangaroo found her joey _____ under a tree. She was so relieved!

Wombat was not _____ a wombat - he was the god Byamee in disguise. He had come to the world to find out which creature had the kindest _____.

Byamee gave Mama Kangaroo a gift - a pouch where she could carry her joey! Now she could _____ him wherever she went and he could even sleep in the pouch when she did her chores.

Ever since then, kangaroo babies almost never get lost.

What is a wombat? A wombat looks like a small bear but is, in fact, a marsupial with a pouch to carry its young. They are found in Australia and the surrounding islands.
