FIRE FLYERS

An inside look at Cedar City's busy Air Tanker Base during wildfire season

by Gabrielle Costello

CEDAR CITY PIO

CEDAR CITY — Every summer, the Cedar City Regional Airport experiences increased activity due to wildfire season and the Cedar City Interagency Air Center which operates from the Air Tanker Base at the airport. Flying over Cedar City, you'll see smaller Single Engine Air Tankers (known as SEATs), Large Air Tankers (known as LATs), as well as firefighting helicopters, which look significantly different than SUU's flight school aircraft that we see more regularly.

These specialized aircraft cover a major portion of the southwestern United States and can stage at our airport until being called to their next fire assignment, or as a pit stop loading up on fuel or fire retardant. Driving on our roads, you may never know that pilots and support staff from all over the United States, are at the same spotlight as you, calling Cedar City home for a minimum of 90 days at a time (per contract) spending time away from their families, staying in our hotels, dining in our restaurants, and frequenting our stores.

These pilots have a variety of backgrounds, leading them to where they are today taking direction from Air Attack at the Cedar City Interagency Center, navigating difficult conditions such as wind, smoke, heat, low-level topography, and other hazardous expert-level conditions to drop retardant and slow the spread of wildfire.

The Boise Smoke Jumpers, an elite crew of 12 parachuting firefighters, also travel to Cedar City every summer from the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) Smokejumper Base in Idaho. Their goal is to be readily available for fires in remote areas or ones caused by lightning during our July/August monsoon season.

All of these “tools” serve a unique purpose and are national resources through BLM and the USDA Forest Service, meaning they can be called anywhere in the United States at any time to render aid for wildfires.

“When speaking with the pilots and smokejumpers, it was unanimous that Cedar City is at the top of everyone’s bidding list during fire season because of the location, beauty, and small-town feel.”

But what makes Cedar City unique for these operations? With our unique elevation and centralized location compared to surrounding airports, Cedar City offers these resources convenient lodging and food, as well as fuel and retardant that is loaded onto aircraft based on elevation and several other factors.

When speaking with the pilots and smokejumpers, it was unanimous that Cedar City is at the top of everyone’s bidding list during fire season because of the location, beauty, and small-town feel.

CEDAR CITY AIRPORT

Cedar City Airport is literally a hot spot hub for training and preparing several firefighting agencies to be ready to render aid for wildfires across the country.

Safety is their number one priority on the job, not only for one another but for the life and property they vow to protect every day. It all comes together like a well-oiled machine at the Cedar City Interagency Air Center, from dispatch to air attack commanders to the fleet of aircraft that we see in the sky.

We are thankful for the partnerships they foster across the United States as part of the BLM-Color Country District Fire and Aviation Program, and we are proud to have them call Cedar City home during the summer months.

Are collagen supplements an important part of a healthy diet?

by Sara Fausett

REGISTERED DIETITIAN NUTRITIONIST, CEDAR CITY HOSPITAL

Collagen drinks and powders have become a common dietary supplement found in most grocery and big box stores. With all the anti-aging hype surrounding collagen, are collagen supplements important to include in a healthy diet?

"Research is unclear if the benefits some people have from collagen protein comes from collagen itself, or from consuming more protein in general," said Sara Fausett, a registered dietitian nutritionist at Intermountain Cedar City Hospital.

» Like all proteins consumed, collagen is broken down in the digestive system to be used wherever the body most needs protein. This means that collagen cannot be absorbed whole. Instead, it is absorbed as the smallest components of protein.

» Most research on collagen has been conducted using industry funding, which means there is a potential for bias in the study results.

» Preventing collagen breakdown in the body may be a more effective strategy to prevent skin aging and support joint health. Fausett encourages people to choose healthy lifestyle and diet habits such as:

- o Getting enough sleep.
- o Avoiding high sugar intake, which can damage existing collagen.
- o Eating a healthy diet including vitamin C and sulfur-containing foods (citrus, strawberries, broccoli, onions) to aid in collagen production in the body.

"Overall, as careful consumers, people should be wary of the claims surrounding collagen supplements and focus more on whole food, quality protein sources, as well as other beneficial whole foods to limit the negative effects of aging," Fausett said.

FROM THE EDITOR

Time, our greatest investment

It never ceases to amaze me how fast the days are going by! As the editor of this newspaper and for our amazing staff, it can seem like there are no breaks in between publications. It seems like I was just here writing last week's letter and columns. I'm not complaining, just explaining that if we focus too much on the pace of life, it can deprive us of the peace in life. With that being said, it is becoming more apparent (not cliché) that our time is even more precious, especially when it seems to be going by quicker and quicker.

Which brings me to my point—thank you for making the time to read the Iron County Today. I hope that you will continue to find the information and inspiration within that makes you smile and is worth your while. And if there's something you'd like to see more of, or even to contribute, let me know.

Yes, it's difficult to not be able to cover all the news, catch every story, or have room for every contribution, but know that we are each grateful for your support and will continue to do our best to be worthy of and worth your investments of time, talent and treasure.

Receiving mixed massages

Bryan Gray is a syndicated contributor and not an employee. His opinions are solely his own and not those of the Editor or Iron County Today.

An old adage claims that for justice to be effective, it must not only be done, but also be seen by the public that it is done. Therefore, if justice really occurred last week in the celebrated case of a National Football League quarterback, I suppose that the public and myself were blindfolded.

We've all heard of wrongdoers getting a mere slap on the hand. In the case of Deshaun Watson, he received not a slap but a wispy nudge by a feather.

Unless you live on Mars, you probably are at least slightly aware of Watson's antics. A resounding 24 female massage therapists accused him of sexual assault or harassment, with most cases involving sexually explicit acts while "relaxing" on a massage table. You can't be the judge of what actually happened – but you can also get a fair idea of the accusers' credibility since Watson made settlements with 23 of the 24.

Typically, we don't open our wallets to pay people for lying.

But that is what Watson claims. To him, the women were "gold diggers" who saw him as a cash box. He admits sexual actions with only three of them, all of whom, he says, consented. He also notes that two previous grand juries in Texas refused to indict him on criminal

$5 million fine. Professionals who treat sex abuse victims thought this was far too skimpy of a penalty considering that Colin Kaepernick was effectively "banned" for life by simply refusing to salute the flag. But a mediator studied the case, agreed that Watson committed the acts, noted that Watson "lacked remorse" for his actions, and handed down her stern punishment:

"Suspension for six games" and any future massages must be done by a therapist approved by his new team, the Cleveland Browns.

No wonder Watson is smiling after his "tough punishment". For not playing these six games, he will lose some $345,000. But considering that the Browns are paying him a fully guaranteed $230 million over the next five years, the loss of income is laughable. To put it in perspective, instead of a $1,000 fine you would be forking over $1.45. I don't think Watson will be forced to take out a second mortgage on his home or purchase store-brand soup instead of Progresso!

complaints. (But if that is the case, why pay the women for their silence? Maybe a better explanation is that people living in the football-fervered state of Texas care more for Watson's passing statistics than they do the dignity of women.)

Despite the grand jury dismissal, however, the National Football League knew Watson was a blemish on the game and sought to suspend him for a full year along with a

Senators Lee, Romney denounce so-called "Inflation Reduction Act"

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Sen. Mike Lee (R-UT) recently denounced Senate Democrat's passage of the so-called Inflation Reduction Act. The bill spends hundreds of billions of dollars and raises taxes at a time when inflation has grown to 9.1% nationally and nearly 15% in Utah.

Democrats passed President Biden's legislation through what's known as the budget reconciliation process, meaning the bill could pass with a simple majority rather than the sixty votes customarily needed to advance legislation.

The non-partisan Joint Committee on Taxation estimates that the Inflation Reduction Act will raise taxes by $313 billion over the next ten years. The Penn Wharton budget model broke this down and concluded that this bill has no deficit reduction until at least 2027.

Sen. Lee was joined by all of his Republican colleagues in rejecting the legislation.

Of the bill, Sen. Lee said, "You shouldn't judge a book by its cover, and you certainly shouldn't judge this bill by its title. Despite its name, this bill will not reduce inflation." Sen. Lee continued, "American families cannot afford the Biden administration's latest tax and spend scheme. If the definition of insanity is doing the same thing and expecting different results, then spending more money and increasing taxes to reduce inflation meets that definition."

U.S. Senator Mitt Romney (R-UT) called it yet another reckless taxing-and-spending spree being touted as "anti-inflation" legislation.

"In March of last year, the Democrats passed their $1.9 trillion American Rescue Plan. Predictably, it contributed to the inflation we are seeing today. Americans are falling further and further behind as they face skyrocketing prices on everything from food to energy and medicines. Today, Democrats returned to their same tired playbook to raise taxes, spend more money, and expand the size of government. Every single Republican senator fought to stop their one-sided, partisan bill. Democrats called it an act to combat inflation. It does the opposite.

"Rather than listening to the American people who are suffering from inflation, Democrats have voted for a liberal wish list. It reduces oil and gas production, it raises taxes that companies will pass on to consumers, and it doubles the number of IRS auditors in order to audit more Americans.

"The American people, who are drowning in debt and inflation, needed a life preserver and Democrats gave them a bag of hammers," stated Romney.

Also, ahead of the late-night kickoff of the amendment process known as vote-a-rama, various GOP Senators took to the Senate floor to voice their opposition to the bill.

Sen. Crapo (R-ID) said, "It's too many taxes, too much spending, too big of a burden on American people across all income categories. If anything, the taxes will drive prices up. Madam president, I encourage all of my colleagues to reject this reckless bill."

Sen. Lankford (R-OK) said, "It doesn't reduce the deficit. They joined in the chorus talking about the beauty of the emperor's new clothes. I'm willing to say what a lot of people in this room know in their gut but they're afraid to say, it doesn't reduce inflation, it doesn't reduce the deficit, the emperor has no clothes. Let's reject this bill."

Sen. Blackburn (R-TN) said, "These hundreds of billions of dollars will serve a purpose, but not to reduce inflation or bring relief. Blue states, unions, radical activists will once again come out on top. Meanwhile, families, working hard to make ends meet, workers, business owners, local leaders are still on the verge of losing everything."

Sen. Portman (R-OH) said, "The nonpartisan joint committee on taxation, not a partisan group, nonpartisan, says this will hurt Americans in every tax bracket. They say more than half of the burden of the over $300 billion in new taxes will fall on folks making less than $400,000 a year. Well, that directly contradicts promises made not to increase taxes on Americans at that level."

Some of the Cleveland fans are also rejoicing. At a pre-season practice last week, one fan cried out, "We got your back, Watson!" According to 24 women, his back is not the body part they are concerned with.

"I don't think Watson will be forced to take out a second mortgage on his home or purchase store-brand soup instead of Progresso!"

An attorney representing the women said the accusers were brave to speak out. "None of this would have happened except for one brave voice. One person can make a difference."

Unfortunately, it appears it wasn't much of one.

Graphic Designer joins SUU Art & Design faculty

from Kol Gibson

SUU COLLEGE OF PERFORMING & VISUAL ARTS

Southern Utah University's Department of Art & Design is pleased to announce Susanna Herrmann its new Assistant Professor of Graphic Design. Herrmann comes to SUU from her hometown of Bloomington, Indiana, where she has taught at Indiana University's Eskenzi School of Art, Architecture + Design since 2019. Susanna holds a Master of Fine Arts in Graphic Design from that same institution and a Bachelor of Arts in German and Philosophy, cum laude from Georgetown University.

"We are delighted to have Susanna joining the Art & Design faculty," remarks Jeffrey Hanson, Art Department Chair and Professor of Graphic Design. "Her energy and intellect will help students to master the complexities of client-based design practice and prepare them for their future careers."

SUU's focus on student development is what drew Susanna to the university. "I look forward to working with students who are studying design and those who are simply interested in the field," she says. "I am also excited to work with and learn from SUU's excellent faculty."

Susanna Herrmann

Ms. Herrmann brings an extensive background to the Art & Design program, with experience in typography and letterpress printing. Her sophisticated creative practice involves the study of symbols and experimental processes in photographic film which bring a unique perspective to the classroom. Graphic wit - how designers utilize visual language to make puns or engage with viewers in a witty way - is Susanna's favorite thing to teach because of how influential it can be to the viewer. She enjoys seeing how student engage their own senses of humor in their work.

"One of the most interesting things about graphic design is how all-encompassing and dynamic it is," continues Herrmann. "Everyone engages with design, even if they aren't aware of it at the moment. Graphic design is a visual language that can be used to communicate about anything, and each project offers a new challenge for communicating effectively and individually."

Susanna will begin teaching in SUU's fall semester which begins on Wednesday, August 31, 2022. For more information about the SUU Department of Art & Design, visit www.suu.edu/pva/art.

Making People Laugh

by Liz Armstrong

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

Actor Michael Doherty has been making audience members fall off their seats with laughter even before he began acting professionally in 2008. In third grade, Doherty acted in Pinocchio at his school; calling it his “actor origin story,” it was at this young age that Doherty discovered he could use acting to bring humor to those around him.

“I was an odd little boy and when I did my callback in front of my peers it was the first time I heard people laughing at me in a way that I was in control of,” Doherty said. “It felt like everything that made me weird and different was utilized as a kind of superhero—I could make people feel things.”

Although Doherty participated in community theatre in middle and high school, it wasn't until several intensive summer programs that he discovered country to act. “I was able to learn on the job and hone my skills by people taking a chance on me in a smaller community,” Doherty said.

Returning for his fifth season this year, Doherty first came to the Utah Shakespeare Festival in 2015, playing three comedic roles: Lord Fancourt Babberley in Charley's Aunt, Tranio in The Taming of the Shrew, and Speed in The Two Gentlemen of Verona. Since then he has played such roles as Charlie Baker in The Foreigner, the Narrator in Every Brilliant Thing, The Joneses in The Comedy of Terrors, and Dromio of Syracuse in The Comedy of Errors.

This season he is delighting Festival patrons as Mr. Green in Clue, Lavatch in All's Well That Ends Well, and Jonas Fogg in Sweeney Todd.

“Mr. Green is giving me the most exploration in the realm of [physical comedy],” Doherty said. “I feel like it is such an amazing form of expression that doesn't require me to be a technically that acting was something he could take incredibly seriously.

“It felt like everything that made me weird and different was utilized as a kind of superhero—I could make people feel things.”

“I applied to be a musical theatre major at a few colleges, got into almost none of them and was going to pivot again when I got into the University of Arts in Philadelphia and learned about regional theatre,” Doherty recalled.

In his junior year of college, Doherty began working at Philadelphia theatres, living there for fifteen years while also traveling all over the proficient dancer but will still let me totally explore my fullest range of motion in order to tell the story”

Doherty noted that this role in Clue is some of the most fun he's ever had onstage. “It's going to go down as one of my favorite shows I've ever done for sure,” Doherty said.

His role as Lavatch in All's Well That Ends Well is fun, but a challenge. Lavatch has been known as Shakespeare's most “expendable and lascivious” clown. “I love a Shakespearean clown—I love the marriage of physical comedy and language,” Doherty said.

CEDAR CITY ARTS COUNCIL

Every six months the deadline for a new term of Cedar City Arts Council Artists' Mini-Grants applications comes around—late winter (Feb. 28) and late summer (August 31). As I read over the grants' history document, I find some similarities from term to term. There are always requests for artists' supplies, often requests for travel expenses to workshops, often requests for help with venue rental for exhibits or performances. But I thought you might be interested in some of the more singular requests of the past few years.

For instance, a year ago we awarded Joseph the funds to buy half a set of bagpipes. Of course, he didn't go out and buy half a set of pipes, but he did receive about half the cost of a whole set. When asked how he intended to make up the difference in the cost, he said he had been selling his blood plasma and had several hundred dollars saved up. In 14 years, that request and the extreme measures taken to achieve the goal were the only ones of its kind!

During the same time frame, we helped Alyssa purchase a portal tap dance floor. You know how the board of a board game folds up to fit in the box? That wooden floor is sort of like that. She arrived at an Arts Council social carrying what looked like a briefcase, maybe. She unpacked it, unfolded it to about the size of a card table top, and turned on her music. Voila! She was able to give us her best tap dance performance. Nobody else has matched that.

Two years ago, in September of 2020, we helped Amalia buy a new stove/oven. Amalia was giving baking lessons, and her oven wasn't as professionally adequate as she wished. So, we helped her get a new one. I was touched to hear her accounts of their pow wow. I confess to not keeping good track of this one, what with COVID cancellations and all, but it is true that we have never had another request for funds to present an authentic pow wow. I hope we helped with the next one that came along.

Sue asked for a heavy-duty paper

"No matter how singular your request might be, what have you got to lose by asking?"

of diligently looking for sales and how excited she was to have a fancy new appliance. She had to wait a few months to resume classes because of COVID, but she must be back in business, because she is selling her fabulous quiches at the farmers market every Saturday.

In March of 2020, we granted the Native American Student Association on campus funds toward the costs cutter for her handmade books in March 2019. The Sugar House Review had help with bringing a poet to Cedar City five and a half years ago. I remember that night in a packed Artisans' Gallery venue.

So, no matter how singular your request might be, what have you got to lose by asking? Your wish can't be any more unusual than half a set of bagpipes!

DOHERTY

In regards to Sweeney Todd, Doherty said that it may contain his most favorite musical score ever written, so "it's been exciting to experience and listen and sing through each night."

A heartwarming and talented actor, Doherty is perhaps most known for bringing physical comedy to the stage. A patron of the Festival laughingly recalled Doherty in The Foreigner, when he "melted off a chair." This season, one of his most comedic feats is dodging, in slow motion, the falling chandelier in Clue.

"When I come to the Festival, there is always some physical bit I end up doing in the shows that I've never attempted before," Doherty said. "Last season I had to do a suitcase trick where I did half a split while grabbing the suitcase with my teeth."

The trick to successfully executing physical comedy for Doherty is remembering to be safe and build those physical moments in a way that is repeatable. "Like so much of acting, it is an imperfectible exercise," Doherty said. "It'll never be right every time, but you try and get as close as you can which taps you into that in-the-moment kind of theatre."

Perhaps most important, though, is being honest with audience members. Doherty explained that there is a huge difference in trying to be funny and authentically executing that humor by continually raising the stakes. "That line is interesting to ride. [I was told once] to stack the deck for yourself," Doherty said. "That's stuck with me the most . . . just knowing those marks you have to hit . . . but then letting all of that go and executing that in a way that feels very grounded and authentic and true to your natural emotion."

Doherty explained that as an actor, if he can raise the stakes high enough, if the emotions and the fear and the sweat becomes real enough, "it becomes funny, regardless of the circumstances—like if people are dying all around you in Clue."

Comedy has always been important to Doherty because of what it brings to the stage. "As soon as you start to add that sense of play and mischief into the equation, that's what makes theatre magical and brings it to the next level," Doherty said.

Museums and Art Galleries: DOORWAYS & WINDOWS INTO THE PAST

by May Hunter

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

One of the great benefits of visiting museums and art galleries is that they invite you to change your perspective and place yourself in the shoes of the artists and those who left us a part of their lives. They are a great way to learn more about your city while appreciating its local art and history and can also increase our sense of wellbeing, help us feel proud of where we have come from, inspire challenge and stimulate us to action, and even make us feel healthier.

There are several museums in Iron County to visit. These museums all feature different ways of showing history. The four museums discussed here are open, easy to find and ready for you to explore. They are all free to visit, except the Frontier State Park, which has a small fee, but it's well worth the ticket to take a tour of the past and discover the pioneer and early industrial history of southern Utah.

Welcome to Frontier Homestead State Park Museum:

Discover the pioneer and early industrial history of Cedar City through an extensive horse-drawn wagon collection which belonged to Gronway Parry, historic buildings, Native Heritage exhibit, sawmill, and replica blast furnace, just to name a few items you will find here.

Welcome to the Southern Utah Museum Of Art:

On the campus of Southern Utah University, SUMA features artwork of regional artists known for their landscapes. This includes faculty and student artists, as well as distinguished artists from around the country. A must visit to ponder and enjoy the art of Jimmie

F. Jones and several other well-known artists.

Welcome to the Daughters Of The Utah Pioneers Memorial Museum:

Located in the Iron Country Visitor Center. The DOP are dedicated to preserving the history and artifacts of its pioneer ancestors. The Museum is noted as the world's largest collection of artifacts, displaying the memorabilia from when the earliest settlers entered the valley; as early as May 10th, 1869. # “The Spirit of Education”

NORMAN ROCKWELL

It never ceases to amaze me how fast the summer goes by! For many students, teachers and parents, it seems like summer-break just started and now it's already time to head back to the classroom. I hope that each of you have rested up, recuperated and enjoyed some amazing moments. I also hope that you are ready to experience even more amazing moments.

Looking at the face of the boy in this photo, I don't think he is too optimistic about trading his days of sleeping in and leveling up his avatars, for a dusty desk and inconveniencing homework. If this is his mother, her smile—while proud of her son—may also be concealing a sigh of relief that school is back in session. It seems Rockwell has captured at least two different expressions of the “Spirit of Education.”

It's true that in the moment education may seem like a rut that must be endured more than endeared. We can feel intimidated by a new school, new classroom, new teachers, learning new things and even making new friends. Ask most adults and I'm pretty sure they wouldn't want to go back and have to experience everything from their early school years again.

the rut LESS TRAVELED

Corey Baumgartner

news@ironcountytoday.com

Yet, this world is the greatest classroom of all and life is one of our greatest teachers. Each day there are choices to be made and lessons to be learned. Some will be difficult, while others will be welcomed and appreciated—though perhaps not until later years. Because receiving an education, while perceived as a detour and detriment, even a rut we get stuck in, can be the very catalysts to catapult us out of future ruts and even avoid them altogether.

What things are you (or your children) doing to prepare for a successful school year? I'm sure there are conversations about clothes and supplies. Perhaps there are special shopping trips to acquire

Death by snack prep

I read a joke this week that read “Summer has gone by so fast it should get a speeding ticket,” and I couldn't agree more. It seems that we were just celebrating the last day of school yesterday, yet Back To School night is this week!

Most of me is dreading my kids splitting up to various schools and leaving the proverbial nest five days a week, and there is a small part of me that is relishing the idea of preparing fewer snacks throughout the day.

When summer began I had an excellent system down for the four little bottomless pits that are my children's stomachs. It required about 15 minutes of preparation and saved me a combined two hours of uninterrupted chores throughout the day.

As summer wore on my system gradually deteriorated and the last two weeks have been a chaotic scramble of boredom snacking. All of the fun summer activities have lost their appeal, the kids are starting to argue and I am hearing, “I'm hungry,” every 30 minutes or so.

The mom in me has been complying without a second thought. It seems like common sense that if your kids are hungry, you feed them.

The following schedule went on for several days before I realized how worn down I was feeling:

Half-load the dishwasher, slice an apple, finish the dishes, open a cheese stick for one kid, walk into the laundry room, go back to the kitchen for another kid's cheese stick, half load the washing machine, fill up a sippy cup.

After a solid week of living on this non-schedule I was looking around the house wondering why it looked like I had accomplished nothing when I knew I had been busy all day long. Does this sound familiar?

As a mom of young kids I often hear that I shouldn't worry about having a spotless house because the chores will still be there after my babies have grown. I agree, but there are things a mom has to get done. While it may not be spotless, I believe that a happy home does require some semblance of order.

My answer to this frustrating circumstance goes back to my original snack system that I was reminded of after a tedious week of the snack scramble. I had previously devised a plan to provide my kids with all of the nutrients necessary to thrive between the hours of breakfast and dinner, without my having to open the fridge door or cut the crust off bread in the middle of a load of laundry.

After breakfast has been eaten and cleaned up, I set out a buffet of snack bags and paper sacks along with crackers, fruit, sandwich makings and a frozen GoGurt. I fill each sack with about double of what each of my kids would eat in one sitting and distribute them when the first kid decides they are “hungry.”

They know that they have what is inside their snack sack from the time I distribute them until I call them for dinner. Inevitably one or three of them come claiming starvation within the hour and I simply remind them of their snack sack.

Voilà! Snack scramble resolved I can finally set order to our home before bedtime and wake up to a fresh slate the next morning. In a perfect world I would also have time for a manicure and facial, but that's a topic for another week!

EDUCATION

all the necessary components? Or maybe that's just "old-school" because nowadays everything can be ordered online. Even education can be ordered online! Which brings us to a different, and perhaps more demanding phase of our educational experiences, homeschooling.

Let's not get stuck in the rut of discussing all the pros and cons, but rather emphasize that the home is where we learn our greatest lessons. For better or worse, the greatest tests and the most difficult but rewarding homework we will ever accomplish will be within the walls of our own homes.

While some may not feel that way about their childhood or even their current home, I hope we will each have an opportunity to live in and/or to create a home that not only has the Spirit of Education, but one of learning, one of sharing and one of loving. And for those who already have such a home, may you be a bright torch for others who have known neither a home nor a school that cared about or carried them beyond their grades.

Keith Kale Iverson

On the morning of July 22, 2022, Dad slipped away from the confines of his 95-year-old body and joined dear ones who had been waiting for him to come! Now free from pain and physical limitations, he is enjoying a grand reunion!

Keith Kale Iverson was born November 18, 1926, in St. George, UT. He was the fifth of seven children born to Victor Moses and Leoma McCain Iverson. Keith was born at home and delivered by his father. As a boy, Keith lived on a homestead at Mount Trumbull, Arizona, where his father worked hard to build up a good-sized herd of dairy heifers. One spring, all the cattle died of a bovine disease that swept through the rangeland. When this happened, the family moved into St. George, UT to start over. Keith missed the homestead, and his desire from childhood was to someday acquire rangeland and cattle.

Keith's schooling began at age five in the Mount Trumbull AZ schoolhouse where he attended first grade. He completed elementary through part of the 9th grade in St. George and Washington, then left school and went to work for local ranchers, years later earning his GED.

During WWII, Keith served in the Navy. He sailed aboard the USS Bronx, making four roundtrips to the Philippines & mainland China, then after the war, to Japan. Following his release from the Navy in 1946, Keith returned home to St. George. His first job was pouring cement for 75 cents per hour. Then he worked as a ranch hand in Arizona, Wyoming, and Utah. He saved enough cash to buy a brand-new pickup for $1800.

On August 21, 1950, Keith married his sweetheart, Verla Brinkerhoff in the Logan, UT LDS Temple. Soon after their marriage, they bought a section of ground on the Arizona Strip. Frank Childers, an old friend, trusted Keith and loaned him $5000 with which he made the down payment. Through the years they added to their ranching operation by working hard and being very frugal. From 1950 to 1960, Keith and Verla lived in Glendale, UT, where Keith served on the town council. In 1960, he moved his family to Washington, UT. Six children were born to them: one daughter and five sons, their first son died in infancy. Today, their posterity numbers 23 grandchildren and 59 great-grandchildren.

Keith was a great supporter of the 4-H program, sponsoring his children and grandchildren's steer projects. He helped them learn good nutritional & management practices. He emphasized the importance of carcass quality. Steers from his herd consistently placed in the top rankings of the carcass contest at the Southwest Jr. Livestock Show in Cedar City, UT. Keith was a skilled stone and brick mason, often donating his time and labor to worthy causes. He labored long hours in the heat and cold to provide for his family! Keith was an active member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. For many years he helped to prune and pick the church fruit orchards in Hurricane. He worked in the church cannery to preserve produce from the orchards. He was Elder's Quorum President and a High Priest Group Leader. He served as a Stake missionary, and he and Verla were ordinance workers in the St. George temple for 7 years.

Keith was always active in the Republican Party, serving as a county & state delegate several times. In 1980, Keith introduced the "Salers" breed of cattle to Washington County & the Arizona Strip, with the purchase of a purebred Salers bull and several purebred cows. Working with Utah State University, Keith had 2 cows flushed and embryo transfer was performed. Nine purebred calves were produced using nine surrogate Holstein mothers. Keith and sons raised and sold purebred Salers cattle under the name "Sun Country Salers". In 1984, they entered the Salers Division show at the San Francisco Cow Palace, where they won Grand Champion Cow-Calf pair. Keith always took pride in his horses. He was still riding and working cattle at age 83.

He believed in self-reliance and hard work. He was always frugal and honest with himself and others. In 2006, Keith received the Utah Rancher of the Year Award from the Society of Range Management at Utah State University. Dad, thank you for the heritage you left us. We miss you and will love you always.

Keith is survived by brother, Archie Iverson of Washington, UT. Daughter, Kayleen (Wendel) Bundy of Cedar City, UT. Sons, Derk (Christy) Iverson of Moccasin, AZ, Bard Iverson of Bayfield, CO, Dranen Iverson and Dwight (Carma) Iverson of Washington, UT. He is preceded in death by his wife Verla Brinkerhoff Iverson, infant son Brent Keith Iverson, father Victor Moses Iverson, mother Leoma McCain Iverson, sisters Bernice Iverson, Marie Iverson Waite, Sharon Iverson Hunt, brothers Alvin Levi (Bud) Iverson, Grant Harold Iverson.

Visitation was held Friday, July 29th, from 7:00 - 8:30 p.m. at Spilsbury Mortuary - 110 S. Bluff Street, St. George, UT. Funeral services were Saturday, July 30 at 11:00 a.m., at the Washington Main Street Chapel 82 N. Main, Washington City, UT. A viewing was held prior to services from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. Interment at the Glendale, Utah Cemetery. 4:00 p.m. July 30, 2022.

As Keith's family, we express our gratitude to Dr. Ellen Gardner, and to Maree, Sherrie, and Brenda of Iron County Home Health, for their loving care of Dad.

Levi Ray Carpenter

Levi Ray Carpenter, 37, went home on August 2, 2022. He was born on March 3, 1985, to Glenn Ray and Gayle Ann Carpenter in St. George, Utah.

Levi lived and went to school in both St. George and Cedar City, making connections and friends through all grades.

From the ages of ten to fifteen, we got to share Levi's love with his dad, his new mom, brothers Cade, Kyle, and Kary, and Grandparents Claude and Lola Ann Jones while he lived and went to school in Cedar.

A bit later in life, living back with his mother, they welcomed his newest baby brother, Jakobe Bowler on December 20, 2004. Always a proud big brother, Levi loved Jakobe with his whole heart.

Two years later Levi met and fell in love with Ashley Garcia on December 2, 2006. They instantly became a family of three; Levi, Ashley, and little Ra'ees who was born in 2002. One year later they welcomed Tonya into their family, she being their second child, and first daughter. Later, in 2009, they welcomed their third child, and second daughter, Khloe. Levi and Ashley were married on April 20, 2010, and later blessed with one more beautiful baby, Levi Robert, in 2013.

Levi was a very talented singer, rapper, and tattoo artist. He truly was an all-around talent with a kind heart. To know him was to love him.

He is survived by his grandparents, Lorna Muir, Randall Bowler, and Claude and Lola Ann Jones; his loving parents, Glenn (Jolynn) Carpenter, and Gayle Bowler; his brothers Jakobe Bowler, Cade (Andrea) Boardman, Kyle (Myra) Boardman, and Kary Boardman; his children Ra'ees Garcia (currently serving in the marines), Tonya, Khloe, and Levi Carpenter. As well as numerous aunts, uncles, cousins, nephews, and a niece, as well as many friends and loved ones.

The funeral services for Levi were held on Tuesday, August 9, 2022, at 10:00 am, at Spilsbury Mortuary, 110 S Bluff Street, St. George, Utah, with a viewing prior to services from 8:30 - 9:30 am. The Interment took place at Tonaquint Cemetery, 1777 S Dixie Drive, St. George, Utah.

Levi's family would like to thank the ICU doctors, nurses, and staff at Dixie Regional Medical Center for keeping Levi comfortable as he went home to our Lord. We would also like to thank the Donor Connect team for their compassion and support in making it possible for Levi to give the gift of life.

Arrangements are made under the direction of Spilsbury Mortuary, 110 S Bluff, St. George, Utah. 435-673-2454. Family and friends are invited to leave a memory on Levi's obituary page at www.spilsburymortuary.com.

"HIS HAND IN MINE"

"These poems capture who I am. They are written with a prayerful hand, and are inspired from above. It is my hope that all who read them will be edified, find comfort, and feel God's love."

— L. Brent Jones

It Takes Effort

by L. Brent Jones

*It takes effort to climb up a hill,
But none to slide back down.
It takes effort to support a smile,
But none to wear a frown.*

*Anything that is worthwhile,
Takes effort on our part.
For isn't that the Father's plan,
To create a willing heart?*

*To grow in every phase of life,
Gaining experience as we go,
And work to gain our confidence,
So the right way we will know.*

*Every step requires some action,
Or we'll find we're slipping back.
And find ourselves in Satan's grasp,
Because conviction is what we lack.*

*Just think about those daily tasks,
That lead us to our God.
And see that they take effort,
In every footstep that we trod.*

*To talk to Him in daily prayer,
Requires us to act.
If we neglect to make that choice,
Our spirit will react.*

*By slipping into complacency,
Where light gives way to dark.
As we're descending further down,
And our glow becomes a spark.*

*All principles are similar,
Requiring effort to get done.
Like reading scriptures and attending church,
And worshipping God's Son.*

*We must bind ourselves to action,
And know it will take work.
By abandoning the easy way,
Where's Satan's prodding will shirk.*

*Don't be afraid. It is His plan.
Work for all you're worth.
For nothing comes from nothing.
That's the purpose of this earth.*

"I Will Carry You" (Ellie Holcomb)

This week's song is so meaningful and powerful that even if you don't continue reading these words, I believe the song would still be enough to change your life just by listening to it. Yes, this could also be said of everything I write. Because it's not what I write and what you read as much as it is how you listen to the things God is whispering to your mind and heart, reminding and reinforcing His love in your life through your every life experience each day.

God wants to truly be a part of your life. Not just at the beginning and end of each day, or at mealtimes, or for a few hours on the weekends, He wants to be with you always and all ways. Why? Because He knows this world will wear you out, and the devil will try to knock you out, no matter where you are and what you're doing.

That's the message I've always tried to share through my words (and hopefully my works) is that because you have a Father in Heaven and a Savior, when you are worn out, broken down, anxious, depressed, addicted and afflicted in any way, He can and will still carry you. And that it's not too late to get back up and head towards home.

Yes, you may experience the fear of flooding when you see the tides of temptation rise. You may doubt the sun will rise when the darkness seems so disheartening. You may believe that you've made too many mistakes and wasted too much time to ever make a difference in this world for the better, but God hasn't given up on you, He still believes in you. Abba has not and will not abandon you (Isaiah 41:10) and still has a place and a plan for you (Jeremiah 29:11).

Today, cast your cares upon Him. I know you've heard it a thousand times that for everything there is a season (Ecclesiastes 3:1), but there is one thing that doesn't have a season, something that is with you no matter who or where you are—it is the love of God. He loves you no matter what. He's not ashamed of you, or out to punish you,

He's out to help and heal you. I know it's difficult to believe that when all you see are the pains and problems of your past and present, but nevertheless, trust the Lord's vision (Proverbs 3:5) and His provision (Joel 2:25) and that He really can make all things work together for your good (Romans 8:28).

Yes, storms will continue to rage, but the wind and the waves still know His name (Matthew 8:27). God not only cares for you (1 Peter 5:7), He will carry you. No matter how dark the night, or lonely the valley, He will carry you. No matter how deep the ocean or steep the mountain, He will carry you. You are not alone.

Cedar City unites with millions in conference to promote the timely theme "Pursue Peace!"

from Jamie Dunjey

JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES

Jehovah's Witnesses have been holding global conventions for more than 100 years, the last three years featuring virtual events accessed through the free JW Library app or at jw.org. The program's first segment will be available for streaming or download beginning June 27, 2022. All are invited to attend the program at no charge.

"This convention is an object lesson in how peace is being achieved by a global community right now as it unites millions of people even in areas of conflict like Ukraine and Russia," said Robert Hendriks, U.S. Spokesperson for Jehovah's Witnesses. "The power of the principles being discussed transcends national borders, ethnic differences and language barriers. Both individuals and families will benefit from attending the program."

Prior to 2020, Jehovah's Witnesses held their annual convention locally at Dixie Convention Center in St. George, Utah. While they hope to host in-person large gatherings again in the future, the decision was made late last year to hold the 2022 convention virtually again. On April 1, congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses began meeting in person for the first time in two years locally and around the world.

"That subject—it's just so appropriate," said Dexter Novacek, of the theme "Pursue Peace!" He added, "The world is just blanketed in this feeling of anxiousness and despair, and the idea of there being a way to have peace now just sounds so refreshing." The Novacek family plans to attend each session throughout the summer.

Pursue Peace! will unite 239 Countries in more than 500 languages. The three-day convention will be available in six parts, each corresponding to a half day of content. Topics to be explored are:

- » How love leads to inner peace and peace with others.
- » Why the Bible can be called "the road map to family peace."
- » How to attain peace even when suffering illness, economic problems, natural disasters or other difficulties.

- » What people from around the world are doing to enjoy peace.
- » Why friendship with God can lead to true peace.

The convention will conclude with the exciting presentation "Universal Peace is Sure to Come!"

DRE MARIN SIGNS FIRST PROFESSIONAL CONTRACT

GUARD TO JOIN TEAM THAT STARTED CAREER OF NBA'S DIRK NOWITZKI

CEDAR CITY — Former Southern Utah University basketball player Dre Marin has signed his first professional contract with German club s. Oliver Würzburg.

"We are so proud of Dre," said SUU Head Coach Todd Simon. "He had a storied career at SUU and worked himself into becoming a professional basketball player. We look forward to following all of his success."

Marin was a five-year starter for Southern Utah, putting together a legendary career throughout his time wearing a Thunderbird uniform. Marin appeared in 152 total contests for SUU while making 145 starts, both of which set new program records. Marin also set a new Big Sky Conference record, appearing in 91 conference games, the most in Big Sky history.

Marin finished his career ranked third in program history in scoring, amassing 1,434 points throughout his time at SUU. He also ranks third in career assists (362), sixth in steals (136), and eighth in free-throw percentage (80.9%).

This past season, Marin helped to lead Southern Utah to their second most wins in the program's Division I history (25), as well as a semifinal appearance in The Basketball Classic. In the first round of the TBC, Marin knocked down a career-high seven three-pointers, scoring 27 points to earn MVP honors of the Willis Reed Game, and help SUU beat Kent State 83-79.

Over the course of his five-year career, Marin posted averages of 9.4 points, 2.4 assists, and 1.0 steals per game, while drilling 38.6 percent of his three-point shots.

He will now take his talents to Würzburg, Germany, to compete for s. Oliver Würzburg in the Basketball Bundesliga, Germany's highest level of professional basketball.

Marin is thrilled and prepared to take the next step in his career.

"This is an opportunity that I've dreamed about since I was a little kid, and to see it come true just makes me want to work even harder. The fact that I can make a living and travel the world all because of an orange ball is mind blowing to me. I'm incredibly grateful and super excited for this start to my professional career."

S. Oliver Würzburg has a rich history, as former NBA player Dirk Nowitzki and current NBA player Maxi Kleber both began their respective careers with the club. The organization also made it to the FIBA Europe Cup Championship Game three seasons ago.

From 1-5 to playoff win, CV football building on success

by Tom Zulewski

IRON COUNTY TODAY

The 2021 football season threw every challenge not related to the game at the Canyon View Falcons. The team lost its head coach 48 hours before the rivalry matchup against Cedar, lost five straight games, then did something only seen once before in the 25-year history of the school.

The Falcons won a playoff game and nearly did it again in the 2021 quarter-finals. With a new head coach in Burke Miller – who was an assistant under interim head coach Patrick Achord for the final nine weeks – the expectation level has clearly been raised after CV won four of its final five games.

“For us, it was clearly getting the best 11 players on the field,” Miller said of the team’s adjustment. “We changed our offense to more of a triple-option type that fit our personnel better. We’re going to be similar this year.”

Despite losing Adrian Ward and his more than 1,500 rushing yards to graduation, the Falcons have four prime candidates Miller says can pick up the slack, including Asher Groft, senior Kyle Roundy, Lincoln Rushton and Scotty Irons.

“They’re four really good running backs and we’re gonna be a really good football team,” Miller said.

Canyon View opens its 2022 season Friday night at home against Ogden. They posted a 33-21 win over the Tigers in last year’s opener before falling on hard times. After the team rallied to the playoffs, Miller said the culture change didn’t require a magic wand.

“Winning cures everything,” he said. “We finished strong last year and want to keep it going this year. The culture is easy to change when you start winning.”

With the increased expectation, pressure is a word Miller prefers not to use for the Falcons.

“We just have goals and we’ve laid out a map and plan to do what it takes to achieve them,” Miller said. “We never look at pressure. We just do the work and trust the process.”

Even with only two playoff victories in 25 years, Miller is pointing CV toward

“We finished strong last year and want to keep it going this year. The culture is easy to change when you start winning.”

Burke Miller, Canyon View head coach

the ultimate prize.

“I tell the kids every day we don’t shy away from our goals,” Miller said. “Our goal is to win the first state championship at Canyon View. For the most part, the kids are on board.”

“You have different personalities everywhere, so you’ve got to work harder on the goal with other kids, but as of now, we’ve been preaching it all summer long and they’re buying in.”

After Ogden, the Falcons will host Providence Hall on Aug. 19, then travel across town to face Cedar on Aug. 26. Following the rivalry game, CV plays road matchups at Millard and San Juan before starting 3A South play Sept. 16 at North Sanpete.

Linebackers look great through first week of camp

from Regan Hunsaker

ASSISTANT AD, SUU SPORTS INFORMATION

CEDAR CITY — Southern Utah Football camp continued this morning with some fresh drills and some special teams work as well as a live scrimmage. After a couple days of hitting the players on the field can often be working through some soreness. This didn’t appear to be the case however for the hard hitting linebacking core.

It is typical for linebackers to be some of the toughest players on the field, and this group is no exception. Some of the most important skills for linebackers include making the correct read, reacting to blocking schemes, block shedding and of course tackling.

The SUU Thunderbirds are working hard and are ready to hit both the field and their upcoming competition.

With passing of Scully, another voice enters baseball heaven

I remember it like it was yesterday. While traveling in my car to Salt Lake City for a concert on May 4, 2010, I was listening to the Detroit Tigers on my satellite radio as they played the Minnesota Twins.

As the broadcast returned from a commercial break, Dan Dickerson broke the news.

Ernie Harwell, the voice of the Tigers for most of my life, passed away from cancer at age 92. I cried openly while driving, and I was amazed at Dickerson's ability to hold his emotion in check because it clearly wasn't an easy thing to do.

On Aug. 2, 2022, the news broke of the passing of another baseball broadcasting legend. Vin Scully, who was the voice of the Los Angeles Dodgers for 67 years, died at age 94. While I was in my car when Harwell left us, the power of social media, audio and video was my source to explain what happened.

There was just as much sadness for me even though I don't profess to be a Dodger fan. Scully was on the microphone for a lot of moments in baseball and elsewhere, and some of the facts I found about his career surprised me. You can test your knowledge elsewhere on these pages.

In 1982, Vin Scully was given the Ford C. Frick Award and earned enshrinement in the broadcasters' wing of the Baseball Hall of Fame. In his speech, a portion of it is striking to me for his humility, decency, and general all-around greatness.

"Why me?" Scully asked. "Why with the millions and millions of more deserving people would a red-haired kid with a hole in his pants and his shirt tail hanging out, playing stickball in the streets of New York wind up in Cooperstown? Why me, indeed."

I know why. Because listening to Scully, Harwell, or any other voice of baseball that defines childhood carries memories that are indescribable, magical, occasionally frustrating, and absolutely unforgettable.

Maybe there's something in the water that allows our favorite voices of the game to keep going as long as they do. Harwell was 84 years old when he hung up his headset, Scully was 88, and Bob Uecker – the voice of the Milwaukee Brewers since 1971 – is still doing his thing today at age 88.

And even after Harwell and Scully retired, they stuck around long enough to add more to the baseball scrapbook for the younger set. When I wrote my tribute column to Ernie on his retirement in 2002, I will never forget how he called me directly and said thank you. The conversation was short, but he sent along the appreciation of his wife, "Miss Lulu" as he called her for 68 years of marriage. I will never forget that moment.

Besides Uecker, there are other broadcasting legends who've been with their teams for a very long time. Denny Matthews has been the voice of the Kansas City Royals since the team was born in 1969. Eric Nadel is on his 43rd season as voice of the Texas Rangers.

Whoever you prefer, however you embrace your fandom, the voice of baseball you hear on your radio means more than just a game. It's a source of storytelling you'll remember forever.

LINEBACKERS

Defensive Coordinator Coach John Kelling said of the linebackers "The group is getting much better in general. I have really enjoyed watching the growth of this group from spring ball to fall camp." The first few weeks with a new program can be hard even for linebackers who often are the leaders on the defense. Coach Kelling continued saying "We had a rough spring and they really didn't pick up with a lot of the concepts but it has now started to really take hold and now this is allowing their athletic abilities to really shine forth." Linebackers coach Shay McClure said "this is a really young group, they are working hard and getting better with every practice."

Fall camp gives coaches a good opportunity to see which players work best together and this first week has given the T-bird defense a chance to see many different linebacker combinations. "We have been rotating many players through and have confidence in a lot of them" said Kelling. The Southern Utah defense will look to improve upon last year as opponents averaged nearly forty points a game. The defense has been impressive so far in camp and will continue to grow more comfortable with each other over the next few weeks as they get ready for the season.

Season and single-game tickets are available now; for more information visit the SUU Football Ticketing Page.
